Nazis Seize Church Rule In Germany; Give Amnesty

Storm Troopers Present at Synod

Freedom Granted Minor Criminal, Political Offenders.

Berlin, Aug. 9 (U.P.).—Reichsbishop Ludwig Mueller seized complete control as dictator of the German Evangelical Church tonight on behalf of Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler.

Dr. Mueller, whom Hitler named as head of the church, gained approval of his power as supreme ruler of the religious side of Protestant Germany by a vote of 48 to 11 in a hurriedly called national synod here. The delegates voted his regime absolute legislative power, making legal retroactively his actions against all opposition blocs.

The ballot was on a new law making the church thoroughly Nazi. It abolishes the church flag in favor of the swastika, and impels pastors to take an oath of allegiance to Hitler similar to the oath taken by the Reichswehr (army). Fifty-nine of the 60 synod votes were present or represented by proxy.

Storm Troopers Present.

Several "German Christian" delegates in Nazi Storm Troop uniforms lent the synod gathering a political touch.

The legalizing of past measures greatly strengthens Dr. Mueller in his fight against the regional churches of Bavaria, Wuertemberg and Hanover. However, whether he can succeed in quieting all opposition which has remained solid for months against this unification of the evangelical church was conjectural.

The Nazification of the Protestant church was one of two moves by Hitler and his aids in further consolidating his position as the all-high dictator of Germany. The other was granting amnesty to both criminal and political prisoners.

The amnesty decree was Hitler's first official act as supreme head of the Reich. It affects all criminal offenders sentenced to six months' imprisonment or less and will be extended to practically all political prisoners, "after a generous investigation." The number is expected to run into thousands.

Granting amnesty is traditional in Germany following the inauguration of a new erman President. It was observed on both occasions when the late Field Marshal Paul von Hindenburg assumed office in 1925 and 1932.

The decree will affect many held on suspicion of participating in the Nazi uprising within the party which resulted in Hitler's "blood purge" of June 30.

It covers the following political offenses: (1) Slander against Hitler or his government; (2) acts against the national prestige, provided they

London, Aug. 9 (A).—James Ayling and Leonard Reid, adventuresome Canadian fliers, completed a trip across the Atlantic Ocean today, but storms defeated their effort to set a new nonstop airplane flight record.

They landed here this evening, abandoning their effort to fly from Wasaga Beach, Ontario, to Bagdad, Iraq, after ocean storms had buffeted their sturdy black biplane for many hours.

Ayling and Reid came down at Heston airport, a little disappointed, but still cheerful, at 5:07 p. m. (G. M. T.). (12:07 p. m., Washington time).

They had come from the shores of Lake Ontario, had crossed eastern Canada and the North Atlantic Ocean, in 31 hours and 7 minutes.

The controls of their plane, the "Trail of the Caribou," jammed dangerously several times, and there were indications they might cause more trouble. And ahead weather was becoming increasingly unfavorable.

Over England the fliers concluded they did not have enough fuel to break the long distance flight record of 5,657.6 miles.

The rapid reduction in their gasoline supply was caused entirely by the high consumption necessary to combat winds, they explained.

George S. Tiffany Dies.

Dark Harbor, Me., Aug. 9 (A).—George Shepley Tiffany, 56, former St. Louis cotton broker and prominent member of the exclusive Dark Harbor summer colony for 40 years, died today from a cerebral hemorrhage, after an illness of three weeks.

Harbor Chief Feared Dead; River Dragged

Lieut. Harney Vanished on Potomac Fishing Trip With Friend.

Only a charred cigarette butt on the deck rail and his service revolver, cap and coat, deposited in the cabin, guided police last night in their search for Lieut. Edward T. Harney, 56, municipal harbor master and commander of the Harbor Precinct, who disappeared mysteriously from a cabin launch while on a fishing trip late Wednesday.

Fear that Harney fell overboard and was drowned when the boat, a 30-foot craft belonging to Harney's friend, George Boyd, a retired detective sergeant, broke loose from her moorings, was expressed yesterday by Inspector L. I. H. Edwards, chief of the searching party and assistant chief of police. The boat broke loose near Marshall Hall and drifted 4 miles down the Potomac.

Harney left the Harbor Precinct on a fishing trip with Boyd at 1 p. m. Wednesday. It was his day off. He was expected to return to the precinct or his home in Alcova Heights, Va., by 11 p. m. and it was learned that the launch, which carried only Harney and Boyd, was moored below Marshall Hall about 3 p. m.

Alarmed because Harney had not appeared on duty at 7 a. m., as was

2 Die, 18 Lost As Cloudburst Hits Resorts

Colorado Storm Sweeps Autos From Roads, Wrecks Homes.

Denver, Aug. 9 (A).—A man and a girl were known to have perished and 18 other persons were missing and believed to have lost their lives in a cloudburst and hailstorm that struck resort villages in the mountains just west of Denver early this afternoon.

The known dead are John Husband, of Denver, and an unidentified girl about 14. Their bodies have been recovered.

Missing are Husband's wife, Isabel; six persons who were in an automobile behind the Husband machine; four persons who were in a camping party near Morrison, and a group of se n girls.

The girls were swept off a foot bridge at Starbuck and carried down the canon in the flood waters.

Two Sets of Sisters Lost.

They were Lois, Ethel, Gladys and Dorothy Johnson, sisters; Maxine Hanawalt and Irene and Christine Hoss, sisters, all of Denver.

The identity of the four persons in the camping party near Morrison could not be learned immediately.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Shields, of Florence, Col., and their daughter, Mrs. Margaret Belle Frew, who were in the automobile with Mr. and Mrs. Husband, said they fled from the car when they saw the swirling waters coming down the canon. They were reported safe at the summer home of Charles Gates, Denver businessman.

They said they saw Mr. and Mrs Husband swept away in their auto.

Conflicting reports from the scene of the storm, which centered around Idledale-Starbuck district, made it difficult to estimate the possible death toll or the property damage.

1933 Flood Killed five.

Bear Creek Canon was the site of a disastrous flood about a year ago in which five persons perished and thousands of dollars property damage was done. The cloudburst today was above the scene of last years' disaster.

A barrage of hail accompanied the deluge, damaging summer cottages.

Mrs. Ruth Grimes, manager of an inn near Morrison, said the canon highways for long stretches were under water, and bridges were reported washed out.

Girl Dressed As Boy Faces Holdup Quiz

Police Find Gun in Room of Blonde Who Used Many Aliases.

On certain days she was a diminutive blonde, sfiling coyly from beneath her heavy, golden wig.

Other days she was a boy—slight, dapper—just any mother's delicate son treading the streets of the city.

Actually she is Isabel Lorraine Messmer, having, police say, such aliases as "Ruby Coleman," "Joyce Larrimore," "Joyce Palmer," and "Dorothy McNally."

She was arrested in front of a downtown hotel yesterday in her boy's costume of a blue shirt, white cap, white duck trousers and white shoes by Detectives Sergeants Paul Ambrose and H. G. Wanamaker.

Hair Causes Arrest.

Their suspicions were aroused several days ago when they saw wisps of brunette hair protruding from beneath her wig.

Yesterday Ambrose and Wanamaker searched her room in the hotel, and found a supply of boys' clothes and a small-caliber revolver.

Taken to headquarters, Miss Messmer refused to talk. She declined to pose for police photographers, but welcomed newspaper cameramen.

Once she tore off her wig and tossed it across the floor. Then she put it on and posed again.

Leak Ends Ocean Trip of Sailboat

Flagler Beach, Fla., Aug. 9 (A).—Alfred Lastinger's attempt to cross the Atlantic Ocean in a 10-foot sailboat ended today 20 miles north of his starting point after a desperate race for shore in the badly leaking vessel.

"It was just a tough break," said the 23-year-old sailor, exhausted after two days of almost continuous pumping. "You can say I've already made plans to repair the Miss Florida and try it again about June 1, next year."

The tiny boat was sighted about three miles from shore today by Capt. C. D. Toler, of the Flagler Beach Coast Guard Station. He dispatched a Coast Guard crew to Lastinger's aid. Last night, Lastinger said, the water had risen so far he thought it necessary to throw out his supplies. He had gone 75 miles to sea, he said, when forced to turn back.

Raids on Armories for Guns Spur Federal Crime Drive

Theft of 1,027 guns, including 10 machine guns, from National Guard armories of 29 States in the last year and a half spurred a new drive against criminals yesterday by the Department of Justice.

William Stanley, Acting Attorney General, announced War Department officials had agreed to cooperate by urging Governors of every State to arrange for protection of armories against raids by gangsters. He emphasized the seriousness of the situation.

Efforts of the Government to prevent criminals from obtaining weapons will be redoubled, Stanley said, when the new Federal law restricting sale of machine guns becomes effective today.

Stanley disclosed loot from the armories, in addition to the machine guns, included 23,110 rounds of ammunition, 77 rifles and 140 pistols. None of the machine guns has been found, but 230 of the other weapons and 1,250 rounds of ammunition have been recovered.

It was recalled that one of the robberies occurred last spring at Hyattsville, Md., when members of the since-captured Tri-State gang escaped with several rifles and a quantity of ammunition.

Nine robberies, involving 203 guns, placed Texas at the top of the list of States. Among other thefts were Missouri, 106 guns in five robberies; Oklahoma, 56 in five; Georgia, 86 in four; North Carolina, 41 in four; Kansas, 90 in three; Iowa, 36 in three; Arkansas, 14 in three; Pennsylvania, Tennessee and Indiana, three robberies each; Illinois, Florida, Alabama, Louisiana, Arizona and Minnesota, two robberies each; Washington, New Mexico, Connecticut, Wyoming, Oregon, Montana, Kentucky, California, Idaho, West Virginia, North Dakota and the District of Columbia, one each.

Officials explained the War Department loaned firearms to Guard units in the States and depended on the borrowers to provide storehouses.

G.O.P. Chief Opens Fight On New Deal

Attack Centers on AAA; NRA Under Fire as "Servitude."

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 9 (A).—National Chairman Henry P. Fletcher, of the Republican party, called on the country today for a "verdict on the New Deal" on November 6.

From the platform of the Republican State convention here, in what he regarded as the party's National challenge, Fletcher branded the NRA a "badge of industrial servitude" and lambasted the farm program as a "trag+ disappointment."

Leaders of both parties watched the chairman's choice of weapons and his mode of attack. His address, delivered in the heart of the Midwest's prairies, was expected to declare the issues on which the Republicans will do battle for more Congressional seats.

"Black Crow" for Farmer.

Fletcher accused the Administration of fruitless spending and charged it had launched "dangerous experiments," but he centered his attack on the farm relief efforts. While building his party's case against the Administration, he put a new bird into the National political picture. It was the "black crow." He said:

"Suppose, in order to compel all farmers to come in under the AAA, it decides to * * * decree that all those who do not paint a black crow on their barnyard gate will get no Government money.

"This may sound like a lot of political hooey, but it is no more fanciful than what has been done with the Blue Eagle—the badge of industrial servitude."

He told the convention crowd that the farmer has suffered, rather than benefited, from the recovery activities.

"NRA Strangles AAA."

"The New Deal's NRA," he declared, "has strangled its AAA."

In keeping with his announced subject, "The New Deal and American Ideals," Chairman Fletcher charged that the Roosevelt program had done psychological damage to the country.

He declared it had undermined "the morale of our people," saying that "millions" are being "lured and seduced" into depending upon the Government for their livelihood, he added:

"American liberty ought not to be sold, even to one's Government."

Admitting that farm prices have increased since May, 1933, when the Agricultural Adjustment act became a law, Fletcher declared that the rise has been more than offset by a rise in the price of manufactured goods, and called the crop control program "thinly veiled Government control," and "alien principle."

"Return to Constitution."

After tolling off a whole catalogue of charges, the G. O. P. spokesman accused the Democratic party of violating its campaign promises by "weird" innovations in government. He declared:

"The Republican party demands

Memphis Train Kills 7 in Auto

Four Children, One-Armed Driver Among Victims; Two Others May Die.

Memphis, Tenn., Aug. 9 (U.P.).—Seven persons, four of them children, were killed today when a passenger train crashed into a heavily-loaded automobile driven by a one-armed man.

Nine persons were in the machine, a small coach. So seriously injured were the other two that physicians feared the death toll would be increased before morning.

The dead: C. W. Sheets, jr., 9; Marguerite Holstead, 3; John S. Bailey, 9; Ben F. Hailey, jr., 8; Beatrice Waterbury, 19; Steve Thompson, 35, and the driver, Austin Dodson, 21.

The injured: Barney Waterbury, 7, and Mrs. Viola Holstead, 19.

The automobile was en route to a Mississippi River swimming party. At the city limits, near National Cemetery, it was struck at a grade crossing by an inbound Louisville & Nashville passenger train completing its run from Louisville.

Cause of the crash could not be ascertained. Witnesses said the driver's vision was not obstructed at the crossing. Apparently the automobile occupants, out to escape the sultry heat, did not notice the locomotive bearing down on them at a 40-mile-an-hour clip.

3 Escape in Annapolis As Flames Raze Yacht

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 9 (Spl.).—Fire today destroyed the 55-foot yacht Quo Vadis, owned by Albert Compton, of Philadelphia, in Magothy River, 12 miles north of Annapolis.

Compton and two friends escaped uninjured, after battling to subdue the flames.

U. S. Silver Is Nationalized At 50c Ounce by Roosevelt; Wider New Deal Is Planned

Backs La Follette For Senate Seat

Party Labels Now Seen as Meaning Little to Chief Executive.

By Raymond Clapper.

Aboard Presidential Special Train, En Route to Washington, Aug. 9.—President Roosevelt returns to the White House tomorrow pledged to carry the New Deal forward aggressively as a permanent reform movement.

He believes the country demands it, and he is prepared to provide the necessary action.

Mr. Roosevelt informed the Nation of his purpose today in his address at Green Bay, Wis., the major utterance of his eastward transcontinental tour.

Definitely interpreting the election of 1932 as a great National mandate, which the Republicans have denied was the case, Mr. Roosevelt said that in the year and five months of his Administration, the people had received at least a partial answer to their demands for action. Then he added significantly:

Rubicon Crossed Now.

Numerous recovery measures were launched as emergency measures to carry through an exceptional period of crisis. Now Mr. Roosevelt has set his face toward a leftward march of indefinite duration. He has crossed the Rubicon.

Today, in his Green Bay speech, he definitely discarded party lines, and made loyalty to the New Deal the test of his favor to candidates for office, as if anticipating some political realignment. By name he expressed his gratitude to Senator Robert M. La Follette for help at Washington, completely ignoring the Democratic organization in Wisconsin, which is trying to put a senatorial candidate into the race, hoping to capture young La Follette's seat in the fall.

At the same time Mr. Roosevelt gave a pat on the back to two Democratic New Dealers in Wisconsin—Senator F. Ryan Duffey and Gov. A. G. Schmedeman—thanking them for their cooperation.

Borah Thought Criticized.

In a veiled reference, generally construed aboard the Presidential train to be to Senator Borah, the President objected to the type of man "whose objectives are wholly right and wholly progressive, but who declines to cooperate or even to discuss methods of arriving at the objectives because he insists on his own methods and nobody else's."

He also struck obliquely at a prominent anti-New Deal Democrat, Gov. Charles W. Bryan, of Nebraska, who as a candidate for the Senate is condemning NRA as "slashing the National throat from ear to ear." Mr. Roosevelt did this by quoting approvingly a glowing definition of the New Deal recited recently in Congress by Representative Edward R. Burke, Nebraska Democrat, who is opposing Bryan for the Senatorial nomination. This was a neat example of the Roosevelt political subtlety, for he did not name the author of the quotation. But the author happens to be

Fairbanks Sails; N. Y. Believed Goal

No Reconciliation With Wife Seen, However.

London, Aug. 9 (A).—London friends of Douglas Fairbanks, sr., tonight predicted he would go directly to New York, but not necessarily for a reconciliation with Mary Pickford.

These friends were not as hopeful of a reunion as Joseph M. Schenck, motion picture executive accompanying Fairbanks on the liner Rex. The two left Monte Carlo yesterday, and there was a possibility they might leave the ship at Gibraltar late tonight and return to London.

Fairbanks' lawyer denied statements by British film officials that the actor had applied for naturalization, had been rejected and ordered to return to America by October.

Bridge Expert Weds Princess' Daughter

Elkton, Md., Aug. 9 (U.P.).—Willard Karn, former member of the Four Horsemen championship bridge team, was married today to Lili Dawydoff, daughter of Princess Marie Obolensky.

The new Mrs. Karn does not play bridge and Karn is glad of it. "Bridge-playing couples have too many arguments," he said. Karn will abandon his bridge career and go into business.

"There Is Not Enough Gold"

Long a proponent of an increase in the use of silver as money, Senator Thomas (Democrat), Oklahoma, yesterday hailed President Roosevelt's silver nationalization order as "a declaration that there is not enough gold in the world to satisfy the demands for money."

Bus and Tram Reroute Plan Faces Attack

Beeler's "Through-Town" Proposal Meets With Disfavor.

As Traffic Expert John A. Beeler made public yesterday the first section of his report to the Public Utilities Commission on the rerouting of District bus and trolley traffic, there were indications that the principles on which the report is based would be attacked when the plan is discussed in open hearings.

Beeler's reported, which is an elaboration of a summary published three days ago, stated:

"In any transportation routing plan certain cardinal principles should be kept in mind. The routes should follow, as far as possible, the most direct lines available between points where travel is heaviest. Turns should be reduced to a minimum, especially in congested territory. This calls for through routing where practicable; that is, from one side of a city through the downtown section to another side of the city."

This is known to be directly opposed to the view of Peoples Counsel William A. Roberts and others, who hold that a "through-town" system is not adapted to Washington's needs.

They favor instead, an "in-and-out" system from the outlying sections of the city. Adherents of the latter plan pointed out yesterday that the peak load of traffic in the rush hours would be the same at both ends of the "through-town" system. This would necessitate a large number of cars moving toward the downtown section from the District line. After they had deposited their passengers downtown, they then would proceed on to the outlying sections with few passengers, it was said.

Under an "in-and-out" system, it was argued, trolleys could be routed off to the busier downtown routes after they had gotten rid of their passengers from the city's outskirts.

There was also resentment in some official quarters over the statement by John Hanna, president of the Capital Transit Co., that the

Silver Order Aids Markets; Dollar Falls

(Associated Press.)

Rising markets and a falling dollar yesterday were the financial world's answer to President Roosevelt's order for the nationalization of silver.

Commodity exchange officials suspended trading in silver futures after word of the nationalization decree. Trading in the metal may not be resumed. The spot price just before the close was 49¼ cents an ounce, against the Government's 50.01 cents.

The boards in Chicago, Winnipeg and other leading markets bore new high figures for the year for virtually all grains, although there was some reaction on profit taking.

Cotton advanced from 16 to 17 points a pound.

Early losses in the securities markets were wiped out after news of the action and most stocks followed the upward lead of the silver issues. Bonds turned down.

The dollar fell in London to $3.07 to the pound and declined also on other foreign exchanges.

Dollar Value Falls.

(Copyright, 1934, by the Associated Press.)

New York, Aug. 9.—Speculators placed an inflationary interpretation upon President Roosevelt's nationalization of silver today, and prices of securities and staples rose briskly.

Wall street banking authorities, however, took a more conservative view, expressing the opinion that the nationalization of the metal in itself meant little if any increase in currency in circulation, and might be construed as inflationary only in so far as it might be a forerunner of further monetary developments.

Share prices, after an early slump of $1 to $2 a share in many issues, not only recovered their losses but advanced to scores of net gains of Stocks Must Be Turned Over to Treasury in 90 Days.

Industrial Metal, Coins Exempted

By Leon Dure, jr.

President Roosevelt yesterday proclaimed the "nationalization" of silver at 50.01 cents an ounce, and ordered all holders of silver in the United States, excepting coined or industrial metal, to turn in their stocks at the mints within 90 days.

With startling suddenness, this further step in revolutionizing the Nation's monetary system was taken under provisions of the silver purchase act, which authorized the seizure of silver in much the same manner all gold was swept into the Treasury more than a year ago.

The President's proclamation and an accompanying Executive order were announced by Secretary Morgenthau just after the price of silver had passed 49.5 cents on the New York market yesterday morning. Operations in silver were suspended immediately after the order, while stocks and commodities bounded upward in sympathy with inflationary aspects of the New Deal in silver.

Bureau of Engraving Ready.

"We're going forward with our program of rehabilitation of silver," Mr. Morgenthau announced, not without a trace of humor, as he explained that the Treasury was prepared to speed up the printing presses as fast as silver stocks are turned in.

Exempted from terms of the President's order are silver coins, fabricated silver and certain other classes of the metal. Hence, the housewife can keep her silver knives and forks; the husband can jingle his dimes and quarters, without fear of the law. But all silver not in use or needed by industry or the arts must be consigned to the mints forthwith, under penalty of confiscation.

Although immediate effects of the order will be imperceptible as far as the average citizen is concerned, word of the Administration's dramatic action was received by Senator Elmer Thomas, silver-haired inflationist, of Oklahoma, as the beginning of "a new era of prosperity." Silver has at last been enthroned, he exulted, as a "primary money."

$75,000,000 in New Cash.

Treasury officials would not hazard a guess on the amount of silver in this country, but estimates given before Congressional committees at the last session ranged from 150,000,000 to 200,000,000 ounces. The amount of new certificates or silver dollars to be issued as a result of nationalization at 50.01 cents, therefore, will approximate half the

Midwest Heat Boosts Grains

Dozens Die and Damage Is Up to 5 Billions; Hopes Wane.

Chicago, Aug. 9 (U.P.).—Temperatures and grain prices climbed to record highs today as new waves of heat simmered over baked plains of the Midwest and made tragic additions to the 1934 loss of 1,000 lives and $5,000,000,000 damage.

In almost a dozen States within the blistered territory, temperatures climbed to marks higher than 100. In several places records of 108 and higher were set.

Farmers and grain experts saw this new day of heat—when cooler weather had been expected in many places—as a final blow to their hopes for the season.

Corn prices climbed to the highest point in four years and wheat soared to a new high for this season. May corn went to 87¼ cents; May wheat to $1.13⅜.

Loss of life was terrific. Dozens of deaths were attributed to the heat. The total life toll for the season neared 1,100.

Hope for relief from the heat was offered for tomorrow in some sections, but no real relief from the drought was in sight anywhere.

One of the day's most alarming reports came from R. O. Cromwell, Chicago grain expert, who said that the prospective corn output for Iowa has been reduced 45,000,000 bushels since August 1, when he estimated the total State crop would be only 229,000,000 bushels.

Young Mother Electrocuted For Slaying of Her Husband

Ossining, N. Y., Aug. 9 (U.P.).—A frail, fright-numbed little woman of 29 tonight was taken from the cell she has occupied for 15 months and put to death in the electric chair at Sing Sing Prison.

Mrs. Anna Antonio, mother of three young children, was executed shortly after 10 p. m. for the murder of her husband, Salvatore. She was the first woman to be legally killed in Sing Sing since Ruth Snyder was led to the chair in 1927.

Samuel Feraci, 43, and Vincent Saetta, 34, died with her as the actual slayers of Antonio in a plot to collect his $5,100 life insurance. Feraci went second and Saetta third.

Ossining, N. Y., Aug. 9 (A).—Only dim hopes of last minute clemency—a fourth reprieve or a commutation—stood tonight between a 29-year-old mother of three children and the electric chair.

Crestfallen and hopeless, Mrs. Anna Antonio declined an unrestricted menu for the final Death-house meal, and dejectedly counted the few remaining hours.

She was to enter the execution chamber with Vincent Saetta and Samuel Farraci, father of nine, convicted with her in the "insurance" slaying of her husband.

The two men, allegedly hired by Mrs. Antonio for the killing, ate bountiful suppers.

Mrs. Antonio was not taken to a pre-execution cell, but remained in a corridor of the death house women's wing.

All U. S. Silver Is Nationalized By President

50 Cents an Ounce Will Be Given; Certain Classes Are Exempted.

Just as in the case of gold, the Treasury will obtain a theoretical "profit" on the operation, since the monetary value of silver is fixed at $1.29 an ounce. The chief difference between seizure of the two metals, twin steps toward President Roosevelt's concept of a "sound and adequate" currency, lay in the fact that silver coins will continue in circulation—a situation now illegal as to gold.

Although yesterday's action was surprisingly abrupt, nationalization of silver had been considered inevitable under provisions of the silver purchase act, which was approved by the President on June 19 in a compromise with Western silverites. This act declares it the policy of the Government to acquire silver until it reaches a 1-to-3 ratio with gold as the metallic backing for currency.

Price Rise Compelled Action.

Inasmuch as the act limits the price the Treasury can pay for silver in this country to 50 cents an ounce, Secretary Morgenthau yesterday found himself face to face with the problem of either calling off his quiet purchases or nationalizing the metal. For the Treasury's steady purchases had put up the price from 46 cents on August 3 to about 48 cents Wednesday night, and the price was rising rapidly yesterday morning.

A touch of drama accompanied his announcement of the Administration's decision. Only the night before the Treasury had put out a late order, requiring consular invoices for all shipments of silver to the United States. As expectant newspapermen filed into his office yesterday, he carefully closed the door and asked that none leave until after he had finished.

"We have nationalized silver," he said simply.

Later it was learned that the Secretary had communicated with the President, who was speaking at Green Bay, Wis., before he released his proclamation and Executive order. Both documents had been prepared some time before and were held ready for promulgation as soon as domestic silver approached the limit of 50 cents an ounce.

Seigniorage Is Deducted.

The proclamation authorizes the mints to receive all silver in the United States as of August 9. The mints are further directed to deduct as seigniorage 61 8-25 per cent of the silver so received and to return to the depositor the balance—which is equal to the 50.01 cents an ounce. Payments may be made in silver dollars, silver certificates or other currency.

This percentage was arrived at, it was explained officially, because it represents the closest convenient fraction to establish the price of silver at approximately 50 cents, which was the Treasury's interpretation of the "reasonable value" required by law. The Nationalization of silver itself was an act of "eminent domain," or condemnation, which permitted the Treasury to set its own price.

Neither the proclamation nor the President's Executive Order went further than directing the return of 50 cents in money for every ounce of silver delivered, but the Treasury is authorized by the silver purchase act to expand the currency up to $1.29 per ounce. For the present, however, Mr. Morgenthau reiterated his statement of last week that the Treasury plans to issue only up to the cost of the silver acquired.

Coins Are Exempt.

The Executive order specifically exempts delivery of silver coins, foreign or domestic; silver ore; fabricated silver; silver held for industrial or artistic use; silver held by foreign banks, or silver held under license. The Secretary of the Treasury is authorized to issue licenses covering silver "for legitimate and customary use," silver imported for reexport, or silver required to fulfill an obligation to a third person prior to August 9.

Also exempt as to price is newly mined domestic silver, which must, however, be delivered to the mints as other silver stocks. Provisions of the President's order of December 21, establishing the price of newly mined silver at 64.5 cents, are continued. In this case, the mints keep only 50 per cent of new silver turned in as seigniorage, returning the balance in currency or silver dollars.

The predominant feeling engendered by the new monetary move was that the Treasury is prepared to pursue more vigorously the silver policy laid down by the silver purchase act. How far the Administration may go in this direction, however, remained a matter of conjecture, especially since Treasury purchases have been clouded under the secrecy of its $1,800,000,000 stabilization fund.

Might Have to Buy Abroad.

If the Treasury actually does attempt to acquire enough silver to equal one-fourth of its present gold stocks (now almost $8,000,000,000) it will have to buy more than 1,300,000,000 ounces of silver. This is far more than the amount of silver available in this country, which already has led to substantial, if unknown, purchases abroad. There was general doubt that the Treasury would proceed this far, especially since the world price might rise to prohibitive heights.

The decision to nationalize silver was believed to be one answer to demands of inflationists, although the amount of inflation provided is not regarded as great. The effect would be more than doubled if Secretary Morgenthau decides to issue currency on a basis of $1.29 an ounce. But as for that, his only remark was:

"We will adjust ourselves to the situation from day to day. For the present, just as rapidly as the Bureau of Engraving can function, we will issue silver certificates up to the purchase price."

Flanked by Herman Oliphant, general counsel and Treasury expert, Mr Morgenthau received puzzled correspondents for a second time in their attempt to clear up the Treasury's action. He said that silver imported after yesterday is not subject to nationalization, that none of the impounded silver is subject to the 50 per cent profit tax, and that he didn't want "to tip his hand" as to foreign purchases.

Further, although trading in silver futures necessarily was suspended, "legitimate" dealings in silver will not be barred. Asked whether the fact that imported silver is not restricted meant that a free silver market will continue, he countered, "More or less." If imports reach large proportions, it was thought, the Treasury might "nationalize" silver again, bringing in stocks imported after yesterday.

Text of President's Order Mobilizing Silver

President Roosevelt's executive order requiring the delivery of silver to the United States mints follows:

By virtue of the authority vested in me by the silver purchase act of 1934 and of all other authority vested in me, I, Franklin D. Roosevelt, President of the United States of America, do hereby require the delivery of all silver situated in the continental United States on the effective date hereof, by any and all persons owning, possessing, or controlling any such silver, and do hereby require any and all persons owning, possessing, or controlling any such silver to deliver the same in the manner, upon the conditions and subject to the exceptions herein contained, such action being in my judgment necessary to effectuate the policy of the silver purchase act of 1934.

Section 2. Silver required to be delivered.—There shall be delivered in accordance with the terms of this order all silver situated in the continental United States on the effective date hereof, except silver falling within any of the following categories so long as it continues to fall thereunder:

(a) Silver coins, whether foreign or domestic.

(b) Silver of a fineess of .8 or less, which has not entered into industrial, commercial, professional, artistic, or monetary use.

(c) Silver mined after December 21, 1933, from natural deposits in the United States or any place subject to the jurisdiction thereof; provided, however, that so much of silver so mined in the continental United States on or before the effective date of this order which shall not have been deposited with a United States mint under the proclamation of December 21, 1933, shall, if processed to a fineness greater than .8 within 75 days from the effective date of this order, be delivered in accordance with this order, not later than 90 days from the effective date hereof, or if processed to a fineness greater than .8 after 75 days from the effective date of this order, be delivered within 15 days thereafter in accordance with this order.

(d) Silver held for industrial, professional, or artistic use and unmelted scrap silver and silver sweepings in an amount not exceeding in the aggregate 500 fine troy ounces belonging to any one person.

(e) Silver owned on the effective date hereof by a recognized foreign government, foreign central bank, or the Bank of International Settlements;

(f) Silver contained in articles fabricated and held in good faith for a specific and customary use and not for their value as silver bullion; or

(g) Silver held under a license issued in accordance with section 6 hereof.

Delivery Time Set 90 Days From Date.

Section 3. Time and place of delivery.—The silver required to be delivered hereunder shall be delivered not later than 90 days from the effective date hereof to the United States Mint nearest to the place where the silver is situated immediately prior to delivery; provided that such silver temporarily falling within the exempt categories enumerated in section 2, shall be delivered at the end of 90 days from the effective date hereof, or 15 days after the time when it ceases to fall within such categories, whichever date is later. Any person acquiring ownership, possession, or control of silver required to be delivered under this order after 75 days from the effective date hereof, shall deliver such silver within 15 days of such acquisition.

Section 4. Amount returnable for silver—The silver herein required to be delivered shall be coined into standard silver dollars, or otherwise added to the monetary stocks of the United States in accordance with the the proclamation, bearing the same date as this order, relating to the coinage of silver, and there shall be returned therefor in standard silver dollars, silver certificates, or any other coin or currency of the United States, the monetary value of the silver so delivered (that is, $1.2929+ a fine ounce), less a deduction of 61 8/25 per cent thereof for seigniorage, brassage, coinage and other mint charges, as provided in such proclamation; that is, the amount returnable for the silver delivered in accordance herewith shall be an amount equal to 50+c a fine troy ounce, which amount is not less than the fair value, at the time of this order, of the silver required to be delivered hereunder as determined by the market price over a reasonable period terminating at the time of this order.

Section 5. Reimbursement of costs.—The Secretary of the Treasury shall pay all necessary costs, actually incurred, of the transportation of such silver and standard silver dollars, silver certificates, and other coin or currency of the United States including the cost of insurance, protection, and such other incidental costs as may be reasonably necessary. Persons desiring reimbursement of such costs shall submit their accounts on voucher forms which may be obtained by writing to the Treasurer of the United States, Washington, D. C.

Secretary of Treasury To Issue Licenses.

Section 6. Licenses.—The Secretary of the Treasury, subject to such regulations as he may prescribe, acting directly or through such agency or agencies as he may designate, shall issue licenses authorizing the withholding of silver which the Secretary of the Treasury, or such agency as he may designate, is satisfied

(a) is required for legitimate and customary use in industry, profession, or art by a person regularly engaged in such industry, profession, or art or in the business of processing silver or furnishing silver therefor;

(b) has been imported for reexport; or

(c) is required to fulfill an obligation to deliver silver in such amount to a third person, incurred or assumed by the applicant on or before the effective date of this order; provided that, at the date of the application, the applicant owns such silver or holds the obligation of another to deliver to him such silver.

The Secretary of the Treasury may, with the approval of the President, issue licenses authorizing the withholding of silver for purposes deemed to be in the public interest and not inconsistent with the purposes of the Silver Purchase Act of 1934 and of this order.

Section 7. Deliveries in fulfillment of obligations or to licensees—No person required to deliver silver owned by him or in his possession or control shall be deemed to have failed to comply with the provisions of this order, if such silver is delivered in fulfillment of an obligation incurred or assumed by such person on or before the effective date of this order or is delivered to a person licensed to acquire and withhold silver in such an amount under Section 6.

Section 8. Definitions—As used in this order the term "person" means an individual, partnership, association, or corporation.

The term "continental United States" means the States of the United States, the District of Columbia, and the Territory of Alaska.

United States Mint, Philadelphia, Pa.

United States Assay Office, New York, N. Y.

United States Assay Office, Seattle, Wash.

United States Mint, New Orleans, La.

Withheld Silver May Be Confiscated.

Section 9. Penalties and forfeitures—All persons are hereby informed of the following provisions of section 7 of the silver purchase act of 1934 with respect to penalties and forfeitures:

"* * * Any silver withheld in violation of any Executive order issued under this section or of any regulations issued pursuant thereto shall be forfeited to the United States, and may be seized and condemned by like proceedings as those provided by law for the forfeiture, seizure and condemnation of property imported into the United States contrary to law; and, in addition, any person failing to comply with the provisions of any such Executive order or regulation shall be subject to a penalty equal to twice the monetary value of the silver in respect of which such failure occurred."

This order shall bear the date of, and becomes effective on, the day on which the Secretary or Acting Secretary of State countersigns and deposits this order so countersigned in the office of the Secretary of State, as a part of the archives of the Nation.

This order may be modified or revoked at any time.

FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT.

Countersigned, by direction of the President, this ninth day of August, 1934.

CORDELL HULL,
Secretary of State.

The following is the text of President Roosevelt's proclamation on the nationalization of silver:

Whereas, by paragraph (2) of section 43, Title III, of the act of Congress, approved May 12, 1933 (Public No. 10), as amended by the gold reserve act of 1934, the President is authorized "by proclamation to fix the weight of the gold dollar in grains nine-tenths fine and also to fix the weight of the silver dollar in grains nine-tenths fine at a definite fixed ratio in relation to the gold dollar at such amounts as he finds necessary from his investigation to stabilize domestic prices or to protect the foreign commerce against the adverse effect of depreciated foreign currencies, and to provide for the unlimited coinage of such gold and silver at the ratio so fixed * * *;" and "the President, in addition to the authority to provide for the unlimited coinage of silver at the ratio so fixed, under such terms and conditions as he may prescribe, is further authorized to cause to be issued and delivered to the tenderer of silver for coinage, silver certificates in lieu of the standard silver dollars to which the tenderer would be entitled and in an amount in dollars equal to the number of coined standard silver dollars that the tenderer of such silver for coinage would receive in standard silver dollars;" and "the President is further authorized to issue silver certificates in such denominations as he may prescribe against any silver bullion, or standard silver dollars in the Treasury not then held for redemption of any outstanding silver certificates, and to coin standard silver dollars or subsidiary currency for the redemption of such silver certificates;" and

Whereas, the silver purchase act of 1934, approved June 19, 1934, provided in Sections 2, 5 and 7, in part, as follows:

"Sec. 2. It is hereby declared to be the policy of the United States that the proportion of silver to gold in the monetary stocks of the United States should be increased, with the ultimate objective of having and maintaining, one-fourth of the monetary value of such stocks in silver."

Silver Certificates' Issuance Authorized.

"Sec. 5. The Secretary of the Treasury is authorized and directed to issue silver certificates in such denominations as he may from time to time prescribe in a face amount not less than the cost of all silver purchased under the authority of Section 3, and such certificates shall be placed in actual circulation. There shall be maintained in the Treasury as security for all silver certificates heretofore or hereafter issued and at the time outstanding an amount of silver in bullion and standard silver dollars of a monetary value equal to the face amount of such silver certificates. All silver certificates heretofore or hereafter issued shall be legal tender for all debts, public and private, public charges, taxes, duties and dues, and shall be redeemable on demand at the Treasury of the United States in standard silver dollars; and the Secretary of the Treasury is authorized to coin standard silver dollars for such redemption."

"Sec. 7. Whenever in the judgment of the President such action is necessary to effectuate the policy of this act, he may by Executive order require the delivery to the United States Mints of any or all silver by whomever owned or possessed. The silver so delivered shall be coined into standard silver dollars or otherwise added to the monetary stocks of the United States as the President may determine; and there shall be returned therefor in standard silver dollars, or any other coin or currency of the United States, the monetary value of the silver so delivered less such deductions for seigniorage, brassage, coinage, and other mint charges as the Secretary of the Treasury with the approval of the President shall have determined: Provided, that in no case shall the value of the amount returned therefor be less than the fair value at the time of such order of the silver required to be delivered as such value is determined by the market price over a reasonable period terminating at the time of such order. * * *"

Mints to Take Over All Domestic Silver.

Now, therefore, finding it necessary, in my judgment, to effectuate the policy of the silver purchase act of 1934, to assist in increasing and stabilizing domestic prices, to protect our foreign commerce against the adverse effect of depreciated foreign currencies, and to promote the objectives of the proclamation of December 21, 1933, relating to the coinage of silver; by virtue of the power in me vested by the acts of Congress above cited, and other legislation designated for National recovery and by virtue of all other authority in me vested;

I, Franklin D. Roosevelt, President of the United States of America, do proclaim and direct that each United States Mint shall receive for coinage or for addition to the monetary stocks of the United States, as hereinafter determined, any silver which such mint, subject to regulations prescribed hereunder by the Secretary of the Treasury, is satisfied was situated on the effective date hereof in the continental United States, including the Territory of Alaska.

The silver so delivered shall be added to the monetary stocks of the United Sttes and shall be coined from time to time into standard silver dollars in such amounts as are required to carry out the provisions of this proclamation and to provide for the redemption of silver certificates; and there shall be returned therefor in standard silver dollars, silver certificates, or any other coin or currency of the United States, the monetary value of the silver so delivered (that is, $1.2929+ a fine troy ounce), less a deduction of 61 8-25 per cent thereof for seigniorage, brassage, coinage and other mint charges, such deduction having been determined by the Secretary of the Treasury with my approval.

Newly Mined Silver To Stay at Same Price.

The provisions hereof are supplemental to the provisions of the proclamation of the 21st day of December, 1933, and the United States coinage mints shall continue to receive for coinage in accordance with the provisions of such proclamation silver which such mint, subject to regulations prescribed thereunder by the Secretary of the Treasury, is satisfied has been mined subsequently to the date of such proclamation, from natural deposits in the United States or any place subject to the jurisdiction thereof: Provided, however, That the Director of the Mint shall, at the option of the tenderer of such silver, deliver silver certificates in lieu of the standard silver dollars to which the tender of such silver for coinage would be entitled and in an amount in dollars equal to the coined standard silver dollars that the tenderer of such silver for coinage would receive in standard silver dollars.

The Secretary of the Treasury is authorized to prescribe regulations to carry out the purposes of this proclamation.

Notice is hereby given that I reserve the right by virtue of the authority vested in me to revoke or modify this porclamation as the interest of the United States may seem to require.

This proclamation shall bear the date of, and becomes effective on, the day on which the Secretary or Acting Secretary of State countersigns the same, affixes thereto the seal of the United States, and deposits this proclamation so countersigned and sealed in the office of the Secretary of State, as a part of the archives of the Nation.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand.

FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT.

By the President; and countersigned and sealed with the seal of the United States, by direction of the President, this 9th day of August, in the year of our Lord nineteen hundred and thirty-four, and of the independence of the United States of America the one hundred and fifty-ninth.

CORDELL HULL,
Secretary of State.

Coins and Metal Used in Industry Exempt From Action.

Pittman Sees $1.29 As Eventual Price

Reno, Nev., Aug. 9 (AP).—Senator Key Pittman (Democrat), greeted President Roosevelt's proclamation nationalizing silver today with the statement that it will lead to events which eventually "will settle this silver question forever."

The Nevada Senator, who led the Senate fight for the 1934 Administration bill under which the President's action was taken, halted in the middle of a busy day campaigning for reelection to study the entire text of the proclamation.

"Action on the proclamation," he said, "may add another hundred millions of ounces of silver to our monetary silver in the Treasury.

"It is a process that will hasten the complete absorption of the silver surplus in the world. As this surplus is absorbed in the Treasury of the United States, the price of silver will steadily rise until it reaches $1.29 an ounce.

"Then the governments of the world will be in a position to open their mints for unlimited coinage at the ratio that exists in the United States.

$1 to more than $3. Foreign exchange speculators sold dollars, and the American currency dropped to a discount in terms of European gold currencies for the first time since last May.

Wheat and Corn Gain.

The recent advance in principal commodities, inspired first by crop damage from the drought, seemed to draw renewed vigor from the silver news. Corn, which has suffered from the extreme temperatures of the last few days, rose another 3 cents a bushel, and wheat closed with gains of around 1½ cents. Cotton, after slipping back in profit taking on yesterday's sharp rise, rose nearly $1 a bale, reaching new high levels since 1930.

The first immediate effect of the silver nationalization was the suspension of trading in silver futures in New York, probably permanently. Handy & Harman, leading bullion brokers, said they would continue to quote silver for use industrially. The New York silver futures market was started in 1931, and became one of the world's leading speculative markets in the white metal. With speculation ended here, the principal world markets will be London and Shanghai.

Prophets Cautious.

Wall street monetary authorities were reluctant to forecast the more distant implications of the silver nationalization. It was pointed out that it clearly gave the metal the most important legal monetary status it has enjoyed any any major Western country in half a century.

The taking over of the domestic stocks of silver presumably represented a step toward active buying of the metal in world markets, to increase the proportion of silver metallic reserves to 25 per cent of the total metal reserves held against currency, which was the objective set in the silver-purchase legislation enacted by the last Congress.

Therefore, much higher world prices of silver might be expected, it was pointed out, if the Treasury actively pursues its purchasing program. Silverites generally hold that this would increase the purchasing power of China, although many economists disagree with this view.

See Bank Reserve Gain.

The issue of silver certificates against the silver which the Treasury buys, some banking authorities thought, would have the effect chiefly of increasing bank reserves, inasmuch as the silver certificates given in payment to holders of silver would presumably quickly come to the banks in the form of deposits, and be used by them to increase their reserves with the Federal Reserve Banks.

How much silver the Treasury will get in calling all the stocks remained problematical, owing to the lack of any official figures as to the amount existing.

Issuing silver certificates against this metal to the extent of its cost, or 50.01 cents an ounce, the figure at which it is being nationalized, would mean an issue of currency of approximately $75,000,000, or scarcely enough to have any notable effect upon the country's monetary position. Total money in circulation currently is in excess of $5,300,000,000, and the Reserve System could issue billions more against the current gold reserves, if member banks could use it.

Move Puzzles London; Dollar Value Slumps

London, Aug. 9 (AP).—Nationalization of silver in the United States today found London financial circles frankly puzzled. There was speculation as to whether the move had any connection with recent heavy purchases of the metal here.

The most striking immediate effect in London was the pounding down of the dollar to 5.07 to the pound, a drop of 1 15-16 cents from the official close.

Even American business men in London, who always watch the trends in Washington closely, were puzzled and declined to predict how the London and Indian silver markets would react.

A prominent bullion broker said: "It yet remains to be seen if America will adopt a policy of buying silver in foreign markets, with a view to forcing up world prices."

He expressed the view that recent buying was linked with such a policy and added "it may involve speculative buying from India, but prices in India largely depend on the dollar and should the dollar weaken, the price of silver would be affected."

Austrian Warning Given Von Papen

Don't Meddle in Internal Affairs, Envoy Is Told.

Vienna, Aug. 9 (AP).—A warning to Franz von Papen not to mix in Austria's internal affairs when he arrives as German Minister was broadcast throughout Europe tonight by Col. Adam, Austrian propaganda chief.

"The success of the mission of Von Papen, who will be greeted in Vienna not as a special representative of Chancellor Hitler but as the minister from Germany," he said, "can depend upon nothing other than fulfilling the demand for honoring complete, legal, political independence of Austria, avoiding any interference with internal conditions even through social relationships."

Adam accused the German press of treating the putschists in the outbreak in which Chancellor Dollfuss was killed as heroes.

Wearing Robe on Street Causes Bishop's Arrest

Mexico City, Aug. 9 (AP).—The Zacateca corespondent of the newspaper Universal reported today that Bishop Ignacio Plascencia y Moreira had been arrested on a charge of appearing in the streets wearing ecclesiastical robes.

The law permits the robes being worn only within the church. The correspondent said the bishop was released from custody pending a hearing after he had posted sufficient cash to cover a possible fine.

THOMAS ENDS DANDRUFF GROWS HAIR

Dandruff clogs the hair follicle, causes itchy scalp, falling hair, and keeps new hair from replacing hair which has dropped out. Because there are several types of dandruff, cure-all surface remedies usually do not correct the trouble. One of the most dangerous types of dandruff is caused by a germ deep in the scalp, known as "flask bacilli of Unna."

Thomas treatment attacks this destructive germ by modern therapeutic agents and restores the scalp to a normal healthy condition. When your scalp is once rid of baldness producing germs, hairfall stops, and new hair starts to grow again. Call at a Thomas office today for a free scalp examination and learn for yourself just how Thomas treatment can make your scalp healthy.

Mullen appeared mysteriously aboard the Presidential train out in Montana, rode for a few hours and then dropped off. Presumably he persuaded Mr. Roosevelt to make this anonymous gesture toward his candidate with the intention of having it reprinted throughout Nebraska fully credited to its author, thus parading him as being in full harmony with the New Deal Administration.

Disregards Party Labels.

In such ways, President Roosevelt is exerting his powerful influence on the fall elections, to the end of returning a New Deal Congress without paying much attention to party labels. In California it is the Republican Hiram Johnson, who has won the Administration blessing. In Minnesota the President is benevolently neutral regarding the Farmer-Labor Senator Henrik Shipstead. Mr. Roosevelt refused to indorse his Democratic opponent or even make a reference to the Democratic ticket while in the State earlier this week. In Wisconsin it is the Progressive, La Follette, and only those Democrats who wear New Deal colors who are admitted to the new political knighthood.

As reported in these dispatches since the President arrived at Portland, Mr. Roosevelt is now intent on pushing his public works program forward on herculean lines, which he says will take a generation to complete. This and his social legislation program tower so far above mere party politics in his mind that labels now mean little.

Tonight Mr. Roosevelt was rolling across the Eastern half of the continent, scheduled to reach Washington before noon, ending a six weeks' absence, which has carried him over a 15,000-mile journey by land and water, the longest Presidential trip on record. Since he landed at Portland a week ago and began his overland journey, he has been greeted by large applauding crowds which have increased as he has entered the more populous States.

Great Throng at Milwaukee.

At Milwaukee, when his train paused in the railroad station, he looked out on a mass of faces which packed every inch of ground, filled all windows within sight, fringed bridges, roofs, signboards, automobile tops.

Everywhere throngs stood in 100-degree sun for hours waiting. At 3 a. m. the train went through small cities where hundreds were waiting—knowing there was no chance of seeing Mr. Roosevelt—but still willing to wait just for a look at the Presidential train.

These are the people to whom he addressed his speech today—not to the executives in the high office buildings, the banks, the exclusive clubs. He appealed to the "average man," who in his permanent program now replaces the "forgotten man" of the emergency period, who has been moved up to the head of the parade.

He deftly seized upon the 300th anniversary of the landing of Jean Nicolet at Green Bay, and the Wisconsin pioneers, to picture them as the first New Dealers, and the spiritual ancestors of his own program. He described them as seeking a life less fettered by exploitation. They sought, he said, wider opportunity for the average man.

Dictatorship Fear Scouted.

Thinking apparently of those who have hurled the cry of dictatorship, he said the pioneers did not fear government because they knew that government in the New World was their own. Then he described Wisconsin as the State which "set up against all selfish private interests the organized authority of the people themselves through the State, transforming utilities into public servants instead of private means of exploitation," and on which he had drawn for ideas at Washington.

Expanding his theme, Mr. Roosevelt said that in Wisconsin and in the Nation at large, people had a two-fold battle. One was with Nature, the attempt to control it. He declared that on his present trip across the country he has become strengthened in his belief that science and cooperation can provide better use of land and water resources which have been given "us to use as trustees not only for ourselves but for future generations."

The other battle, Mr. Roosevelt said, was against "those forces which disregard human cooperation and human rights in seeking that kind of individual profit which is gained at the expense of his fellows."

Sound economic improvement, he declared, comes from the improved conditions of the whole population and not a small fraction of it.

Honest Business Reassured.

"This Government," he said, "intends no injury to honest business. The processes we follow in seeking social justice do not in adding to general prosperity take from one and give to another."

Those who have been urging that he give the country some message which would restore "confidence," were referred by Mr. Roosevelt to the average man. Returning confidence, he said, was to be found among the farmers who were cooperating in the Administration program, among manufacturers who, Mr. Roosevelt said, are using black ink instead of red, among workers who have been benefited by NRA; among unemployed who have been given work or relief, among youngsters saved from child labor, among bankers and business men who cooperate in following the golden rule, among home owners who have been saved from foreclosure and among small investors whose savings are secure for the first time.

"There is no lack of confidence on the part of those business men, farmers and workers who clearly read the signs of the times," Mr. Roosevelt said.

Tooth and Claw Outlawed.

As if answering Republican National Chairman Henry P. Fletcher, and other Republican spokesmen, Mr. Roosevelt said that to relinquish Government supervision of business activities would mean a return to the old law of the tooth and claw.

"The people of the United States will not restore that ancient order," he added.

Prof. Ray Moley, original organizer of the Brain Trust, traveled West to meet the Presidential train and rode with Mr. Roosevelt several hours to advise him concerning the speech, a fact not without meaning to those who seek to plot the future course of the Administration.

Mr. Roosevelt delivered his address with exceptional earnestness. As he stepped out on the platform at Green Bay and faced the huge throng gathered on the shore, his face bore something of that same serious cast which it carried when he delivered his inaugural address, in contrast to the gay, smiling demeanor which the public generally sees. He was interrupted repeatedly by applause and occasional cheering.

Salute Resembles Fascists'.

As he finished he threw up his arm in a gesture which is characteristic but which to those who were contemplating the significance of the words he had just uttered, bore striking resemblance to the Fascist salute. Many in the crowd returned the gesture with upraised arms. This phenomenon, an entirely natural one, also was noticeable yesterday as Mr. Roosevelt motored through Minnesota. Along the crowds as his car went by a line of hands shot up, in response to his own extended arm.

Mr. Roosevelt's speech today was the result of long and thoughtful preparation. He had it in mind before he left Washington six weeks ago. During his long ocean cruise he was alone for the first time since he took office. Only his sons, Franklin, jr., and John, both youths, were around him. He lay for hours at a time stretched out in an easy chair in the sun—not reading, not talking to anyone, just gazing out at the horizon far across the blue water. He had, as he had promised in his radio talk just before he left, gone away where he could see the forest instead of the trees.

Made Decision Then.

No one knows what went through his mind during those long hours of solitary reflection. But he must have been taking stock. He must have thought back over the depression, the launching of his recovery program and the implications of many of the things he has done. If he was ever going to turn back this was the time to do it—to let the emergency program taper off, gradually fade out, and the country return to the relative freedom from Washington supervision which existed previously. He had, in addition to the strictly emergency measures, enacted stock market and securities reforms and bank deposit insurance, thus providing machinery for correcting the most obvious weaknesses which he had blamed for much of the country's trouble.

This was a logical stopping point if he was to stop. The question was should he stop there or go ahead. It was a momentous decision. How much hesitation there was, if any, before he made his decision is not known. But it was necessary that he in the very near future take the situation into his confidence and indicate his future course.

Takes Time by Forelock.

A Congressional election was approaching. Republicans have been saying that he had no mandate in the last election to make fundamental reforms. This time, if he were to go ahead it would be well to have a mandate in clear terms so there could be no question next winter. This time—if not in 1932—the country goes into the next period of the Administration with its eyes open and if it returns a New Deal Congress, it knows what it will get.

Mr. Roosevelt has not waited for 1936 to bring the issue to a head. He has taken time by the forelock and precipitated it now.

New Kind of Nudist.

St. Louis (U.P.).—It was 4 a. m. A drowsy sandwich shop attendant turned to greet a customer. To his amazement he saw a man utterly nude, but not, he later explained, a nudist. He had been robbed by a Negro in an alley, he said, and was forced to disrobe.

Text of President's Address in Wisconsin

Pledges New Deal Will Remain Permanent U. S. Fixture.

Green Bay, Wis., Aug. 9 (AP).—The following is text of President Roosevelt's address today at Green Bay:

I am glad to take part in the commemoration of the landing in Green Bay of the man who can truly be called the first white pioneer of Wisconsin.

Over all the years the purposes of the men and women who established civilization in Wisconsin and in the Northwest were the same as those that stimulated the earlier settlers of the Atlantic seaboard. Men everywhere throughout Europe had suffered from the imperfect and often unjust governments of their home lands, and were driven by deep desire to find security and enlarged opportunity for themselves and their children. The new population flowing into our new lands of opportunity was a mixed population, differing often in language, in external customs and in habits of thought. But in one thing they were alike—they shared a deep purpose to rid themselves forever of the jealousies, the prejudices, the intrigues and the violence, whether internal or external, that disturbed their lives abroad.

They sought a life less fettered by the exploitations that selfish men set up in governments that are not free. They sought a wider opportunity for the average man.

New Governments Were Further Adventure.

Having achieved the initial adventure of migration to new homes, they moved forward to the further adventure of establishing forms of government and methods of operating these forms of government that might assure them the things that they sought. They believed that man, out of their intelligence and their self-discipline, could create and use forms of government that would not enslave the human spirit, but free it and nourish it. They did not fear government, because they knew that government in the new world was their own.

They built here in Wisconsin a State destined for extraordinary achievements. They set up institutions to enforce law and order, to care for the unfortunate, to promote the arts of industry and agriculture. They built a university and school system as enlightened as any that the world affords. They set up against all selfish private interests the organized authority of the people themselves through the State. They transformed utilities into public servants instead of private means of exploitation.

The average man in Wisconsin waged a long and bitter fight for his rights. Here, and in the Nation at large, this battle has been two-fold.

Nature, Reactionaries Both Opposed.

He has had to fight nature. From the time that the settlers started to clear the land until now, he has been compelled to assert the power of his brains and courage over the blind powers of the wind and the sun and the soil. He paid no heed to the reactionaries who would tell him that mankind must stand impotent before the forces of nature. Year after year, as science progressed and his mastery of the mysteries of the physical universe increased, he had been turning nature, once his hard master, into useful servitude.

That is why, on this trip across the northern part of our continent, I have been so moved by the distressing effects of a widespread drought and at the same time so strengthened in my belief that science and cooperation can do much from now on to undo the many mistakes men have made in the past and to aid the good forces of nature and the good impulses of men instead of fighting against them.

We are but carrying forward the pioneering spirit of the fathers when we apply the pioneering methods to the better use of vast land and water resources—what God has given us to use as trustees not only for ourselves but for future generations.

But man is fighting also those forces which disregard human cooperation and human rights in seeking that kind of individual profit which is gained at the expense of his fellows.

Civilization's Growth Seen in Cooperation.

It is just as hard to achieve harmonious and cooperative action among human beings as it is to conquer the forces of nature. Only through the submerging of individual desires into unselfish and practical cooperation can civilization grow.

In the great National movement that culminated in 1932, people joined with enthusiasm. They lent hand and voice to the common cause. Irrespective of many older political traditions, they saw the dawn of a new day. They were on the march; they were coming back into the possession of their own homeland.

As the humble instruments of their vision and power, those of us who were chosen to serve them in 1932 turned to the great task.

In one year and five months, the people of the United States have received at least a partial answer to their demands for action and neither the demand nor the action has reached the end of the road.

But action may be delayed by two types of individuals. Let me cite examples: First there is the man whose objectives are wholly right and wholly progressive, but who declines to cooperate or even to discuss methods of arriving at the objectives because he insists on his own methods and nobody else's.

Plea for Confidence Restorative Answered.

The other type to which I refer is the individual who demands some message to the people of the United States that will restore what he calls "confidence." When I hear this I can not help but remember the pleas made by Government and certain types of so-called "big business" all through the years 1930, 1931 and 1932 that the only thing lacking in the United States was confidence.

Before I left on my trip I received two letters from important men, both of them pleading that I say something to restore confidence. To both of them I wrote identical answers: "What would you like to have me say?" From one of them I have received no reply at all six weeks later. I take it that he is still wondering how to answer. The other man wrote me frankly that in his judgment the way to restore confidence was for me to declare that all supervision by all forms of Government, Federal and State, over all forms of human activity called business should be forthwith abolished.

In other words, he was frank enough to imply that he would repeal all laws, State or National, which regulate business—that a utility could henceforth charge any rate, reasonable or otherwise; that the railroads could go back to rebates and other secret agreements; that the processors of foodstuffs could disregard all rules of health and of good faith; that the unregulated wild-cat banking of a century ago could be restored; that fraudulent securities and watered stock could be palmed off on the public; that stock manipulation which caused panics and enriched insiders could go unchecked. In fact, if we were to listen to him, the old law of the tooth and the claw would reign once more.

Pledges No Return To Ancient Order.

My friends, the people of the United States will not restore that ancient order. There is no lack of confidence on the part of those business men, farmers and workers who clearly read the signs of the times. Sound economic improvement comes from the improved condition of the whole population and not a small fraction thereof.

Those who would measure confidence in this country in the future must look first to the average citizen.

Confidence is returning to our agricultural population, in spite of unpredictable and uncontrollable drought in a large area, is giving understanding cooperation to practical planning and the ending of the useless bickering and sectional thinking of the past. Confidence is returning to the manufacturers who, in overwhelming numbers, are comparing the black ink of today with the red ink of many years gone by; to the workers who have achieved under the National Recovery Administration heights for which they have fought unsuccessfully for a generation; to the men and women whose willing hands found no work and who have been saved from starvation by Government relief; to the youngsters whose childhood has been saved to them by the abolition of child labor; to the fair and sincere bankers and financiers and business men, big and little, who now, for the first time, find Government cooperating with them in new attempts to put the Golden Rule into the temples of finance; to the home owners who have been saved from the stark threat of foreclosure and to the small investors and savers of the Nation who, for the first time, rightly believe that their savings are secure.

Robbing Peter to Pay Paul Avoided.

These are the elements that make for confidence in the future. This Government intends no injury to honest business. The processes we follow in seeking social justice do not in adding to general prosperity take from one and give to another. In this modern world, the spreading out of opportunity ought not to consist of robbing Peter to pay Paul. We are concerned with more than mere sugtraction and addition. We are concerned with the multiplication of wealth through cooperative action—wealth in which all can share.

These high purposes must be accompanied by cooperation among those charged by the people with the duties of Government. I am glad to be in a State from which I have greatly drawn in setting up the permanent and temporary agencies of Government.

Your two Senators, both old friends of mine, and many others have worked with me in maintaining excellent cooperation between the executive and the legislative branches of the Government. I take this opportunity of expressing my gratitude to them.

Not only in Washington but in the States there has been cooperation by public officials in the achievement of the purposes we seek. I thank Gov. Schmedeman, another old friend of mine, for his patriotic cooperation with the National Administration.

New Deal Declared Old as Christian Ethics.

We who support this New Deal do so because it is a square deal and because it is essential to the perservation of security and happiness of a free country. I like its definition by a member of the Congress. He said: "The New Deal is an old deal—as old as the earliest aspirations of humanity for liberty and justice and the good life. It is old as Christian ethics, for basically its ethics are the same. It is new as the Declaration of Independence was new, and the Constitution of the United States; its motives are the same. It voices the deathless cry of good men and good women for the opportunity to live and work in freedom, the right to be secure in their homes and in the fruits of their labor, the power to protect themselves against the ruthless and the cunning. It recognizes that man is indeed his brother's keeper, insists that the laborer is worthy of his hire, demands that justice shall rule the mighty as well as the weak.

"It seeks to cement our society, rich and poor, manual workers and brain workers, into a voluntary brotherhood of freemen, standing together, striving together, for the common good of all."

Keep that vision before your eyes and in your hearts; it can and will be attained.

Wide World Photo.

Beauty Parlor Is Mental Aid

Hospital Finds Treatment Helpful to Women Patients.

Hastings, Nebr. (U.P.).—Use of the beauty parlor as an aid in curing mental ailments is being successfully incorporated in treatments at the Hastings State Hospital, where a fully equipped shop is in operation.

All day long Miss Olive Reech, employed at the institution as a cosmetologist, applies mud packs, massages, hair waves and other beauty aids for women patients.

Almost 200 patients a month come under her ministering fingers.

The beauty parlor is not only of psychological value, but also is a sound investment from the standpoint of the taxpayer, is the belief of Dr. J. C. Nielsen, superintendent of the institution. Dr. Nielsen had a similar beauty parlor in operation at the Norfolk State Hospital before coming to the Hastings institution.

"Modern treatment of mental patients resembles only in part the treatment of 50 years ago," Dr. Nielsen said in explaining the use of beauty treatments in the work.

"Talking Book" Demonstrated.

Cleveland (U.P.).—A new "talking book" for the blind, in the form of a long-playing phonograph record, was demonstrated here under auspices of the Welfare Association of the Sightless of Ohio. Through the new method of recording, two and one-half hours of reading can be inscribed on a double record, making possible the recording of an average book on three or four double records. J. Robert Atkinson, Los Angeles, founder and vice president of the Braille Institute of America, conducted the demonstration.

Roosevelt a Regular Fellow, Take It From Houston Seaman

Lowell, Mass., Aug. 9 (AP).—Take it from Chief Petty Officer G. M. Mitchell, of the U. S. S. Houston, President Roosevelt is a regular fellow.

Mitchell, turret captain aboard the big cruiser which was the President's floating home during his cruise to Hawaii, jotted down his impressions in a letter just received by his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Greene.

There was the time, for instance, when Mitchell and others were assigned to see that the President got safely ashore on Cocos Island in the Pacific, where the Presidential fisherman had a field day.

"The President's boat came in as near as possible to where we stood in water up to our chins," wrote Mitchell.

"We lifted the President out of his boat and tried to keep him out of the water but somehow we dropped him a little and he got wet.

"He just laughed, however, and said for us not to worry as he liked the water."

* * * "He is certainly one of the most appreciative men I have ever met. A fine looking man and very sociable. We have to watch ourselves as we are almost tempted to treat him as one of the bunch.

"Last evening we had movies and he sat right in with the men, laughing and joking."

And then there was a story the President told the crew.

It seems that during the World War the President, then Assistant Secretary of the Navy, was inspecting American destroyers at the Queenstown (Ireland) naval base. American sailors had been getting along pretty well with Irish girls at Cork, and the Cork lads used to run the sailors out of town with not a few cracked heads and knuckles.

It was after one of these affairs that Mr. Roosevelt was visiting a destroyer, Mitchell wrote, and "in the machine shop he noticed something covered over with canvas. The canvas was pulled back and there was exposed the greatest collection of brass knuckles, lead pipes and blackjacks the President had ever seen.

"The chief in charge of the shop was called, and when asked what this meant, replied:

"'Well, sir, these are for the next week-end party to Cork.'"

Three Named to School Board.

Leesburg, Va., Aug. 9 (Spl.).—Dr. J. B. Hackley, of Purcellville; William Groom, of Sterling, and Alfred di Zerega, of Leesburg, have been appointed members of the Loudoun County school trustee electoral board by Judge J. R. H. Alexander, of the Loudoun County Circuit Court. They will serve four years.

Cost of NRA Is $7,820,660; Cut Forecast

$35,000,000 Wanted for Code Leaders to Carry On.

(Associated Press.)

The Government has spent $7,820,660 on NRA, and industries and businesses have been asked for $35,000,000 to pay operating expenses of their various codes.

Officials said yesterday that NRA had given full or conditional approval to expenditure of $9,500,000 for codes and was busy checking requests of code authorities for collection of the remainder of the $35,000,000 from code members.

Most of the budgets include contemplated expenditures by code authorities to the end of 1934 or the spring of 1935.

U. S. Buying Power.

Balanced against costs on the books of the NRA are its estimates that the codes have added $3,000,000,000 to the Nation's buying power and given jobs to 3,000,000 persons and that other benefits also have accrued.

Officials said the $7,820,660 covered "everything" since the NRA was established in mid-June, 1933.

Of that sum, they said, $3,929,164 went for regular pay rolls and other members of the staff employed on a per diem basis. Salaries of State directors and other field employes also were included.

With 520 codes completed and code-making scheduled to end this week, some reduction in Government outlays for NRA was predicted.

Methods approved by the Administration for collecting funds to meet code authority expenses vary.

The code authority for the retail trade, for instance, was authorized to collect 25 cents per employe from each code member, the money to be paid by the employer. Retail jewelry has a similar plan, with a contribution of $1 per employe scheduled to raise $25,648. Coffee will pay so much a bag, date-packing so much a box.

Largest Budget.

The biggest budget approved thus far was one of $2,750,000 for the general contractors division of the construction industry.

The smallest was $2,500 for the card clothing industry.

The largest of all code authority budgets proposed was that recently submitted by the lumber and timber products industry. It called for expenditures totaling $4,905,904 from August 19, 1933, to December 31, 1934. Expenses of scores of divisions scattered all over the country were included.

NRA conducts public hearings on the budgets and gives critics an opportunity to voice objections before deciding whether they should be approved.

Steady Downpour Cools Off Capital

Rain Lasting Over Hour Dips Mercury.

A steady downpour, which lasted for about an hour and a half yesterday, lowered temperatures 10 degrees in the District, while a cool wave, en route from Alaska and northwestern Canada with a cargo of relief for the sweltering Middle West, was far behind schedule.

Rainfall here totaled about .38 of an inch. The maximum reading was 84 degrees at noon, and the minimum was 72 at 6 a. m.

Today will be fair, without much change in temperatures, the Weather Bureau predicted.

Meanwhile, only South Dakota felt the promised relief of the cool wave predicted for the West. Temperatures soared to 100 again in many places, and the sun beat mercilessly from cloudless skies.

Missouri, which, with Kansas, has borne the brunt of the heat wave, again was the focal point of attack. Maryville, Mo., reported 113, while Jefferson City recorded 107.

The Associated Press reported St. Louis, Kansas City and Kirkville all with 106.

Martin Johnsons Find "Last Tribe"

Africans Believe Selves Only Race on Earth.

New York, Aug. 9 (AP).—The discovery of an African tribe of lake dwellers who believe themselves to be the only humans on earth was described today by Mr. and Mrs. Martin Johnson, who returned on the liner Manhattan from a 26-month air expedition through the Dark Continent.

This tribe lives on a small island in Lake Rudolph, which lies partly in Kenya and partly in Abyssinia. The Johnsons reached the lake, which hitherto they had found inaccessible, by using two amphibian planes.

Johnson described the tribe, which numbered 70 natives, as a "dying" remnant of the African race who were too stupid to be particularly interested in the arrival of white people from out of the air.

Tax Claims Hold Up Opera Stars' Baggage

Buenos Aires, Aug. 9 (AP).—Claims for taxes resulted today in judicial embargoes being placed upon the baggage and personal effects of two noted opera singers, Lily Pons and Tito Schipa.

A representative of Schipa said that the embargo was lifted after a settlement was made and Miss Pons was said to be making similar arrangements. The action was taken on petition of the income tax department, which stated that Miss Pons owes 16,595 pesos ($4,600) and Schipa, 3,563 pesos. Both have been appearing in concerts before packed houses.

Soldier Bonus Fight Doubtful, Hayes Asserts

(Associated Press.)

Commander Edward A. Hayes, of the American Legion, indicated yesterday that the bonus issue might be laid aside when the National convention meets at Miami in October.

Hayes did not reveal his attitude on the cash payment of the bonus, but he said:

"I have heard very little mention of the bonus in the State conventions I have attended."

A resolution urging bonus payment was pending at the legion convention in Chicago last year, but it failed of adoption after President Roosevelt addressed the gathering.

"The universal draft," Hayes said, "is likely to focus the attention of the delegates and the legion as a whole next year."

Universal service in time of war and utilization of all resources without profit to special groups constitute the principal points of the declaration of policy drawn up by the National rehabilitation committee on the basis of discussions in five regional conferences.

The program also calls for compensation for war disabilities and deaths, with hospitalization when required; restoration of disabled veterans to as much productivity as possible and adequate protection for widows and orphans when they are in need.

Hayes disclosed that for the first eight months this year the Legion's membership rolls showed some 40,000 more names than the total membership for all of 1933—approximately 811,000. Moreover, during the last four months of last year, he pointed out, around 50,000 members were added.

In addition, the commander said, the Legion Auxiliary is some 35,000 members ahead of its membership at this time last year, with 450,000 enrolled.

U. S. Tax Demand Closes Two Mills

500 Idle in Alabama as $28,000 Is Unpaid.

Birmingham, Ala., Aug. 9 (AP).—Two textile mills, one in Ozark and another in Enterprise, have been closed following demand of the Government for payment of approximately $28,000 it claims is due under the cotton processing tax.

Harwell G. Davis, collector of internal revenue, said the Government formally levied against the two mills after previous efforts to collect the tax had failed.

Approximately 13,000 spindles are in the two mills, employing 500 persons.

Your Friend Out? Police Find Him if You're a Senator

Oh, to be a Senator!

Because if you are a Senator and you want to locate someone who is driving an automobile somewhere about town you just have police broadcast a lookout and, presto, there he is.

Shortly after 1 p. m. yesterday every Metropolitan and park police radio car in the city received an urgent call to "look out for a Dodge coupe, D. C. V-7281, and to notify the operator, John A. Marion, to call Senator Byrnes at once."

It was a matter of only two or three hours until Mr. Marion was in the Senator's office.

"A purely personal matter," replied B. S. Whaley, secretary to the South Carolina Senator, when asked why Mr. Marion was wanted so urgently. "We received word from his family in York, S. C., that they wished him to communicate with them immediately.

"He was driving in my car, so I asked police if they would help find him. That was all."

Printer Kills Self With Gas

C. M. Young Puts Mother's Picture on Stove in Front of Him.

Placing his mother's picture on the stove in front of him, Curtis M. Young, 34, manager of a commercial printing company in the 900 block of I street northwest, committed suicide by inhaling gas early yesterday.

Young, who lived in the building which housed his shop, was found unconscious on the floor, and efforts of the fire rescue squad failed to revive him. He was pronounced dead by Emergency Hospital physicians.

Police found a note addressed to his business partner. It read:

"Good-by, Bill; life isn't worth living for. You can have my interest in the shop."

Maj. Shirley O. Elmore Dies Aboard Transport

Word was received at the War Department yesterday of the death of Maj. Shirley O. Elmore, Medical Corps, on Tuesday while on board the Army transport Republic en route to Honolulu.

Maj. Elmore was born in Crawfordsville, Ind., February 22, 1881. He was graduated from Creighton Medical College in Nebraska in 1907, and entered the service ten years later. At the time of his death he was on his way to take up station in Hawaii.

Politics Split D. C. Legion; 2 Seek Command

U. S. Department Home Dedicated by Hayes and Hines.

Politics divided the District Department of the American Legion as the second session of the sixteenth annual convention began at Paul Junior High School last night.

A hard fight is expected in selection of the successor of Rice W. Means as department commander. Two attorneys are the outstanding candidates.

National Commander Edward A. Hayes, other high legion officials, Gen. Frank T. Hines, veterans' administrator, and other prominent Washingtonians yesterday participated in dedication of the National Legion's Washington office at 1608 K street northwest.

Workers Seek Votes.

At the convention campaign workers for James O'Connor Roberts, of Stuart Walcott Post, and Joseph J. Malloy, of Sergt. Jasper Post, were lining up votes.

The convention heard reports of officers.

The resolutions committee will present a constitutional amendment which would make it possible for the Government to draft the entire resources of the Nation in case of war, it was learned.

Gen. Hines, speaking at the dedication exercises, praised the cooperative spirit existing between the Veterans' Administration and the legion.

"I know of no nation," he said, "which has gone so far for its veterans."

There will be greater problems for the legion to meet in the future, Gen. Hines said, adding that he felt sure the Washington office would justify its establishment.

145,000 Are Aided.

Watson B. Miller, chairman of the legion's rehabilitation committee, presided. He declared that at present 145,000 veterans and depnedents are being aided through this new office.

National Commander Hayes complimented the staff of the organization on its record, and said:

"Out in the hospitals thousands of veterans are eternally grateful to the rehabilitation division."

He stressed the need for cooperation with the Veterans' Administration.

"Lindy Law" Acts Swiftly

$10,000 Extortion Plotter Gets 10 Years in Col. Rogers Case.

New York, Aug. 9 (AP).—Indicted under the "Lindbergh law" for attempted extortion of $10,000 from Col. Henry H. Rogers, Standard Oil millionaire, John Cvaniga, 25, today pleaded guilty in Federal district court and was sentenced to serve ten years in the Northeastern Penitentiary at Lewisburg, Pa.

The indictment, plea and sentence all took place within a few hours, and Federal officials here said the case set a record for this district for prosecutions under the "Lindbergh law."

Cvaniga, born in Pueblo, Colo., completed the eighth grade in school. He came East then and worked as a gardener and chauffeur for several widely known families.

Assistant United States Attorney Charles T. Murphy said he was discharged by Col. Rogers after a dispute with Mrs. Rogers.

"The prisoner tells me," Murphy said, "that he was out of work and in desperate circumstances and the idea of obtaining $10,000 from Col. Rogers by extortion came to him."

Col. and Mrs. Rogers did not appear at the proceedings.

Cvaniga was arrested by police Tuesday night, after he had gone to a tailor shop to get a suitcase, left there by Col. Rogers upon his order and supposedly containing the $10,000 demanded.

Marks Broken For Attendance At Scout Camps

Roosevelt Will Remain Open Another Week; Picnics Planned.

Camping in the District of Columbia Council during the present season has broken all previous records. Camp Roosevelt leads in this activity with the largest Scout enrollment on record. So great has been the demand for reservations that the camp will remain open for an extra week until August 27.

Camp Wilson, the overnight camp of the District, located at Burnt Mills, Md., is also experiencing a most successful season, in spite of dry weather which stopped the swimming for several days. This situation, however, is better now and the camp is assured of sufficient water for swimming for the rest of the season.

Records for visitors have also been broken this year. At Roosevelt swarms appear every Sunday, the one day when visits are permitted. At Wilson, however, visitors are welcome each evening, from 5 to 8, also Saturday afternoons and Sundays.

Troop Picnics Popular.

Several troops are arranging picnics where parents and families of the Scouts join with the troop officials. Many locations are being used, but Troop 59 has chosen Camp Roosevelt, and 60 or more parents and friends are going with the troop to the camp for a one-day picnic September 9.

Capitol Division Get-Together.

The Capitol Division, formerly known as the Tenth Division, under leadership of District Commissioner Louis F. Nickel, is holding a get-together at Camp Wilson Thursday. The division is composed of Troops 28, 29, 35, 45, 71, 85, 97, 600, 601 and 606.

As a special feature David L. Rowe will tell stories of wild animals and their habits. Mr. Rowe is now connected with the Washington Zoo, where he specializes on snakes. He has spent years in travel in India and Africa. District Commissioner Nickel is arranging for transportation for those who need it.

Astronomy Night.

Several troops have lined up for Wednesday evening when U. S. Lyons, merit badge counsellor in astronomy, will show the Scouts some of the wonders of the stars. The number that can be accommodated is limited and Scouts should therefore notify headquarters if they desire to go.

Baltimore Camporal.

Registrations for the Baltimore Camporal must be in by Monday. The program is designed to show the latest tricks and stunts in camping, as well as the substantial and conservative ideas of overnight camping.

The Washington Scouts will leave by automobile or by the 9 o'clock train from the Union Station Friday, arriving in Herring Run Park in Baltimore in time to have their camps set up and dinner under way by noon. Patrols will be dismissed at 11 o'clock Sunday morning.

Potomac River Pollution.

The health and safety committee of the District of Columbia Council warns Scouts against swimming in the Potomac River, because of the pollution of this stream from open sewers and other causes.

Scouts Advance in Rank.

At the court of honor and review August 5 at Camp Roosevelt, the following Scouts advanced in rank:

Qualified for Merit Badges.

Illinois Speech Points Issues for National Campaign.

that the substitutes which the Administration is now offering for sound, economic governmental policies be abandoned, and there be a return to common sense and Constitutional government."

In his attack on the financing of recovery measures, Fletcher charged the Administration with "unprecedented profligacy," and contended that the expenditures had as yet shown no results.

"The expenditure of public funds has reached the point that reliable authorities state one person out of every six in the United States is receiving Government support in one form or another," he said.

"The Administration characterizes this as 'priming the pump.'

"There might be some shadow of excuse for this * * * if there were some indication that the pump were going to begin operating on its own. But there is no such indication."

Charges Broken Pledges.

"The danger now is that in obtaining funds with which to prime the pump we are drying up the streams of private resources and public credit."

Some the Republican advocate's sharpest phrases were hurled when, in courtroom fashion, he accused the Democrats of violating campaign pledges.

They had, he said, created a "dishonest dollar," enacted "State capitalism" and set up a "perfect wilderness of Government agencies.

He accused the Democratic party of "fostering monopoly" by the NRA, of evading a court test of the constitutionality of the recovery acts, and of "degrading agriculture" by curtailing the farmers' liberty.

The Republican leader defended figures on "New Deal" expenditures, cited when he addressed the G. O. P.'s birthday celebration in Jackson, Mich., on July 7, and criticized since as misleading.

Backs Up Statistics.

"The Treasury Department's own statement shows that the New Deal * * * has spent more than $7,000,000,000," he said. "I further stated that Congress had authorized the expenditure of at least $20,000,000,000 more. It made specific appropriations in the sum of $18,654,102,703. In addition, it authorized the expenditure of indefinite sums in excess of $8,000,000,000 by the Home Owners Loan Corporation, the Farm Mortgage Corporation, the Federal Housing Corporation and the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

"How much of this will be spent can not be accurately forecast, but considerably more than $2,000,000,000 has already been drawn upon."

"I have been charged with giving a misleading picture of the situation because some of this amount, like some of the $7,000,000,000, may be repaid. * * * Until they are repaid, these amounts stand as a charge against the people of the United States and against the credit of our Government."

Alabama Has Only 425 Confederate Veterans

Montgomery, Ala. (U.P.).—Only 425 veterans remain in the rapidly-thinning ranks of the Confederate army in Alabama, W. K. McAdory, secretary of the Alabama Pension Commission, said recently.

Approximately 3,000 widows of veterans draw pensions, however, bringing the total pension payments to $425,000 for the past quarter. He said that if the present rate of reduction continues, Alabama will have few of the old soldiers left by 1940.

$3,065 Relief Food Grown.

Lynchburg, Va., Aug. 9 (Spl.).—Gardens maintained here by 371 persons, as a part of the city relief plan, have produced food valued at $3,065 already this summer. Federal inspectors have rated 70 of the gardens as first class.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your headaches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at drug stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

Nazis Seize Church Rule In Germany; Give Amnesty

were not deliberate and malicious, and (3) acts resulting from overzealousness in the Nazi cause.

Excluded in the amnesty are acts of violence, terrorism, treason and high treason, under which numerous suspects in the June 30 incident are held.

The Reichsfeuhrer also ordered an investigation of persons held in concentration camps for political reasons. Those who in future will refrain from opposition will be released.

In the Evangelical Church reform movement, long under way, Reichsbishop Mueller called the synod meeting at noon and outlined his plan for taking control of all Protestant church affairs.

"We must build for the Fuehrer a strong Evangelical Church," Dr. Mueller said. "It is a thousand times more important to obey and labor constructively than to telegraph loyalty, which often is not borne out by deeds."

The Reichsbishop paid tribute to Von Hindenburg, "who ordered me to preach only Jesus Christ to Germany."

A new law regarding the status of the Evangelical Church under Nazi control was explained by August Jaeger, of the Church Council. He said it vests virtual dictatorship in Dr. Mueller's church cabinet, which it stipulates is the only legislative body, giving him similar power in the church to that wielded by Hitler in the government.

Jaeger said national or state synods may be invited to cooperate in legislation in an advisory capacity. However, only settlement of purely denominational and ritual questions would be left to the state churches and their synods.

Fly Parasites Prey on Deer

Serious Loss of Big Game by Disease Feared in Michigan.

The insect, commonly called "nose fly," is found to make its summer home in the air passages of the deer, thereby reducing the resistance of the animal to disease and often resulting in death itself through mechanical suffocation.

Dr. Dan R. Coburn, of the Michigan State Department of Agriculture, has just completed a study of the infestation. The insect, he says, deposits its eggs during the spring and summer months in the nose of the deer. The eggs hatch into minute, wormlike larvae, which crawl into the nasal passages of the animal, where they spend the winter in the larval stage of their life-cycle.

Then some time during the following summer the larvae drop out of the nose, crawl onto the ground, pupate and emerge as an adult fly.

As many as 108 individual larvae in various stages of development have been taken from the nasal cavities and throat of a deer by Dr. Colburn.

Dog Sleds Move California Freight

"Musher" Does Profitable Winter Business.

He is "Tex" Cushio, dog trainer and "musher" from Saskatchewan, who has built up his business since 1927. Starting with a few pups, he now works 30 dogs and has bred teams he says he would match against the finest in Canada and Alaska.

Cushio freights out of Mammoth, in Owens Valley, where a 6-foot snowfall in two days is not impossible. Every winter has given him plenty to do in providing snow-bound areas contact with the outside.

Scarecrow Fugitive "Snatches" Auto Fuel

Mount Vernon, Ohio (U.P.).—A gasoline-snatching artist, who has been operating on northern Ohio highways has been identified as Solly Ackerman, Ohio State Sanitorium "scarecrow fugitive," by one of his victims.

Clarence Posey, filling operator, reported a man in a small coupe stopped at his station, tanked his machine with gas, and drove off without paying for it.

MISSES' DRESSES THIRD FLOOR

Girl, 19, Held As Robberies Are Probed

Police said the young woman, who gave her age as 19 and weighs 95 pounds, rainsoaked, is wanted for questioning in connection with a number of robberies in which a blonde girl is reported to have participated. She will appear in a police line-up at detective headquarters.

Record Is Checked.

Investigating her police record, detectives found that Miss Messmer first was arrested here July 1, 1933, for questioning.

Later she was released. At the time she registered as Joyce Palmer, and gave her address as the 1400 block of Twenty-first street northwest.

A check on records in other cities revealed Miss Messmer had been arrested for investigation in Pittsburgh, Miami, Fla., and Jacksonville, Fla. In Pittsburgh she was placed on a year's probation

Shy and slight, Miss Messmer smiled at police questioners.

Her hair is dark, falling in a close-cropped boyish bob. Her fingerprints were sent to the Department of Justice. She was taken to the Women's Bureau, where she is being held.

Building Shows Gain.

Salem Oreg. (U.P.).—Construction here during the first half of 1934, totaling $150,600.60, was 106.7 per cent greater than in the corresponding period last year, a survey of building permits revealed today. The increase was 44.4 per cent more than the same period of 1932.

Epidemic of Glanders Threatens in Canada

Montreal (U.P.).—Glanders, a disease which strikes down horses in the same manner as "galloping tuberculosis" hits human beings, is threatening the lives of scores of valuable horses here.

The disease has brought death by execution to many horses in the rural district of the province during the last few months. Now, it is reported to be spreading to cities.

Dominion and provincial sanitary experts are busy carrying out tests on horses throughout the city. The lives of many valuable thoroughbreds and prize winning stock depends on the outcome of the tests.

Pennsylvania Faced With Plague of Locusts

Ridgway, Pa. (U.P.).—This region is due for another locust plague, if indications turned up by workmen on the new Government road through the Allegheny National Forest from Marienville to Kelletville mean anything.

Cocoons of the locust were found by the workmen, and were said to be very much alive. This is the year when the 17-year locusts are due to make their appearance, it was said. If a "Y" is shown on the wings of the insects, it is said to indicate war is not far away, according to a popular local superstition.

Walton Quits Annapolis Bank To Make Race

Seeks Democratic Honors in Anne Arundel County, Md.

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 9 (Spl.).—James A. Walton, of Annapolis, has resigned the presidency of the Annapolis Banking & Trust Co., a post which he held for 17 years, in order to give undivided attention to his campaign for the Democratic nomination for clerk of the Circuit Court for Anne Arundel County.

Maj. H. E. Atterbury, chairman of the board, said that for the present a successor will not be named. The bank management will be directed by James H. Ellis, executive vice president, who succeeded Thomas H. Aherman, resigned.

Mr. Walton, a former president of the board of county commissioners, served ten years with that group.

Former State Senator George T. Cromwell, Fifth District, registrar of wills, may oppose Walton. Frank A. Munroe, Republican candidate, will be unopposed.

Republican Leaders Backing Zihlman

Hagerstown, Md., Aug. 9 (Spl.).—Fred N. Zihlman, who will be a candidate for the Republican nomination for Congress in the Sixth District, will receive the support of most Republican leaders of Washington County, it was learned authoritatively today.

Mr. Zihlman, who represented this district in Congress from 1917 to 1931, made a careful survey in western Maryland last week, conferring with leaders before he reached his decision to seek the nomination.

If he receives the nomination, Mr. Zihlman will again oppose Representative David J. Lewis, who will have no opposition for the Democratic nomination. Mr. Lewis defeated Mr. Zihlman in 1930.

Cumberland, Md., Aug 9 (Spl.).—The Socialist party of the Sixth Congressional District, which includes Allegany County, has named its candidates.

They are:

House of Representatives, M. C. Boyer, Cumberland; register of wills, D. E. Enfield, Cumberland; clerk to the county commissioners, Oliver Marriott, La Vale; county commissioner, Frank Studinick, Corrigansville; sheriff, G. M. Wallizer, Cumberland; State senator, A. William Van Kaske; judge of the orphans' court, Alex Munro, Cumberland; House of Delegates, William Munro, Charles L. Myers and O. M. Grayson.

Lee Lacy was chairman of the meeting and William Van Kaske secretary. Delegates from Washington, Garrett and Allegany Counties were present.

Pocomoke City, Md., Aug. 9 (Spl.). Webster H. Smith, Republican candidate for Governor of Maryland, and Dr. Joseph I. France, candidate for the United States Senate on the Smith ticket, will speak here Saturday night.

This will be the third appearance of Mr. Smith in Worcester County. Dr. France has spoken twice. Other candidates who have spoken are Harry W. Nice and Senator Phillip Lee Goldsborough (Republicans) and Dr. Charles H. Conley (Democrat). All are gubernatorial candidates.

The Young Men's Democratic Club of Worcester County last night voted to invite Dr. Conley, candidate for Governor of Maryland, and Herbert O'Conor, candidate for attorney general, to address the club. Both are Democrats.

Other business included election of permanent officers. Their permanent officers are:

M. William Miller, president; Francis E. Matthews, vice president; Benjamin Cohen, secretary; James H. Tilghman, treasurer, and James A. Mulvihvania, sergeant at arms. A charter, presented by W. H. Farmer, was accepted.

Chestertown, Md., Aug. 9 (Spl.). That some of the nominees on the Democratic "harmony" ticket will not escape a primary fight next month is indicated by the announced intention of several prominent Kent County aspirants to file for places on the Democratic ticket, subject to the primaries.

Robert Shallcross, of Rock Hall, who has been clerk of the Kent County Circuit Court for seven years, announced that he will run against Leonard Wilson, of Millington, chosen in caucus by the Beck and Copper factions to represent the "regular" Democrats. Shallcross is an acknowledged vote getter and popular in the Rock Hall District.

Dr. H. P. Copeland has announced for the State Senate in opposition to Arthur Brice, of Betterton, the regular candidate. He is a Chestertown physician and asserts watermen and others have asked him to run.

Meanwhile, Walter T. Morris, jr., regular candidate for county treasurer, will have an opponent, it is said, in Preston Crowding, an independent. It is also rumored that the Kent County Farm Bureau will place a ticket in the field with its president, E. Thomas Massey, of Massey, for the Senate, but this has been denied by James D. Davis, jr., executive secretary of the bureau.

Warner G. Woody Rites Held at Fredericksburg

Fredericksburg, Va., Aug. 9 (Spl.). Funeral services were held today for Warner George Woody, 70, who died Tuesday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. A. B. Huet, at Spotsyvania Courthouse.

He is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Huet, Mrs. E. L. West, Richmond; Miss Maria Woody, South Richmond, and one son, Charles E. Woody, of Johnson City, Tenn. He leaves two brothers, Sam Woody, Leesburg, and Edward Woody, Bluefield, W. Va.

Stove Blast Burns Woman.

Hagerstown, Md., Aug. 9 (Spl.). Mrs. Catherine Chaney was burned seriously when an oil stove exploded yesterday. Her husband was also burned.

$16,000 Loss as Big Barn Burns Near Frederick

The above barn fire on one of the largest farms in Frederick County cost R. Rush Lewis, of near Frederick, an estimated $16,000. Thought to have been extinguished Tuesday, with slight damage, the blaze broke out again Wednesday, destroying 250 tons of hay and 1,500 bushels of barley. The blaze was attributed to spontaneous combustion of the two recently stored crops.

Tax Standings In Maryland Are Tabulated

Records of Counties Near Baltimore and D. C. Appear Best.

Baltimore, Aug. 9 (Spl.). — If Maryland counties are lagging far behind in tax payments, as the Federal Government says, it isn't the fault of the State comptroller's office, which is responsible for supervision and enforcement of the State's tax laws, Joseph O. C. McCusker, deputy State comptroller, declared.

Tax collection is a mechanical process which can not be hastened by the State and often is susceptible to much confusion because of varying laws in the counties, he stated.

"The law provides when the taxes are to be paid, and what shall be the penalties if they aren't paid after certain dates," he added. "It provides that if at certain dates the taxes aren't paid, the sheriff shall sell the property on which the tax is levied.

"The most we can do is to insist that sheriffs sell promptly. Some have undoubtedly been lenient because of economic conditions. But as far as the collectors are concerned, they can simply accept payment and charge the legal penalty if the payment is late."

Federal officials say that 16 per cent of taxes in Maryland remained unpaid as of December 31, 1933. Standings of the counties in the matter of tax collections as given out by the Federal Census Bureau are as follows:

County.	Levy.	Delinquency—Amount.	Pct.
Anne Arundel	1,160,971	415,797	35
Baltimore City	34,137,525	5,083,277	15
Baltim County	3,242,332	600,590	18.5
Calvert	111,314	21,514	19.5
Caroline	191,520	60,896	32

Wicomico	446,833	137,588	30.5
Worcester	303,294	131,886	43.5

It will be noted that three of the five counties with the lowest payment ratio—Somerset, Worcester and Talbot—are on the Eastern Shore. Counties adjacent to Baltimore and Washington appear to have the best records.

Rites Planned By Methodists

Sesquicentennial to Open at Leesburg on August 19.

Leesburg, Va., Aug. 9 (Spl.).—A sesquicentennial celebration of the founding of Methodism in America will be held here August 19 to 22, inclusive.

The Rev. James Furman Herbert, pastor of the Methodist Church at Roxboro, N. C., a classmate of the Rev. Jesse H. Hobbs, pastor of the Leesburg Methodist Church, will preach at the opening service.

A feature will be the baptism of Herbert Gray Hobbs, 4-month-old son of the pastor and Mrs. Hobbs. The Rev. Mr. Herbert, for whom the baby was named, will administer the ordinance of baptism with water taken from the spot where Jesus was baptized in the Jordan River.

Monday evening will be devoted to an observance of local Methodist history. The history of Methodism in the county will be read, also the history of the local Methodist Church. As the date falls on the anniversary of the birthday of Bishop Asbury, who preached in Leesburg several times and held conferences here, there will be a talk on his life at this service.

Dr. H. H. Sherman, of the Baltimore Conference, secretary of the Board of Christian Education, will give an illustrated lecture on the general history of the Methodist Church Tuesday evening.

A pageant, "The Romance of Methodism," written by Mrs. Arthur B. Bibbins, of Baltimore, will be given in the courthouse yard Wednesday evening. There will be 75 characters with a chorus of 100 colored singers.

Fall Injures Horseman.

Murder Will Out, Mayor Learns as Hitch-Hiker Rides

Bristol, Va., Aug. 9 (Spl.).—Mayor Fred Vance of Bristol, Tenn., was one of the principal characters in a short drama near Spruce Pine, N. C., the other day. Mayor Vance said he was driving along the road when a man asked for a lift. Vance agreed.

After riding a short distance, Vance asked the man's occupation.

"Nothing at present," the fellow replied.

"What did you do last?" Vance asked.

"I was in jail."

"What for"

"Murder," said the hitch-hiker, calmly.

Plans Complete For Convention Of Elks Sunday

Thousands Are Expected at Annual Meeting in Hagerstown.

Hagerstown, Md., Aug. 9 (Spl.).—Preparations have been completed for the entertainment of several thousand visiting Elks at the fourteenth annual convention of the Maryland, Delaware and District of Columbia State Association, which will convene here Sunday to continue four days.

Elks from three adjacent States of Pennsylvania, Virginia and West Virginia have accepted invitations.

The convention proper will convene Monday, at 11 a. m. A motor tour and swimming party at the municipal pool will be held in the afternoon. In the evening an athletic show, including boxing and wrestling matches will be followed by a dance at the main auditorium of the Hagerstown fairgrounds, where the convention will be staged.

Nomination of officers will take place Tuesday morning following a club breakfast, while in the afternoon two large oxen will be roasted and made into sandwiches. In the evening a vaudeville show and fan dance will be held.

An outstanding event will be a mammoth parade Wednesday night, with thousands of Elks in line and a dozen or more bands. This will follow a business session, at which officers will be elected. A grand ball will close the convention Thursday.

The main exhibition hall at the fair grounds has been decorated for the occasion and five noted orchestras are being brought here.

The Washington Elks Boys Band will give several concerts.

Winchester Takes Camp Rifle Match

Guardsmen of Virginia Easy on Liquor.

Virginia Beach, Va., Aug. 9 (AP).—Officers at Camp George Campbell Peery said today that National Guardsmen of Virginia's Ninety-first Infantry Brigade, now undergoing training here, have shown little disposition to drink large quantities of legal liquor.

At previous encampments some difficulties have been experienced with bootleggers attempting to pass the sentry lines. Officers said this practice seems to have been eliminated with establishment of a State liquor store.

Company I, Winchester, Capt. Paul S. Hartment, commanding, won the regimental rifle match for this year, making a score of 690 out of a possible 750. Company A was second, with a score of 663, and Company K, Charlottesville, was third with 656. K Company had won the match twice and had two legs on the regimental trophy, but failed to maintain its record this year.

Kiwanians to Give Playground Picnic

Fredericksburg, Va., Aug. 9 (Spl.). The Kiwanis Club will entertain 125 boys who have participated in the Kiwanis Club's playground program this summer at a picnic at Fairview Beach August 21.

The boys' work committee, Dr. Philip Cox chairman; Dr. J. E. Walters, Al Kreger and Guy Brown, is in charge.

Johnny Fenlon, superintendent of summer playground work, reported to the club on the season's work. He advocated a campaign for a municipal swimming pool in Fredericksburg.

Five New Banks In Frederick County Opened

Institutions Created by Reorganizing Defunct Central Trust.

Frederick, Md., Aug. 9 (Spl.).—Five new banks created in the reorganization of the defunct Central Trust Co., Frederick, opened for business today.

Western Maryland Trust Co., Frederick, William B. Cutshall, president; Elmer I. Eshelman, treasurer; capital, $100,000; surplus, $20,000. Sykesville State Bank, Sykesville; Arthur C. Brown, president; Henry W. Clarke, cashier; capital, $50,000; surplus, $10,000. Valley State Bank, Middletown, William J. Kepler, president; Earl M. Kepler, cashier; capital, $50,000; surplus, $10,000. Walkersville Bank, Walkersville, George E. Remsberg, president; Percy Claggett, cashier; capital, $50,000; surplus, $10,000. Poolesville Bank, Poolesville, Sidney Thompson, president; George Smith, cashier; capital, $50,000; surplus, $10,000.

At the same time a 6 per cent dividend distribution, totaling $648,000 and authorized by the circuit court, was made to depositors of the old Central Trust Co., approximately 22,000 checks for which were mailed yesterday. Depositors who dissented from the reorganization plan and were awarded a dividend of 22 per cent received checks for the 6 per cent dividend, the court having instructed the receiver, John J. Ghingher, State bank commissioner, to withhold the remaining 16 per cent for the present. The dividend was reckoned on assets of about $10,800,000.

All assets of the old trust company, aside from those transferred to the new banks, have been assigned by the receiver to the People's Liquidating Corporation, W. Clinton McSherry, chairman, to be liquidated for the benefit of its depositors and 11 branch banks which closed September 2, 1931.

State Realty Tax Cut Urged

Maryland Probers Ask 25 Per Cent Reduction in Assessments.

Baltimore, Aug. 9 (Spl.).—Demands for an immediate mark-down of 25 per cent in real estate assessments in Maryland were made today upon the State, counties and towns by the joint tax committee of the Maryland State Grange and the Maryland Farm Bureau Federation.

The committee said it based its report on "changing the direction of the cost of government in the direction of a materially lower burden per capita than at present."

"Taxes on Maryland real estate are out of proportion to the present values of real property," the report pointed out.

"Farm real estate has declined in value approximately 24 per cent since 1928, the date of the last general assessment. City real estate has depreciated even more, it is believed.

"The joint committee opposes a general reassessment at this time because of the heavy cost involved, and recommends a flat 25 per cent mark-down in assessments instead."

The report concluded with the statement that the value of Maryland farm property in Maryland has increased only 20 per cent in the past 20 years, while farmers' taxes have increased 190 per cent.

Norfolk Welcomes Midshipmen Home

Norfolk, Va., Aug. 9 (AP).—Back home after a two-month cruise of European waters, 900 midshipmen of the United States Naval Academy who arrived in Hampton Roads today aboard the battleships Arkansas and Wyoming disembarked for a round of social engagements before putting back to sea Monday.

"We had a wonderful cruise except for the grossly exaggerated affair at Nice," Rear Admiral Ellis, commanding the midshipmen's squadron, told the welcoming committee.

The admiral quoted a high French naval official as saying he had never seen a better-behaved group of midshipmen.

New Deal to Be Issue In Virginia 7th District

Individualistic Shenandoah Farmers Are Apathetic to Crop Reduction and Oppose Relief Wages; G. O. P. to Take Conservative Stand.

By C. B. Carr.

Harrisonburg, Va., Aug. 9.—The New Deal will form the backbone of political discussions in the Seventh Virginia District during the forthcoming Congressional campaign.

Such is the view expressed by a number of Democratic and Republican leaders who sense the appearance of semipolitical lines of cleavage, neither Democratic or Republican, but rather New Deal and anti-New Deal.

While the campaign, centering around the election of a member of the House of Representatives and United States Senate, has not warmed up, largely because the Republicans have not yet named their candidate, politicians feel that the policies of the Roosevelt Administration will come in for as much, if not more, serious consideration in this district as anywhere in the State.

The Seventh Virginia Congressional District comprises the cities of Harrisonburg, Winchester, Staunton and Buena Vista, and the counties of Clarke, Frederick, Rappahannock, Page, Rockingham, Shenandoah, Warren, Amherst, Augusta, Bath, Highland, Nelson and Rockbridge. The district is one of the most agricultural sections of the State and hence the New Deal policies of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration have been keenly felt and observed.

Voters Are Individualists.

The voters are largely descendants of sturdy Scotch-Irish and Germans who emigrated from Pennsylvania into the Shenandoah Valley, won their battle with the Indians during Colonial days, and remained. They are in the main of an individualist trend. This frame of mind, observers have noted, has caused a sort of apathy toward the crop reduction programs of the New Deal.

Rockingham County, of which Harrisonburg is the county seat, is composed of many of these individualists. When the Government announced its wheat, corn and hog reduction programs, the subsidization program appears to have been by no means unanimously received. Reliable authorities here estimate about 80 per cent of the farmers of Rockingham County joined the reduction program. In the case of the Mennonites, a religious sect, who follow a simple mode of living, it found little response. This class, to use their own words, felt they "were able to take care of themselves if let alone under normal conditions."

In view of the farmers' individualistic attitude, the declarations of Senator Harry Flood Byrd (Democrat), have found a warm reception in the district. One may talk with Republican or Democratic leaders and either will say that Senator Byrd is one of the most popular men in the district, regardless of party affiliations. The Seventh District is Senator Byrd's home territory. The agricultural classes, leaders state, especially applauded Byrd's declaration against the extension of power for the Secretary of Agriculture under proposed amendments to the AAA act.

Relief Wages Criticized.

The idea of "regimentation," as expressed in the crop-reduction program, is not the only fault the district appears to find with the Roosevelt policies. Party leaders in almost every section will agree that the wages paid on CWA and PWA projects have been resented by the agricultural classes. These wages were from 100 to 200 per cent higher than the existing wage schedule, and the farmers have taken the attitude that if the Government continues such policies they will be unable to hire good labor at a price they can afford.

It is also pointed out that the agricultural classes of this district are unusually thirfty, hence have been unable to see the Government's idea of spending money so freely on relief work. A prominent Rockingham County official made the statement today that Senator Carter Glass' speech recently at Lynchburg, in which he warned that "pay day is coming" insofar as Federal relief grants are concerned, was received favorably almost to a man among the farmers of this section.

Political observers are taking unusual interest in the district Republican convention here August 30. A candidate for the House of Representatives and party policies are to be determined. The Democrats already have their Congressional candidate in the field. He is A. Willis Robertson, Lexington, standing for reelection. Representative Robertson is one of the outstanding champions of the New Deal in Virginia. His record in Congress shows that he "toed the mark" whenever a matter of New Deal policy was before the House of Representatives.

Robertson and Byrd Contrasted.

Mr. Robertson's apparent loyalty to the Administration has occasioned much comment throughout the district. Both Democrats and Republicans frequently contrast his stand to that of Senator Byrd, who, also a Democrat, failed to agree on several occasions with the Administration policies and cast his vote against them.

With Mr. Robertson classed as a New Deal "stand patter" in the eyes of many of his constituents, reliable information from the Republican ranks has it that the party will bring the New Deal issues to a head through the declaration of a strong, conservative policy at the Harrisonburg convention. It appears probable that the attitude of the agricultural classes of the district against the free spending of public funds and the AAA wheat, corn and hog reduction programs will be a dominating motive in the declaration of Republican policies at their convention here.

Should the Republicans decide to take a stand against certain radical moves of the Roosevelt Administration, they feel that they have at their command several potential Congressional candidates who could carry the policies of the party to the voters, one of their leaders here says.

Two Republicans Foremost.

Among the Republicans who have been prominently mentioned for the Congressional nomination are D. Earl Wampler, Harrisonburg, Commonwealth's attorney for Rockingham County; John W. Morrison, Harrisonburg, member of the House of Delegates, and former mayor of this city; Howard S. Zeigler, of Rockingham County, banker and orchardist, and H. B. McCormac, Winchester, textile executive. Mr. Morrison's health appears against his making the race. With Mr. McCormac mentioned as senatorial timber, it appears that the nomination will go either to Mr. Wampler or Mr. Zeigler. Both know the wishes of the agricultural classes, it is pointed out. Mr. Wampler has been Commonwealth's attorney here for 15 years and has a large acquaintance throughout the district, while Mr. Zeigler is known extensively among the commercial apple-producing interests.

The Seventh District is normally overwhelmingly Democratic, but two Republicans having served in the House of Representatives from the district during the last 25 years. One was John Paul, now judge of the United States Court for the Western District of Virginia here, and the other, Jacob A. Garber, is connected with the processing tax division of the AAA at Richmond. Judge Paul served from 1920 to 1922, and Mr. Garber from 1928 to 1930. Neither is reported available for the race this fall.

G. O. P. Expects Revival.

Although Republicans freely admit that they have a hard battle against them this fall, they point out that it will no doubt greatly enhance their stock, which fell hard during the 1932 election when Roosevelt swept the district by a big majority. Local elections next year are being eyed by the party leaders.

The Democrats feel that they are strongly entrenched and that when election day rolls around in November Representative Robertson will be reelected by a large majority. Loyalty to the party, the Democratic leaders in many cases declare, will overshadow any personal dislike which the voters may have of New Deal principles.

The Republicans retort, through scattered informal statements of their leaders, that the political pendulum is swinging in their direction. They point out that although Harrisonburg gave Roosevelt a majority in 1932, the local voters mayed a majority of Republicans as municipal officials last June.

Still Ownership Denied, but Woman Is Held for Court

Cumberland, Md., Aug. 9 (Spl.). Whether Mrs. Clara Klosterman or Mrs. John Winters rented a house here, where a complete moonshine plant was seized recently, was aired before United States Commissioner Taylor Morrison yesterday. Neighbors testified Mrs. Winters rented the home, but she denied it and named Mrs. Klosterman. She was held in $1,500 bond for Federal court, charged with possession of an unregistered still, untaxed liquor, distilled spirits, mash and containers of liquor not bearing Federal stamps.

When officers searched the house no one was at home. They testified papers and magazines in the house were addressed to Mrs. Winters and a milk bill and recipts for rent were in her name.

Firemen Plan Gala Program In Waynesboro

Several Thousand From Four States Convene Tuesday.

By W. H. Shryock.

Waynesboro, Pa., Aug. 9.—Several thousand firemen from 150 fire companies of four States—Pennsylvania, Maryland, West Virginia and Virginia—will assemble here Tuesday for the thirty-third annual Cumberland Valley Volunteer Firemen's Association convention.

Waynesboro has assumed the garb of a convention city as decorators continued their work of stringing thousands of varicolored lights across Main street and hanging flags and bunting. The firemen's hall and city hall will be bedecked with flags.

In addition to the business sessions Tuesday and Wednesday, features will include a pajama parade Wednesday night, the concluding firemen's parade and the fire fighting and rescue work demonstration by the Martinsburg (W. Va.) Fire Department and the Eagle Fire Co., of Hanover, Pa., Thursday.

Roland S. Snyder, chief of the Martinsburg department, announced that the new 75-foot ladder truck of Martinsburg will be used. The truck carries approximately 300 feet of ladder and is equipped with an aerial ladder pipe.

Hagerstown to Be Host To Joint Convention

Hagerstown, Md., Aug. 9 (Spl.). Several thousand firemen from this and contiguous States are expected here September 14 to 16, inclusive, for the first annual convention of the Washington County Volunteer Firemen's Association and the seventh annual convention of the Eastern Fire Chiefs Association.

The dual affair is expected to draw firemen and fire officials from Pennsylvania, New Jersey, New York, Delaware, the District of Columbia and Maryland. A feature will be a demonstration by Chief Noble Rushe of the Hyattsville Fire Department and president-elect of the Maryland State Firemen's Association of a new smoke and gas ejector September 15.

Thirty-seven cups will be awarded winners in events planned by the committee in charge of arrangements.

Charity Ward 40 Years Dies

$25 Burial Closes Out $6,000 Account for Stafford County.

Fredericksburg, Va., Aug. 9 (Spl.). By appropriating $25 for a Potters Field burial of George Coates, 80, the Stafford County Board of Supervisors yesterday terminated a charity case that has continued for more than 40 years and cost the county more than $6,000.

Board members all were children when Coates began receiving county aid.

Coates, a palsied invalid, lived at the county farm for 35 years. The county contributed $10 per month during that time for his maintenance and also paid medical bills. When the farm was abolished in 1924, Coates was placed in a private home at the same expense.

In 1929 he was sent to the Western State Hospital at Staunton, where the county supported him at an expense of $1 per day until his death.

No relatives ever have been located.

Virginia Penitentiary Will Open Cotton Mill

Richmond, Aug. 9 (Spl.).—A cotton mill to weave cloth for mattress tickings, sheetings, towels, shirts and other cotton clothing required by inmates of State institutions will be set up at the State Penitentiary early this fall, Supt. Rice M. Youell announced today.

Machinery and other equipment are expected the latter part of next month. Approximately six weeks will be required to install the machinery, and several more weeks will be devoted to training prisoners to operate it, but the cotton mill will be in full operation by the first of the year, Maj. Youell said.

Virginia FERA Assigns 2,000 To 38 Colleges

$250,000 to Be Spent in Providing Work for Students.

Richmond, Aug. 9 (AP).—The list of 38 Virginia schools to share in the $250,000 allotment of FERA funds for student aid during the coming term were announced tonight by Thomas D. Eason, director of higher education in the State Department of Public Instruction.

Through the FERA fund about 2,000 students who otherwise would be unable to continue their education will enroll in Virginia colleges.

In announcing the schools, Eason said a meeting of the presidents of the institutions will be held at the University of Virginia Monday afternoon to outline the program in detail. Brent D. Allison, who has been conducting a survey for the FERA along this line in Virginia, will present recommendations as to the types of jobs to be made.

Allison's studies into the sources of socially desirable work which can be carried on by students under the program will be published by the educational department of the FERA as a guide for other State relief administrations.

Virginia U. Heads List.

The colleges to share in the program and the number of student workers allotted them follow:

University of Richmond, 100; Medical College of Virginia, 63; Virginia Union University, 33; Richmond Division, College of William and Mary, 34; Union Theological Seminary, 13; General Assembly Training School, 7; Bridgewater College, 24; Emory and Henry, 30; Hampden-Sydney, 30; Hampton Institute, 66; Hollins, 26; Lynchburg, 30; Mary Baldwin, 31; Randolph-Macon, 28; Randolph-Macon Woman's College, 67; Sweet Briar, 48; University of Virginia, 275; Virginia Military Institute, 68; Virginia Polytechnic Institute, 109; Virginia State College for Negroes, 70; Washington and Lee, 98; William and Mary, 148; Farmville Teachers College, 74; Harrisonburg Teachers College, 83; Fredericksburg Teachers College, 70; Radford Teachers College, 52; Averett College, 18; Blackstone College for Girls, 11; Bluefield College, 17; Eastern Mennonite College, 16; Marion Junior College, 11; Shenandoah College, 16; Virginia Intermont College, 20; St. Paul's Normal and Industrial School for Negroes, 19; Norfolk division, College of William and Mary, 48; Virginia Theological Seminary, 3.

Pay Up to $20 Monthly.

As an enlargement of a similar program last spring, all nonprofit colleges and universities in the State will be allowed to provide part-time jobs, paying up to $20 per month, to as many as 12 per cent of the students regularly enrolled as of October 15, 1933. Jobs are to be divided proportionately between men and women students and at least 50 per cent of them shall be attending college for the first time. Aside from the usual scholastic requirements, a student must demonstrate that he would be unable to attend were it not for the financial assistance of the "scholarship."

While individual scholarships may run as high as $20 per month based on an hourly wage of not less than 30 cents an hour, the student average for each institution must not exceed $15. On this basis, it was estimated by Eason that 2,005 persons will be eligible for the benefits and that the total expenditure for the 1934-35 session in Virginia will aggregate $270,675.

Bar to Attend Jurist's Rites

Frederick County Group to Honor Late Judge Worthington.

Frederick, Md., Aug. 9 (Spl.).—The Frederick County Bar Association, at a special meeting in the courthouse yesterday, decided to attend the funeral seryice of former Judge Glenn H. Worthington in All Saints' Episcopal Church tomorrow afternoon in a body.

A committee composed of former Judge John S. Newman, Jacob Rohrback, H. Kieffer DeLauter, H. Dorsey Etchison and D. Princeton Buckey was appointed to prepare memorial resolutions which will be read the opening day of the September term of court. A committee composed of Patrick M. Schnauffer, Manuel M. Weinberg and Amos E. Holter was named to select a floral emblem. Judge Worthington was one of the oldest members of the bar.

Those attending were Chief Judge Hammond Urner, Judge Arthur D. Willard, Mr. Rohrback, Mr. DeLauter, Benjamin B. Rosenstock, Mr. Etchison, George R. Dennis, jr., William M. Storm, Alton Y. Bennett, Edward S. Delaplaine, Holden S. Felton, Alben M. Wood, Mr. Schnauffer, Mr. Weinberg, Walter E. Sinn, Sherman P. Bowers and E. Austin James.

Judge Worthington died at the City Hospital Tuesday night after an illness of about four weeks of a complication. He was 76 years of age.

Cat-Bite Fatality Puzzles Doctors

Uncertain Whether Infection or Serum Is Cause.

Baltimore, Aug. 8 (Spl.).—Bitten on the hand by a cat, William Wagner, 39 years old, died here yesterday of an ailment which has caused much concern among officials of the State health department.

They are uncertain whether infection resuling from the wound killed the man, or whether he died from antirabies treatment administered after he was bitten. Health department officers said he had been given 12 antirabies treatments. He died of a form of paralysis of the chest muscles.

On July 23, while he was leading his dog from his home, the dog encountered a cat and the two animals began fighting. Trying to separate them, Wagner was bitten on the knuckle by the cat. He went to a hospital and remained in apparent good health until after the eleventh dose of antirabies serum had been administered. Then he suddenly became seriously ill and died yesterday.

Bus and Tram Rerouting Plan Meets Disfavor

Experts "Through-Town" System to Face Criticism.

company would not submit a plan of its own at the hearings beginning next Wednesday. It was stated that William B. Bennett, engineer of the company, has drawn several plans and the feeling was that these should be put up for public scrutiny, along with that of the Beeler and other plans. Beeler will present the second section of his report today.

Sager to Offer Estimate.

Within a few days Frank A. Sager, chief engineer of the Public Utilities Commission, will have a report of his own to offer, in which it is expected that some estimate of the cost of traffic rerouting will be presented. The National Capital Park and Planning Commission also is expected to present the findings of its own expert, Leland Bartholomew, when the hearings begin.

Bartholomew drew up proposals several years ago for the Park and Planning Commission, and the expectation is that these will be handed over to the Utilities Commission. His recommendations include, it is said, a proposal to build a trolley tunnel under the Ellipse behind the White House. Beeler disapproved this subway idea in his statement yesterday. The New York traffic expert gave approval, however, to a ban on automobile parking on main traffic arteries.

Whatever plan is ultimately adopted, a lower general average of fares will result, in the opinion of Chairman Riley E. Elgen, of the Utilities Commission.

The first section of the Beeler report points out that there are 18 street car and 18 bus routes, exclusive of short line and rush hour routes, operated by the Capital Transit Co. The free transfer and pass system, it states, "have stimulated riding, not only by securing new patrons, but by increasing the riding habits of the patrons."

Cites Specific Problems.

"We approached the problem from the viewpoint of establishing an entirely new system, as though no transit existed in the District today," it continues. "In any plan, it is desirable to eliminate such conditions as those encountered in New York avenue, where four tracks are located in the block between Fourteenth and Fifteenth streets, and in Fourteenth street, between New York avenue and H street, where a similar condition exists. Another awkward and confusing situation existing at Dupont Circle, where the outbound track turns to the left and street cars proceed directly in the face of the oncoming vehicular traffic, should be rectified."

Calling attention to the "unsatisfactory situation" which exists in the rush hours on Twelfth and Fourteenth streets, the report suggests "some reasonable, intercompany agreement" to solve the problem. The point is made that outbound Virginia buses traveling along the trolley route in the morning rush hours, and vice versa in the evening, are comparatively empty, while the trolley cars are packed to capacity. The agreement suggested would make it possible for the buses to pick up some of the short route trolley traffic.

Philharmonic Orchestra Success in Kansas City

Kansas City, Mo. (U.P.).—Kansas City's Philharmonic Orchestra, a success financially in its first year, will again be under the leadership of Karl Krueger when it opens its second season this fall.

The enthusiasm with which the concerts were received last winter and the attendance have put Kansas City definitely in the group of major symphony cities, Krueger said. He predicted that in time the orchestra would be one of the finest in the country.

By Evelyn Norcross Sherrill, 3401 Macomb Street Northwest.

Bobs was a Boston terrier who was always on hand to greet the family's guests and was a great favorite.

There came a time when his company was not desired. A George Washington Bicentennial Celebration was being given with the State officers of the Daughters of the American Revolution as guests of honor. Bobs was locked in an upstairs room. He heard guests arriving and poured out his longing soul in such a tearful voice that a guest released him.

As Bobs came down stairs he saw a reception line in the hallway. His master was going down the line shaking hands with each lady. Bobs' mistress was at the head. It was she who had put him in retirement. Therefore he reversed the order, went to the end of the line and offered his paw to the last distinguished lady, who shook it most cordially.

Bobs passed on to the next, as his master had done, and even made a little bow. By the time he reached his mistress at the head of the line the dog's social graces were so much appreciated that no further efforts were made to exclude him from the party. He was given an official decoration and although the program concerned the achievements of our First President, Bobs proved to be such a gentleman that he shared the honors of the evening with George Washington.

By Evelyn M. Libby, 3901 Connecticut Avenue Northwest.

Product of untraceable canine genealogy, our mutt collie's youth was distinguished chiefly by his enthusiasm, which greatly exceeded his judgment. As a direct consequence of this deplorable fact, he came home one day in an exceedingly battered and careworn state, exhibiting, among other injuries, a severely bitten right front paw.

Thoroughly enjoying the sympathy his condition aroused, he was duly treated, swathed in kind words, and bedded down upstairs. The next morning, retribution in the form of a general stiffness having overtaken him, he discovered an inability to walk downstairs, so stood on the top landing and barked until I carried him down, whereupon he limped off on his morning garbage route.

This novel method of transportation apparently appealed to him, as the process was repeated for days, until terminated one morning by the advent of a stray kitten who looked in at the front screen. The cripple made the steps in one bound, and the kitten went away from there.

Thereafter, when let out, the dog would carefully limp until he believed himself out of sight, whereupon he would be miraculously cured until again in sight of the house, when his injury would recur. How long this might have continued, is problematical. However, one day upon returning he caught sight of us all gathered on the front porch, and at once began to limp, but unfortunately on the left front paw. Instead of the sympathy he so confidently expected, he was received with jeers and laughter, which ruffled his dignity no end, but acted as a permanent cure.

Motherless Young Deer Thrives on Special Diet

Penn Yan, N. Y. (U.P.).—A motherless fawn, found near here, has been placed on a special diet and apparently is thriving.

The diet consists of one teaspoonful of cream with eight ounces of raw milk and one teaspoonful of limewater and an occasional bit of molasses, fed to it in a baby milk bottle.

The fawn, found near here in a weakened condition, is fed every three hours. It is believed the mother was either killed or driven away by dogs.

Missing Harbor Chief Feared Dead; Police Drag Potomac

Inspector Edwards then sent several policemen to Boyd's boat to see if Harney was all right.

Boyd said he had decided to take a nap about 3 p. m., and left Harney on deck. When he awoke at 7 he could not find his companion.

On the table in the cabin were the revolver, cap and coat, while a cigarette of the brand Harney smokes had burned to a butt on the deck rail.

"I called as loudly as I could, searched the boat from bow to stern and found nobody," said Boyd.

A searching party, headed by Inspector Edwards, motored up the Virginia side of the river to a point beyond Fort Humphreys late yesterday, while a special detachment of men from the Harbor Precinct dragged the river.

The shores on both sides will be searched today for Harney's body, and the river will be dragged further in an effort to solve the disappearance of the officer.

Harney was known as a poor swimmer. He was born in Washington and joined the police force July 1, 1903. He became a sergeant August 10, 1919, and was made a lieutenant six years later.

Tobacco Market Opens at 22 Cents

First Carolina Quotations Double 1933 Scale.

Mullins, S. C., Aug. 9 (AP).—Tobacco sold for nearly double its 1933 prices and at an average close to 22 cents a pound yesterday as the auction markets of the South Carolina and border belt began sales.

Farmers and business men greeted the opening with enthusiasm. Prices as a whole were all and more than most had expected and the tobacco belt was happy at the flow of cash started with the beginning of sales.

The opening break was light and the majority of tobacco offered of poor quality. The season has been retarded by weather and the bulk of the offerings was first primings.

WASH OUT 15 MILES OF KIDNEY TUBES

Win Back Pep . . . Vigor . . . Vitality

Medical authorities agree that your kidneys contain 15 MILES of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy.

If you have trouble with too frequent bladder passages with scanty amount causing burning and discomfort, the 15 MILES of kidney tubes need washing out. This danger signal may be the beginning of nagging backache, leg pains, loss of pep and vitality, getting up nights, lumbago, swollen feet and ankles, rheumatic pains and dizziness.

If kidneys don't empty 3 pints every day and get rid of 4 pounds of waste matter, your body will take up these poisons causing serious trouble. It may knock you out and lay you up for many months. Don't wait. Ask your druggist for DOAN'S PILLS . . . a doctor's prescription . . . which has been used successfully by millions of kidney sufferers for over 40 years. They give quick relief and will help to wash out the 15 MILES of kidney tubes.

But don't take chances with strong drugs or so-called "kidney cures" that claim to fix you up in 48 minutes, for they may seriously injure and irritate delicate tissues. Insist on DOAN'S PILLS . . . the old reliable relief that contain no "dope" or habit-forming drugs. Be sure you get DOAN'S PILLS at your druggist. © 1934, Foster-Milburn Co. —Advt.

Man Accuses Wife Of Attacking Him

Hagerstown, Md., Aug. 9 (Spl.).—Mrs. Charles Tracey, 36, Smithsburg, was arrested tonight on a charge of assault on her husband, who was recently released from the Washington County Hospital, where he has been for nearly seven months from gunshot wounds received at his home. Tracey swore to the warrant issued by Magistrate Richard Sweeney.

At the time of the shooting Mr. and Mrs. Tracey told conflicting stories, authorities said. The husband said he was shot when he reprimanded his wife for staying out all night. The wife said the shooting occurred after she had left the house when her husband attacked her with a poker.

Successful Odyssey.

"Art certainly can not advance under compulsion to the traditional forms." Were that statement in a book review it would attract no attention. But its appearance in a court decision is justly hailed as proof of the enlightened attitude which our Federal jurists are taking in regard to literature. The occasion of the remark was the upholding by the New York Court of Appeals of Federal Judge John M. Woolsey's ruling that "Ulysses," by James Joyce, is neither lewd, immoral, nor obscene.

Nearly 100 years ago Lord Elton proscribed the works of Southey, Byron and Shelley. Since then it has been exceedingly difficult to get our precedent-bound courts to take into consideration the spirit in which a book is written. "Ulysses" was kept from the country for years because of this, until Judge Woolsey, in a really remarkable decision, ordered the ban removed.

A dissenting opinion accompanied the latest triumph for intelligence, but it may well be ignored. What is important is that a book, whose merits were long known and which by no stretch of the imagination could be classified as demoralizing, has now won two remarkable decisions.

It may well be that "Ulysses" is destined to become better known for these decisions, which shattered the precedents of censorship, than for the jumbled jargon and experimental prose of its long and generally tedious chapters.

Let George Do It!

The Cuban Telephone Company, an affiliate of the American Telephone & Telegraph Company, has decided that the only way to settle apparently insoluble labor troubles is to let the Havana government assume responsibility. The company appears to have been relegated to the role of a rather helpless onlooker while the authorities and two warring factions of employes have been involved in a prolonged struggle that began with a strike several months ago.

Most of the workers have returned to their jobs but a militant minority has remained on strike, terrorizing the other workers and committing extensive sabotage. The government intervened, following refusal of the company to reinstate this group, and ordered their restoration to the pay roll. Thereupon, the other workers walked out and now threaten passive resistance if the state's decree becomes effective.

Under these circumstances, the company has decided to permit government representatives to take charge and operate the system, if it can, under guarantees against possible damage. The action taken by the Cuban Telephone Company may become an example for harassed employers of labor elsewhere, faced by governmental demands that are impossible of enforcement or certain to give rise to fresh causes of disturbance.

If public officials were forced to execute their own orders there would be far less unwise interference with private management and there would certainly be a better understanding of the basic problems that give rise to industrial disputes. Perhaps the Cuban Telephone Company has made a lasting contribution to the cause of industrial peace by showing the futility of trying to comply with official decrees that invite disorder and prolong strife.

Business And Population.

When the depression is studied from the perspective of the historian, changing population trends may prove to be one of its important contributory causes. Prior to the World War our population was increasing at the enormous rate of about 1,800,000 annually. Business and industry were geared to supply constantly increasing demands.

Now experts calculate the annual increase in population at 800,000 per year. Immigration has been virtually cut off. Depression has accentuated the sharply falling birth rate. Changed conditions of living have augmented the cost of raising a family, and birth control information has given a considerable percentage of American parents a means of regulating the number of their offspring. If the present trend continues, the number of people inhabiting this country will become stationary some time between 1940 and 1950. Even now the birth of children is scarcely sufficient to maintain our population at its present level.

The effect of such a trend upon business is obvious. The Kiplinger Washington Agency asserts that "many businesses are out of joint largely on this account." Executives who have assumed that demand for their goods would expand from year to year, as in the past, are paying for their mistake. Of course, the slowing down of population growth does not necessarily imply static business conditions in the future. But it does mean that hereafter business must look for its expansion in higher living standards.

Another factor of importance is the increasing age of the people who make up the consuming public. While the birth rate has been falling, the death rate has likewise taken a downward course. Fewer children are born, but the average individual lives longer. Experts calculate that 40 per cent of the people were under 20 years of age in 1920; that only 30 per cent will be under 20 forty years hence. The effect of this tendency, together with the mechanization of industry, is to make available more workers, though it need not lessen the demand for their products.

Nice For Speculators.

The nationalization of domestic silver stocks, excluding silver mined since December 21, 1933, is a logical and expected outcome of the passage of the silver-purchase act.

The domestic market for silver has been dominated by the Treasury for some time and the price of the metal has been pushed upward until it was close to the maximum figure at which purchases might be made. Exports of silver were banned a short time ago and on Thursday the Treasury issued an order requiring consular invoices for all imports of silver. As this move indicated an intention to keep track of imports, it was surmised that the long-awaited decision to nationalize stocks held in this country at the fixed rate of 50 cents per ounce would be announced almost immediately thereafter.

Purchases of silver by the stabilization fund are not made public, so that the amount already on hand it not known. However, all the silver that has been recently acquired, plus that to be taken over under the nationalization order, is a negligible proportion of the value of the country's monetary gold stocks. To attain the goal set by the silver-purchasing act— that is, to have one-fourth of the monetary value of all monetary stocks in the form of silver—will necessitate vigorous buying in world markets. The effect upon the future course of silver prices is problematical.

The fact that speculators have long anticipated the nationalization decree may have a depressing effect upon world silver prices, although the effect of the buying campaign has so far undoubtedly brought about a pronounced rise. Whether the arbitrary value of $1.29 per ounce, established for monetary purposes, will ever be attained or approached is a matter for guesswork. Certainly there are no precedents by which to judge the outcome of the new series of bewildering experiments upon which we have embarked.

Of chief significance for the time being is the indication that the Administration is still relying upon monetary expedients of an inflationary character to provide the needed stimulus to business. Silver speculators and shrewd financial observers will be in a position to enjoy some substantial and not well-earned gains. These gains, of course, will not extend to those uninformed citizens whom President Roosevelt delights to call "my friends." For the country as a whole, the introduction of more paper money into circulation, secured by arbitrarily revalued silver stocks, will have little immediate effect either upon business or prices.

Every fresh attempt to raise prices or stimulate buying of commodities by monetary manipulation results in uncertainty and encourages a transient speculative activity injurious to sound and lasting recovery. That can only come through a revival of business activity based upon confidence, not fear. In this latest development there is nothing to encourage confidence.

A Lesson From Hippocrates.

Nearing the end of his vacation the President paused, on Wednesday, at a town of less than 20,000 inhabitants and paid a tribute to two of its doctors. Doubtless that very appealing side of his character which most accounts for his personal popularity prompted the President to this action. Certainly the country at large endorses what he said of those brother-surgeons, William J. and Charles H. Mayo.

Rochester, Minn., had a less attractive visitor 50 years ago; a devastating tornado. But it proved to be one of the town's best benefits, since the disaster was a factor in causing the Sisters of St. Francis to found a hospital there. Dr. W. W. Mayo came to it as consulting surgeon in 1889, and his sons followed him. What they have done for the world the world well knows, and the President has now well applauded.

He has praised more than the Mayo brothers. He has justly symbolized in them the best ideals of the entire medical profession: "Devotion to the public good, unselfish service, never-ending consideration of human needs." These, as the President declared, should indeed form a pattern for all who serve the public, not only professionally but also in an Administration where devotion to party has not exceptionally overbalanced "devotion to the public good."

Strong Waters.

Errors are not often committed by the London Times. But it committed a sad blunder the other day. Reviewing an innocuous biography of Alfred de Vigny, that gentle poet of Cognac in general and Charante in particular, the literary supplement of the famous "Thunderer" observed:

> The Charante is certainly the best district in France for the production of cognac—a peculiarity which it owes as much to the nature of its water as to the nature of its vines.

What wonder if a shiver of dismay ran at once through all three parts of Gaul? M. Delamain, of Jarnac, is one of many Frenchmen to voice a lively protest * * * The English reviewer, said he, "evidently had in mind the importance of a certain quality in the water used for the distillation of whisky or the brewing of beer * * * The only part played by water in distilling brandy is that of cooling the coils of the serpentin. The idea of adding any water * * * if it had crossed the poet's mind, which is unlikely, would have horrified de Vigny's regisseur, Philippe Soulet, who knew too well the ancient traditions to take such liberties."

Indeed, as M. Delamain points out, Charante is not "the best district in France for the production of cognac"; it is the only one. French law allows the distillation of brandies elsewhere, but it allows only brandies produced in Cognac to be called "cognac."

France guards the purity of her alcoholic products. Not there could we expect such an advertisement as was lately published in The Bill-Board: an advertisement for "flavors" to convert raw alcohol into counterfeit brandy, whisky, gin or rum.

No Place For Radicalism?

Intelligent solution of public problems is never forwarded by platform heroics. Such heroics are particularly unfortunate when voiced by those whose positions make, or should make, their public utterances important. Rather less than nothing is gained, for instance, when the National Commander of the American Legion tells a local audience that if we understand the basic principles of our Constitution then we can find no place in America for radical teachings.

How anyone with any knowledge of the Constitution of the United States could reach such a conclusion remains a mystery. How anyone could regard the spirit of individual liberty which permeates that document as in any way compatible with abridging the freedom of speech, is inconceivable. Indeed, there is little hope for preservation of the Constitution as the vital basis of public opinion which it should be, if it is possible so flagrantly to misinterpret its intent, philosophy and purpose.

People do not need to be told that Communist doctrines in this country are more widely held than was the case before the depression. The American Legion, indeed, has scope for National service in combatting this growth, or any other forms of what is vaguely called "radicalism", by Constitutional and constructive means. But the way to do this is decidedly not through a public incitement of Fascist character. That for which there is most clearly "no place in America" is the passing of inquisitorial judgment by any group on what, or how, or when, its fellow-citizens may think.

Commander Hayes, in his address to the District Department of the Legion, further pointed to certain university students at Texas who are "in a quarrel with the legion because of propaganda inimical to the welfare of our Government." The issues involved, it appears, are "entanglements" with the World Court and the cancellation of war debts! By what twisted reasoning is it assumed that there is anything in any way improper in advocacy of either of these issues? The first, in particular, has been strongly urged by every President since the Court was founded. Have we reached the stage of bigoted and ignorant intolerance where it is going to be asserted that the present Chief Justice of the United States committed an act of disloyalty in serving as a judge of the "League Court"?

By intimating that those whose views differ from his are by that fact "unpatriotic," the commander reveals an attitude that heads toward approval of the tenets of the Silver Shirts and other equally un-American organizations. He is suggesting a philosophy which smacks of Hitlerism as a substitute for that upon which this country was founded. He has, within limits, a right to do so. But neither Commander Hayes nor anyone else has the right to distort the Constitution of this country in support of the astounding theory that there is no place in the United States for radical thought.

The Spirit of What?

One of the most famous of American paintings is "The Spirit of '76," by Archibald Willard, which now hangs in Abbott Hall in Marblehead, Mass.

Abbott Hall is an old wooden building. It dates from away back in the past, like everything else in Marblehead, that town of crooked streets and the memory of old Floyd Ireson and his hard heart. Now, suddenly, the good people of that seaport have decided that a wooden building is not the place for the famous painting. So a movement is under way to house it in new quarters.

This in itself is not amazing. What strikes us, however, is an innocent line in the caption of the photograph of the design for the new building which was printed the other day by the Boston Transcript. It describes the proposed structure as "fireproof and bombproof."

There seems to be an eloquent sermon in the statement that this picture, supposed to express the spirit of those battered warriors of 1776, should in 1934 have to be placed in a bombproof building and kept under a guard. And the text for that sermon is perhaps provided by the spokesman of those behind the removal project, who is quoted in the Transcript as saying that the guard will be posted at all times so that "no one who objects to the militarism of the piece can throw an ax through it, or something."

There seems to be something more than years between the Spirit of '76 and the Spirit of '34, in Marblehead.

A Parade of the Past From the Files of The Post.

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY.

ENGLAND CLOSED the North Sea to shipping and warned the masters of all fishing vessels not to put out to sea until further notice. This was regarded as a signal for the expected combat between the German and British fleets, which were reported present in the waters of the North Sea.

THE GERMAN FLEET at Tsingtau seized a Russian steamer, drove 100 merchantmen to refuge in Japanese ports and embarrassed all Japanese shipping in the Orient. Japan was still holding her navy in readiness for action and was also mobilizing a few of her troops.

IT WAS STATED that Canada planned to seek a loan from the New York money market to meet its new war debt, estimated to be not less than $100,000,000.

Letters to the Editor

The Post welcomes letters from its readers. All communications must be signed with the writer's name and address. Upon publication initials or pen names will be used if requested. Letters are subject to condensation and in no case should they exceed 250 words.

What Makes Superiority.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Let me congratulate you upon the fact that you have published the letter of Paul V. Murray on Mexico and Spanish rule there.

My father, the late Alexander R. Shepherd, of Washington, moved to Mexico in 1880 with his family. I spent my early life as a child, and manhood, in that country. I grew up there and knew intimately the people in all walks of life.

I frankly state that it has always been a nauseating thing to me that books and articles should be published and put out in this country by reputable firms and newspapers, not because they possessed virtue and demonstrated a knowledge of the subject, but because the name of the author was well known to the public through something written on another subject which by chance had become popular, and hence he or she had been advertised.

This attitude unfortunately has extended at times (far too many times) to our Government officials and Cabinet members, who have refused to accept facts from men of undoubted standing, and who have acted on information from grossly ignorant sources.

If the press of these "almost United States" wishes to assist in good feeling (one great element, by the way, in obtaining foreign trade) let them publish articles from the brains and pens of those who know.

My loyalty to my Nation is demonstrated by the records of the War Department and by years of suffering and financial loss. Patriotism is not demonstrated by insulting other nations and peoples and glossing over errors or crimes perpetrated by our own Nation or individual citizens of our Nation. A superior race is such when it has demonstrated the fact and only then. GRANT SHEPHERD.

The "Wallupping" League.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Please permit me to disagree with your editorial "Not a Second League" of August 5. The so-called League of Nations was devised by the victorious allies mainly to give them a clear title to properties they stole right and left from the defeated central powers and to hamstring them forever. In consequence the league has wallupped in the mire of iniquity ever since, as the present chaos in trembling Europe shows.

As long as the league is unable to bring peace to the squabbling peoples in Europe, it is impotent to be of any good service to nations on the other continents. Japan, rightly, resents quarreling Europe interfering in the affairs of Asia. So would this country, if we had any troubles with our good neighbors, Canada or Mexico.

Each continent should, first of all, have its own league. It would be less unwieldy. So far as the two Americas are concerned, we already have the nucleus for such a league in that splendid and ideal organization, the Pan-American Union, and if the right spirit is developed and shown, will bring the long-sought peace and happiness to the peoples on this side of the world.

I pray and hope American newspapers will foster such a spirit.

Lyric Washington.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I fear that many of the residents of Washington are not aware of the many canvases of rare scenic beauty spread before them. Familiarity breeds indifference. More's the pity!

Take a summer evening, for instance, at dusk. Seat yourself on a bench at the border of the Ellipse in such a position that your back is toward the State, War and Navy Building.

Directly ahead is a perspective wherein the wonderful row of noble, hundred-foot trees is diminished to a rich half circle of luxuriant shrubbery with the dome of the kaleidoscopic sky above it. Involuntarily, the eye centers on the lovely, slender, cream-colored shaft of the Monument that rises so proudly to pierce the low-lying wisps of pink and white cloudlets floating by.

See the twinkling headlights of the autos, like fireflies, flitting along close to the ground through that shrubbery! Note the bolder white-globed lights, slightly higher, steady beacons of white at the cross paths all 'round being challenged by the developing star mosaic in the dome overhead! The immense stretch of pale green carpet of lawn in the foreground becomes myriad-hued by the changing lights and shadows; the shrubbery turns deeper green, then almost black; the sky mellows and ripens from opalescent hues, until you find yourself gazing at a rich purple canopy of space.

Then the climax develops with the gradual illumination of the lower part of the shaft by hidden searchlights, dissolving its creamy tint to a silvery white, and when from the exquisitely pointed tip of the Monument down its entire length glides the white rays of other hidden searchlights that shaft becomes a dazzling monolith of alabaster loveliness, sharply etched against a velvet background.

Why, man alive, it's enough to make even a hard-boiled old codger like the writer, grateful! And then there were only a half dozen benches occupied on the night in question. JOHN W. WARD.

Weather Signs.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Judging from the recent revival of Administration stories against bankers and heads of power companies, some brand-new "New Deal" reform must be in the offing. When moisture clouds gather in the sky we know from experience that it is likely to rain. Also from experience we have come to recognize the symptoms of the "New Deal" strategy; that when the Administration causes one of its numerous branches to "release" to the country some particularly sensational story involving some bankers, brokers, publishers, produce dealers, Tories or just plain stuffed shirts, we are about to be treated to a new kind of experiment. These sensational stories offer an opportunity to stir up the public mind to a point where, for a time at least, it will accept a hand in the "deal" which otherwise it would not countenance.

The successive timing of these releases just before the launching of each particularly oppressive piece of Federal encroachment causes one to question the good faith of the disclosures. With the recently released accusations against the entire banking community of Detroit, we wonder what new experiment is in store for us.

Dillinger Rackets.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your editorial, "A National Disgrace," which appeared in The Post of August 1 should appeal to the heart of every American citizen. What are we coming to anyway!

Imagine such a situation as the family of the outlaw Dillinger touring the country on the vaudeville stage! If crime is to be extolled and relatives of criminals are to be put in the most prominent places to be admired by all, by all means let crime rule the day and hour, and justice retire from the scene of America's stage forever. The placing of Dillinger's family in such prominence will be a great incentive to our lawbreakers to go and do as this arch criminal did, and the lives of innocent law-abiding citizens will be as nothing in their hands.

In the name of America, I as one who loves her country, thank you most sincerely. E. M. B.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Allow me to express my hearty appreciation of two of the editorials in The Washington Post of August 1, 1934. The two articles are "A National Disgrace" and "Temporizing With Peace." More fire to your pen when you write thus.

"Can Such Things Be?"

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I have passed through Washington many times and have often wondered why tourists have to be hailed continuously by guides dressed like policemen who, with assumed authority, motion them to stop, or they jump on the running boards when cars are stopped by a signal light, and offer to assist.

If you ask for information or request the location of a hotel, these guides persistently insist that you should go to some other place which is just as good and much more reasonable. A guide confidently told me that he received $1.25 for placing a party of five persons in a tourist home and after taking them on a sightseeing trip induced them to go to another place the following night, receiving an additional $1.25 (for the assistance?). Most tourists know where they are going and want proper directions for reaching their destination.

Soliciting business on the streets of Washington is becoming a nuisance, and no other city that I know of would tolerate it. Tourists, while annoyed, are not sufficiently interested to make a protest, as their stay in Washington is limited and their next visit to this city is indefinite.

Guides should be given every opportunity to carry on their business, but it should be conducted in a way that is not objectionable to visitors just because their cars bear license plates of States other than Maryland or Virginia.

The fees charged for the sightseeing trips are in some cases excessive, and it would seem that there should be some regulation and a uniform price adopted for the particular service rendered.

"Tuggie."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your editoryial anent Dr. Tugwell and the triple threat (AAA) has had my profound attention. Why be so formal and refer to him as Dr. or Prof.? Why not just "Tuggie?" He is making a heck of an effort to tug us up by our bootstraps. Now just what does a farmer know about an obscurantist? What is the gender, and if so, why? Diving down with Noah Webster, we find that an obscurantist is one who does not comprehend what the rantists are all driving at. Yours for bigger and better words!

As Others See It

Picture of a President.

One of the finest pictures of President Roosevelt is that of him standing before the drought-stricken farmers. His suit is soiled from the dust clouds through which he has ridden inspecting the dried-up lakes and ruined farms. The sweat runs down the dirt caked on his face. His quick smile is missing as he looks into the faces of the men who were so recently prosperous grain farmers and stockmen, but are now on the dole.

They want a Missouri River dam to store the future waters. They want the Government to build it. They want the President to promise.

The President is human. He wants to promise anything that will give hope to these victims.

And the President is a politician. These men are voters and they are disgruntled. Obviously a political gesture is called for—a campaign promise.

So the President stands there, looking into their worn but expectant faces. Then he speaks very slowly and without oratory:

"It is a problem. I would not try to fool you by saying we know the solution of it. We don't. I believe in being frank, and what I can tell you from the bottom of my heart is this: If it is possible for us to solve the problem we are going to do it."

So there was no easy promise by a demagogue, no political trickery, no quack with a cure-all. Yet the disappointed drought victims cheered. It was their tribute to honesty in high office.

Earliest Colonies

Postoffice, Friday.

WAS the settlement of Maryland really "an experiment in transplanted feudalism?" Was there really "nothing to surprise us in Raleigh's abandonment of Roanoke?"

These remain delicate questions while the Maryland tercentenary is a living thing and while Virginia celebrates Sir Walter's disastrous adventure. Yet they are questions that have just now been evoked by no less a personage than Charles M. Andrews.

Dr. Andrews, as of course you know, is by way of being an authority. He has served the cause of history on the faculty of Bryn Mawr and Johns Hopkins. He has for three years been director of Yale's historical publications, and he is the author of almost as many histories as he has directed. Now the New York University Press issues a volume of his lectures on "Our Earliest Colonial Settlements, Their Diversities of Origin and Later Characteristics."

It is this volume that raises the questions we have just asked—or, more properly, repeated.

We would not dare to suggest that our Charles has failed to read another Charles on Raleigh. Dr. Andrews is doubtless familiar with Kingsley's brilliant essay. But Dr. Andrews doesn't seem wholly to agree with Dr. Kingsley's estimate of the man who made smoking popular in Europe. The American scholar, as a British critic puts it, "knows very well, and lets his reader know, that the capacity to die and to write nobly is not in itself a sign of a noble character . . . For the greater part of his life, Raleigh's contemporaries were far from thinking him a hero."

Well, not an unmixed hero, we should say.

But, then, what hero is?

Dr. Andrews is not quite clear as to how much of this hero was "imperial dreamer" and how much "rapacious courtier." For the matter of that, however, neither is our British critic:

"A lesser man than Raleigh would not have spent 40.000 pounds on fruitless expeditions; a nobler man would not have had the 40.000 pounds to spend. The Elizabethan seamen may have been crusaders wreaking 'vengeance on the despoilers of the world's peace,' but they were crusaders rather in the mode of the Doge Dandolo than of the Baron of the Holy Sepulchre." So that abandonment of Roanoke was merely an expression of the spirit of Raleigh, and Raleigh was merely an expression of the spirit of his age—and that's why, no matter whether it puzzles Dr. Andrews or not, the abandonment contains "nothing to surprise us."

After you have made all the mental reservations occasioned by a memory of James Bryce, there are few phases of historical criticism that cast so much light on the British mind as British criticisms of Americans' historical studies of America. Our English critic of Dr. Andrews, writing in the London Times, continues:

"The Maryland experiment in transplanted feudalism is shown to us as the unique thing it was, unique in its legal conceptions, and almost unique in the fact that the Calvert family made a very handsome fortune out of their colony. One may ask if the difference between immediate and mediate divine commission does not invalidate the claim made for Lord Baltimore that he 'was a lord of Maryland by divine right, quite as much so indeed as ever was a Stuart the King of England.' And one may wonder at the erection of the Calvert family history into an example of 'the degeneracy that has accompanied far too often the later history of the English nobility.'"

But our muttons are burning. We must get back to them:

This book is a good deal more than a consideration of Sir Walter Raleigh and Lord Baltimore's descendants. It will raise dissent in several States of the Union.

Dr. Andrews, for example, has a poor opinion of Rhode Island. She is not, he seems to think, and never has been, the mother of greatness. He points out that she has not, to any Presidential administration, presented a single Cabinet member . . . Please page the late Senator Aldrich!

More: Dr. Andrews admits certain good qualities to the founders of Massachusetts, but he "doubts the permanent value of their institutions." Unlike the late Prof. Channing, this professor understands perfectly why these founders weren't loved by their neighbors. And he states frankly what he considers to be the reasons.

Connecticut is Prof. Andrews' favorite State, and her colonial history is for him the fairest history among all the Colonies. In the view of our transatlantic friend, "it is . . . in his account of the State of Connecticut that the objectivity of the historian is most severely tested and most triumphantly survives the test."

Well, that's one way of putting it. The fact is—

(If Virginia has tuned in on this unprejudiced report of ours, or, if Massachusetts has tuned in and survived thus far, they had better both tune out immediately.)

The fact is that Dr. Andrews believes Connecticut "to have been an even more fruitful mother of greatness than Virginia and Massachusetts!"

"ANDREWS, Charles McLean, historian; born Feb. 22, 1863, Wethersfield, Conn."

Barging Through Europe With Carlisle Bargeron

Parity, at Last!

AT SEA. — Dear Aleck: Before we get too far away from the quaint city of Norfolk I want to tell you about the wonderful way in which they have brought about parity between agriculture and industry. It is the only instance in the State that I know of this being effected.

BARGERON.

We came across it quite by accident. We were watching the peanut growers in the Monticello Hotel sow their peanuts, if that is what they do to peanuts, Aleck. So many people when they go traveling, Aleck, spend all of their time in rubber-neck busses but I always make it a point to get among the natives and study them, their manners, their speech, their dress, their pursuits.

The reason for this is that if I am to be a National planner I realize I should be well grounded in sociology. How, when I become a National planner, will I know how many doses of milk for mothers to give their babies, if I don't know sociology? I appreciate the responsibilities of the career I am undertaking, Aleck. Don't you think, if everybody was as sincere about his particular work in life, that we would all be happier?

* * * *

Well, there I was getting grounded in sociology by watching the peanut growers, or as they call themselves so quaintly, the goober pushers, when I noticed that as each grower or pusher moved along the trench he was accompanied by a Government inspector. It was this inspector's duty to see that the grower or pusher didn't sow too many peanuts or goobers.

Every now and then a dispatch rider would come to him with a message, which I learned to be from the goober headquarters at Washington, telling how many goobers were needed in the country at that particular time. He would adjust his goober quotas accordingly.

* * * *

But what attracted my attention most of all was that periodically the goober pusher would stop and exchange places with the Federal inspector. That is to say, the goober pusher would stop in his goober sowing, hand his goober seeds to the Federal inspector and the inspector would, in turn, give his pencil and pad to the goober grower. Then they would start off again, the Federal inspector sowing the seeds, the goober pusher making the records and issuing the crop quotas. After a time, they would switch around again.

I had never seen anything quite like this before, Aleck. In Washington, as you know, the inspectors are always the inspectors and the growers always the growers. I asked about it.

* * * *

It developed that after a few months under the Revolution the Norfolk goober growers got tired of going along all the time sowing goobers and having the inspectors go along with them, keeping the records and awarding the quotas. There was much grumbling and discontent and talk of going back to the old order.

Finally, one day a goober grower in the act of sowing his goobers suddenly stopped and handing his goober seeds to the Federal inspector, said, "Here, you sow awhile." It is not to be supposed that the inspector agreed willingly, but the grower was so persistent that the inspetcor finally acquiesced.

You know how things like this spread. The goober grower was anxious to spread the tidings among his grower friends of how he had effected parity between himself and the Federal inspector. The inspector, chagrined beyond all words, at the way things had turned out, was at the same time anxious that his fellow inspectors had no better break than he.

* * * *

So it came about that over all the goober countryside it was arranged that the growers and inspectors should take turns at sowing and inspecting. It means an even division of the work between the producer and the parasite. It is parity between agriculture and industry at last.

Hail Hurts Apple Crop in Virginia

Window Panes Shattered at Broadway.

Harrisonburg, Va., Aug. 9 (Spl.).—Unestimated damage to the Timberville Chestnut Ridge orchards was inflicted today by a severe hail and rain storm.

The brunt of the storm, according to reports, was felt in Broadway and in the Timberville orchard north of Broadway. In Broadway, window panes were smashed. Hail stones as large as turkey eggs fell. The hail storm was described as the severest in 50 years.

A torrent of rain accompanied the storm as it swept south from Broadway toward Harrisonburg. In the Chestnut Hill orchards, there was a heavy fall of hail.

Southern California Sales Sag Under NRA

Effect of Recovery Program's Earlier Phases Is Wearing Off, Says Los Angeles Banker Citing Uncertainty of People.

Los Angeles, Aug. 9 (Spl.).—The feeling of business leaders here appears to be in general that the recovery program has lost its earlier force and that this portion of the country, at least, is undergoing a sag.

One leading business man said the picture was reflected in figures of sales of leading Los Angeles department stores. He cited them in percentages of dollar volume as compared with the same month last year:

January, 1934, up 15 per cent.
February, up 7 per cent.
March, up 32 per cent.
April, no change.
May, down 5 per cent.
June, down 6 per cent.
Average for first six months, 1934, up 7 per cent.

"Gross electricity sales are up considerably over a year ago," said Henry M. Robinson, chairman of the board of Security First National Bank, "but an increase in taxes has more than offset this gain so that this industry is left just about where it was a year ago.

"Sagging Now," Says Banker.

"I think on the whole that we are all somewhat better off than we were a year ago, but it seems to me as though much of the effect of the earlier phases of the recovery program has worn off and that we are sagging now.

"There is an abundance of credit here and everywhere else. I recall testimony by Dr. Goldenweiser, of the Federal Reserve Board, before one of the Congressional committees to the effect, as I remember it, that there was approximately $100,000,000,000 more credit available now than ever before in the history of the country.

"But with so much uncertainty there is little disposition to use it. You will find some purchases of small homes going on. People are putting their money into property, feeling that is the safest place for it in a period like this.

"One thing that is very apparent here is the increase in night life. Many persons ask themselves what is the use of saving. They don't know what will happen so if they have any money there is a great temptation to go out and spend it and enjoy it while they have it."

Farm Legislation Criticized.

Another banker, one of the members of the RFC advisory board for Southern California, discussed the effect of moratorium legislation. He said his bank's attorneys were studying the Frazier-Lemke farm moratorium legislation passed at the close of the last session to determine its effect. Meantime this bank has stopped making farm loans because of this legislation.

"I question whether this bank, representing some 100,000 depositors and entrusted with the safe handling of their money, has the right to put it into farm mortgages now when we are uncertain as to what rights the lender has," he said. "This legislation and other similar moratorium legislation is all aimed to protect and relieve the borrower. It seems to me that some attention should be paid to protecting the lender. He should have some assurance that he will be able to get his money back.

"Moratorium legislation has lowered the morale, in my opinion. There is no longer any sacred duty to pay a debt.

"I think most business men out here would say that the Administration has done a great deal of good. Certainly it must be given credit for trying. But people can't see the end of the trail, and they don't understand what the Administration is trying to do, and that's why business has not gone ahead.

"The Government has an avowed policy of low money rates, but what good has it accomplished except to enable the Government to borrow at low rates? The Government borrows it from the banks, and they are taking that money and lending it out at lower rates than the banks are able to offer. We have plenty of funds to loan. We are seeking good commercial loans. But people are not borrowing any more than they need and there is no justification for making bad loans."

Labor Troubles Factor.

West coast labor troubles have had a depressing effect. San Francisco's dock tie-up brought the port of Los Angeles a good deal of diverted business temporarily because this port was kept open. But the judgment of business men is that it has been responsible for a slowing down generally.

Lumber has been bad. The citrus industry is fair. Deciduous fruit, especially peaches, have suffered from a bad winter and the crop is light. Petroleum has improved due to the cleaning out of much internal trouble through the oil code. Apartment houses show some reduction in vacancies. Movies have had considerable trouble—aside from the censorship fight.

In a recent survey, the Los Angeles Times found that larger businesses were inclined to favor NRA. They found the trade practice restrictions advantageous. Much the same feeling was found in businesses of average size. Small business men were the violent objectors. More than half of them said they were not able to maintain the standards set for wages and hours because their margin of operation was too small.

Defeated Purpose, Is View.

In general, the feeling toward NRA here is that it has increased the cost of doing business and of production in advance of an increased revenue from production and has to some extent defeated its purpose. However, there is general support for NRA's elimination of child labor and for wiping out of objectionable practices. Informed persons in the business community say that if a poll were taken of Los Angeles business men, the answer probably would be for retaining much of NRA.

The courts now have one interesting case brought by a large wholesale grocery house. It has formally given notice that it refuses to go under the code and has invited prosecution to test the issue and carry it if necessary to the Supreme Court. This company says the code would force it to take an unjustifiable profit on sugar which it has been using as a leader among small independent retail grocers. The wholesaler says this would work hardship on small grocers who would not be able to compete with chains buying sugar in quantity.

Unemployment is acute in southern California, where an unusual percentage of floaters have come in. On July 18 the county relief rolls showed 105,509 cases drawing relief. Since then the State emergency relief administraton, which is linked with FERA, has taken over about 20,000 of these cases.

Mrs. Roosevelt Slips Out of N. Y.

Headed North, She Refuses to Disclose Plans.

New York, Aug. 9 (AP).—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt returned today from her "off-the-record" vacation, only to leave the city again a few hours later.

This time, her secretary said, she was going on a holiday so quiet it could not even be described as an "off-the-record" vacation. She left, headed upstate, wth "a few frends."

Mrs. Roosevelt would not disclose her destination, the names of her companions or even her mode of travel. While she planned to stop at Hyde Park, the Roosevelt country home, it was said she would not remain there, but will meet the President there August 25.

Black Fawn Is Spurned By all But Its Mother

Charleston, W. Va., Aug. 9 (AP).—Lou Totten, 35, Brooklyn, dance marathon judge, was killed today on the mezzanine floor of the Daniel Boone Hotel here. Dr. O. T. Lyon, 32, a dentist, found Totten and Mrs. Lyon together.

Consumer, Take a Bow!

UP TO 1930 OR THEREABOUTS, the producer was the much-coddled star in the economic drama . . . with the Government his ever-eager bodyguard. But times have changed. Now the consumer has the center of the stage. No longer is he a weak, harried figure . . . but a huge, symbol, blocking the entire economic horizon. And, as such, he is the keystone of recovery . . . says Stuart Chase. In the sixth of a series of eight illuminating articles, Mr. Chase tells why he believes this is so . . . and why the Administration must transfer the spotlight of its attention from producer to consumer if we are to have a genuine New Deal.

No End of Books

By Theodore Hall

So Many People

ITS a cliche of the critics to remark of a novel—you will know these characters better than you know your own friends. Well, do you? I doubt it.

THEO. HALL.

The novelist may set out a vast array of omniscient data. Like Joyce, he may tell you all his character's thoughts. Like Lawrence, he may tell you what his character dreams of a night. Like Arnold Bennett or Sinclair Lewis, he may set down just what his character had for breakfast and whether he chose to wear the polka-dot tie or the pinstripe. And what do we know from that? At best, I believe, a huge scaffold of generalities, variously interesting, presumptively alive. But I'll lay my hat that we wouldn't recognize Leopold Bloom or George Babbitt on the street. Even after and hour's talk with Anthony Adverse in mufti, all we'd gain would be a faint reminiscence (which reminds me that we must pronounce Mr. Adverse's name "Antony"—thus proving 400,000 readers can be wrong).

No, there are too many gaps in the scaffold for even the most indefatigable novelist to fill. And why should he? The chief reason we read novels is to meet a lot of people quite different from our friends, and we want to learn of them in a more efficient, a more dramatic way. As to our friends, we may not know which one murdered his grandmother, but we know altogether too much on the breakfast plane of life. Even the best of friends are boring at times. And every mother's son of a novelist knows that, and leaves out of his characterization more than he puts in. As Mr. Kipling said: "There is no answer to ennui."

So the above cliche is remarkably silly. You won't know all these people in today's novels from A to Zed, but you'll find them, according to merit, interesting, amusing, and suggestive.

Ted Borlay, English shopkeeper's son, thought the world of his elder brother. When Alf married Laura, it was so much poison to the lad. But when Alf died, Ted had to wed Laura to be near the child — the blood and the image of Alf.

John Hampson tells this story with admirable restraint in "Brothers and Lovers" (Farrar & Rinehart, $2.50). It lacks the intense pathological compression of "Sons and Lovers," to which the publishers make a bow. But it is an honest and rather beautiful study of the tight blood bond which is both the glory and the pain of family life. In England, the book was entitled "Strip Jack Naked," from which a departure in any direction would have been an improvement.

But I'm almost as interested in Mr. Hampson himself—"son," says the blurb, "of Mme, Simpson, of Uitoxeter Newroad, England, a swimming instructor of considerable repute." Moreover, he is "a brother of Mr. 'Jimmy' Simpson, the racing motor cyclist, and a cousin of Miss Dorothy Jordan Lloyd." Which must make things very nice.

Miss Constance Holme's first novel, "Crump Folk Going Home" (1913), has just been issued in the World's Classics Series by the Oxford University Press ($.80). English village life, told in prose which reads like pure poetry.

"Here we are on Tom Tiddler's Ground, Picking up gold and silver."

So runs the call of players in an old English game. And so runs the later life of Cornish Tom Florey, a lad with a weak heart, poor background, considerable verve and push, who rises in the petty bureaucracy of London during the war to gay and lively fortunes.

Edward Shanks ("Queer Street," "The Enchanted Village") makes a huge and unusualty absorbing story of Tom, his loves, his friends, his futile flight from Nemesis, in "Tom Tiddler's Ground" (Bobbs-Merrill, $2.50). It's got 552 pages, and more characters and action than you could shake a stick at. Everybody he meets crops up time and again. Mr. Shanks keeps his fine eye for incident, his cutting edge for comment.

Eden Phillpotts is 72, and still writes about two novels a year. That's not so astonishing as the fact that they're singularly alive and engaging novels. You'll like the latest—"The Oldest Inhabitant" (Macmillan, $2.50), a tale of old Thomas Otter, "a artfuller and more utterly devious and downy old man than he is don't draw breath."

"Grandfer" meddles with the lives of nine people, brings everything out right. This delicious folk comedy of Devonshire will surely delight one out of three novel readers.

A lovely English lady and big, bad Indians in the days of the covered wagon get all mixed up in Dane Coolidge's "Silver Hat" (Dutton, $2). Mr. Coolidge wrote "The Fighting Danites" last fall, knows the old West like a book and packs a tale between covers which will make you forget dinner time.

Still, you probably know and recognize your corner grocer better than you will the villainous "Harold Chasing-Butterflies."

Waynesboro Is Host To Odd Fellows Today

Waynesboro, Va., Aug. 9 (Spl.).—Several hundred Odd Fellows are expected here tomorrow for the meeting of the Augusta County Odd Fellows Association. Waynesboro Lodge, No. 198, will be host.

T. C. Coleman, Farmville, grand master of the Odd Fellows of Virginia; C. C. Leap, past grand master, and Louis Spilman will speak. J. H. Furr is program chairman.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

Those Speedy Divorces.

America is now streamlining its divorce courts.

* * * *

We are even designing our judges' gowns to cut down wind resistance.

* * * *

The five-minute divorce is getting to be as common as the minute steak and the four-minute egg.

* * * *

And our most prominent people are setting the pace. Mrs. Curtis B. Dall got a ten-minute divorce in Minden, Nev., a few days ago, and just before that Mrs. W. G. McAdoo took one in five minutes, elapsed time.

* * * *

Last May John Gilbert got one in Los Angeles in three minutes flat. He could have done better except for strong headwinds.

* * * *

To get a divorce you need not only a lawyer, but a reputable timekeeper. A stopwatch is indispensable. It is not so much a question of "Did you get a divorce, my dear?" as "Did you lower the record?"

* * * *

* * * *

A wife decides she doesn't like her husband any more. She grabs a streamline train to the nearest airport and flies to Nevada, California or Mexico. The judge hears of her arrival and whizzes to court on a racing motorcycle.

* * * *

In the meantime the lady's lawyers are warming up by chasing a mechanical rabbit out behind the courthouse.

* * * *

The court crier opens the season by crying "On your marks!"

* * * *

Counsel—Does your honor wish to hear all the evidence in this case?

Judge—No. I'll take three minutes' worth. On what grounds does the plaintiff seek a divorce?

Counsel—She is in too great a hurry to care.

Judge—Does the husband object?

Wife (impatiently)—What's holding up this case, Judge? Are you slowing up?

Judge—I grant this lady a divorce and place the children in the custody of Barney Oldfield, Maj. Hawks and Equipoise.

* * * *

Plaintiff—What was the time on that, please?

Timekeeper—Three minutes four and two-fifths seconds, and with the track in only fair shape.

Plaintiff—Oh, goody, goody! That lowers my last divorce by five-sixteenths of a second.

* * * *

What a country! Are we speed mad or are we speed mad!

Next.

O, Janus, you might be famous
For your heads divine; but You'd despair in a barber's chair,
With the heat at 99.

Antique Show Is State's First

Best Collection Ever Seen by South Planned in Albemarle.

Charlottesville, Va., Aug. 9 (Spl.).—Virginia's first antique show will be held in Charlottesville August 29, 30 and 31 and September 1, and, according to its promoters, will bring under one roof the largest collection of antiques ever shown in the South.

The show will be given in the main building at Huntley Park under the sponsorship of the Charlottesville School for Boys. Prominent leaders of the city, Albemarle County and the university comprise the executive committee, of which Mrs. James Gordon Smith, of Greenwood, is chairman. The other members are Mrs. J. Gordon Lindsay, Mrs. P. H. Faulconer, sr., and Mrs. W. A. Rinehart, of this city; Mrs. Pliny Fishburne, of Waynesboro; Mrs. Smith, wife of Judge Lemuel F. Smith, of the circuit court; Mrs. Arthur W. Talcott, of Keswick; Mrs. Albert H. Morrill, of Enniscorthy, this county, and Cincinnati, and Mrs. William R. Duke, of Sunnyside, this county.

Present indications are that there will be from 20 to 30 exhibitors from the Old Dominion and the District of Columbia. Charlottesville will have several notable collections on display. From other sections of the State will come some of the finest samples of English and American furniture.

Petersburg May Get Meat-Canning Plant

Petersburg, Va., Aug. 9 (Spl.).—Negotiations are reported under way for a meat-canning plant to be operated here by the Emergency Relief Administration. An inspection will be made shortly of plants available in order to find one suitable for this use, it is understood.

The plants, of which there will be six or eight in Virginia, will process beef cattle into canned beef.

The National Gallery

CLYDE B. AITCHISON, Interstate Commerce Commissioner, appointed October 5, 1917, Acted as chairman in 1919 and in 1925. Distinguished as utility and tax expert prior to entering Federal service. Became member of Iowa bar in 1896. Practiced law in Council Bluffs. Moved to Oregon in 1903 and became secretary of commission to revise Oregon tax laws, subsequently becoming member of Oregon Railroad Commission. Member of Arts, Cosmos, National Press and Congressional Country Clubs.

Such a large proportion of those who have been pictured by Mr. Robles have asked for the originals that The Washington Post is saving all these drawings to honor the requests of any future members of "The National Gallery."

Ease of Separation Depends On What Joined Them

By Robert Quillen.

The fact that some men succeed in business is sufficient proof that others can if they use the same methods.

The fact that some people make a success of marriage is likewise proof that all people could if they would follow the same rules.

The rules are simple and differ little from the rules required to make all comradeship successful.

First, there is the matter of authority. Unless one is competent and willing to lead and the other by nature or habit inclined to follow, there must be equality of rank. When there are descisions to make, and disagreements, they must find a solution by compromise, as adult equals do, without sullen surrender or ungenerous victory, remembering they are partners and not antagonists.

Second in importance is the matter of fair play or sportsmanship. What is fair for one must be fair for the other. As nature has made them different, so they will have different obligations and duties, but the liberty, consideration, loyalty, service, affection and respect required by one must be granted to the other.

Third in importance is courtesy. The marriage vows do not annul the obligations of good breeding. The privacy of home and the familiarity of constant association do not alter the requirements of good manners.

Fourth is the preservation of dignity. Without modesty and privacy, there is a loss of self-respect; and any loss of self-respect is charged against the one who caused or witnessed it.

Little rules to govern the details of living are unnecessary, for equality, fairness, courtesy and dignity are comprehensive enough to cover every emergency.

Yet these can do no more than preserve a marriage that is happy and congenial in the beginning.

Those who would be "one flesh" must be one in spirit, and to achieve this union they must be of the same class and have similar standards and tastes, so that neither can feel scornful or inferior.

The married are comrades in arms—for one another against the world, instinctively and eternally loyal—or there is no marriage worth preserving.

"Speech Clinic" Group Visits Children's Home

Thirty-five members of the Community Chest "speech clinic" were guests of the youngsters at the Children's Country Home, Eighteenth and Bunker Hill road northeast, last night at a meeting addressed by Mrs. Elwood Street and Leon Elsberg, of the District Transient Bureau.

The older children, about 6 years old, included Earle Weekley, hero of the Community Chest film last year, and they assisted Miss Florence Abbott, superintendent, in entertaining.

Camp Reeder Hospital Unit to Be Constructed

Construction of a hospital unit for Camp Reeder, Boys' Club camp on the Wicomico River, is being planned by the Junior Board of Commerce following the successful ticket sale for a boxing bout last Monday which provided funds enough to give 50 boys a two-week stay at the camp.

Greencastle Council Acts to Force Paving

Greencastle, Pa., Aug. 9 (Spl.).—The town council has taken preliminary steps to force the laying of a pavement in front of the Rahauser property here.

The property covers nearly a block. Some months ago residents of the east part of the town presented a petition to council declaring the lack of a pavement is inconvenient and dangerous.

Loudoun Corn-Hog Contracts Are Mailed

Leesburg, Va., Aug. 9 (Spl.).—Two hundred and fourteen corn-hog contracts with Loudoun County farmers were forwarded yesterday to Washington from the office of County Agent J. R. Lintner.

Approximately $45,000 will be paid to Loudoun County farmers on these corn-hog reductions throughout the year, according to the agent.

Staunton Aid Limit Is $10.80 a Month

Staunton, Va., Aug. 9 (Spl.).—Under the reduced emergency relief appropriation, no family in Staunton can receive more than $10.80 a month, and it is almost impossible to accept new cases.

This information was made public yesterday by public welfare officials.

Daily Talk About Books and Authors.

"Aeness Africanus."

The author of this miniature classic is Harry Stillwell Edwards, who was born at Macon, Ga., in 1855, and lives there now. He was graduated from Mercer University, at Macon, has been editor of the Macon Telegraph, the Evening News and Sunday Times, was Postmaster for 13 years, was delegate at large to the Republican National Convention in 1904, and formally seconded the nomination of Theodore Roosevelt for the South.

In 1920 he was independent candidate for the U. S. Senate; he originated the Stone Mountain Memorial half-dollar and secured its issue in 1925. He is a member of the National Institute of Arts and Letters. His book "Sons and Fathers" won the $10,000 prize offered by the Chicago Record, and he is the author of many other works. But what I emphaize right now is this tiny booklet, which is already a part of American literature, and will not be forgotten—"Aeneas Africanus."

It has 47 pages and is published by the J. W. Burke Co., at Macon, Ga. If you have not read this book, you will do well to send 50 cents to this firm and get a copy.

"Aeneas Africanus" is an imperishable portrait of the old-style Southern Negro, which no Northerner has ever understood. As the type is vanishing with melancholy rapidity, it is fortunate that Mr. Edwards chose to preserve him forever in these few pages. It shows the kindly, intimate, gracious relations between the Southern ladies and gentlemen, on the one hand, and the old-fashioned Negro, on the other—and you lay down the book full of affection for both. They got along together, because there was mutual and complete understanding.

The author in his brief preface says: "Aeneas should have been arrested in any other country than the South. In the South he could have traveled his life out as the guest of his 'white folks.' Is the story true? Everybody says it is."

The story is full of humor, pathos, and insight. We should read it for two reasons: because it is a good story, filled with delightful entertainment, and because it helps all other sections of the country to understand the South, its history and traditions, and its people.

The story is told mainly in letters, and the portrait of Aeneas steadily develops—a map is given, showing how he left Rome, in Georgia, in 1864 and arrived in Louisville, Ga., in 1872. May I say that the reader rejoices in his safe return as much as his folks.

Although I am a Yankee, I know the people in Louisville, Ga., very well indeed, and if there are any finer people in the world, I don't know where they may be.

Capital "Spots" Afford Plenty Of Amusement

Cocktail Rooms, Clubs and Restaurants Offer Varied Choice.

By Kay Ware.

Leave the cares of the day and fill the evening with music and laughter. Count your pennies, and slice a bit out of the Capital City's night life, and come back for a second helping.

Found—a cocktail room that's big enough to hold people, a dance floor, a band of good musicians, and a lot of swanky atmosphere. Its at the Mayflower. It has plenty of those comfortable couches along the wall, low tables and huge bowls of potato chips and pretzels.

Walls paneled with mirrors assure you that each hair is in place, or that the tie is straight. Music to which you can sway, hop or glide makes it impossible to resist the temptation.

Cocktails come in large glasses. That's something to remember. Business men sit around and sip green and red and yellow liqueurs; you're almost sure to see a debutante who hasn't left for vacation, and a play-boy who has just come back.

(For the ladies: Fashions that are very "swish" parade around this room in the evening.)

* * * *

Another big Mardi Gras night is the special feature of the Arlington Roof. Funny lanterns hang around, they serve along with the drinks, the long rolls of colored paper to throw. Carnival spirit is the password.

They have spot dances arranged this way: Somebody selects a "spot" on the floor, and when the music stops the lucky girl gets a vanity. Hugh Neason, the manager, says one young lady backed out and refused to take the vanity. He said she was shy and didn't want to go to the bandstand to get it.

Old sea captains, who have seen more mermaids and sea serpents than the average citizen, are to be found at Plum Point Wharf, about 3 miles down the river.

It's a favorite place for fishing parties, and there are boats and tackle for hire, and sailors to lead the expeditions. You get a good catch of sea yarns, as well as fish.

Chevy Chase Lake is turning itself upside down with new ideas, new policies, new patrons, and new good times. The big orchestra, led by Lee Field, is there to stay for the rest of the season.

If you don't want to dance you can sit in the—garden is an inadequate term — hillside, and sip beer and munch pretzels and listen to the music. Whisper softly: There's no extra charge for the listening.

Ideal place whether the purse is slim or fat, wide or narrow. You'll like it.

Back to the Forties.

Here's news! Riding the wave of "back to the forties" entertainments comes the Roof Players with a famous old mellerdramer, "The Drunkard," or "The Fallen Saved." So if you want to cry into your beer next Tuesday night, do your weeping at the Willard, where the show will go on.

After the show you can adjourn to the big ballroom, which will be fixed up with the old music-hall atmosphere. If everybody is in the mood for it, there will be community singing of the favorites of long ago. Old-time waiters will dispense beer, pretzels, sandwiches or, what you may require to make the evening a success. There will be entr'acts as devised by P. T. Barnum himself that will provoke a giggle or a roar, according to the way you feel at the moment.

Make a date with your most hilarious friend. Show begins at 8:45 p. m.

The best thing about Arthur Godfrey is that no matter how long he will be at Club Michel Roof, he'll have a new series of wise-cracks each week. And one of the best things about the roof is that it seems to be a meeting place for the celebrities.

Wednesday night, for instance, there appeared among the merry-makers Audrey Seiber, of the Earle, and Borah Minnevitch, of the Rascals. So, no matter when you go, you're liable to run into celebrities of the stage, screen or "mike," either as patrons or entertainers.

Business people who watch the clock while they eat their lunch are going to the new Raleigh lunchroom, downstairs in the Raleigh Hotel. The food is praised as well as the speedy service.

Tid-bits—

The skirt on the Persian dancer at the Shoreham is 12 yards around . . . Bill Levy, at the Hangar Club, built the place so he could have his night life without spending so much money. Besides he says with a grin, "I don't like to drink alone" . . . The manager of the Powhatan Hotel is English born, and consequently likes tea . . . Martin at the Madrillion makes all kinds of delicious Armenian dishes. Ask for his shish kebab . . . Happy Walker has been boating. Says it takes him days to get used to the ground not moving. Later he'll aim for the cup . . .

Air planes have a never-ending attraction. At the Hangar Club you can see as many as you wish. Sometimes a playful pilot will zoom within a yard or so of the roof, whereupon the patrons shriek, and even "Brownie," one of the managers, gets a scare or two. Bill Levy is seldom feazed by anything, except when a thoughtless patron puts a foot over the rail. He says one man jumped into the swimming pool from the roof, but seemed none the worse (probably better) for the dousing.

But after all, is there anything more romantic than the night plane soaring across the moon?

Invisible servants have come to town. The most modern of modern homes are to be seen in Greenwich Forest, out toward Bethesda. Washingtonians are flocking out to gather ideas.

At one big stone house, with air-cooled rooms, the doors open at a touch of a button, lights flash on in closets and refrigerator as the doors open, coffee boils by electricity, and even the garage doors roll up with noiseless speed when another button is used.

Comfort and Charm.

One difficulty presents itself at the Carlton cocktail room. You go into the room, take one look at the comfortable red and white leather chairs, sink into one and sigh with relief. At last! A chair, a table, charming surroundings and an excellent bartender combined.

But you take two looks around and you'll glimpse the garden. It's large, cool and oozing with class. Shall you stay in the red and white chair, or trot out to sit under an umbrella?

That's up to you. Whatever your decision, you'll be glad you made it.

Also, if you sit where you can see him, watch Gregory Frazell simultaneously play the piano and lead the rest of his musical group. He's one man who can do several things at once.

Floor shows are usually so well hidden by the heads of the people in front that you have to sacrifice a comfortable position in order to see. Not so at the Lotus. The arrangement of the tables is spacious; no craning is necessary.

Further, the floor show this week has its undeniable good points. The dancer moves around, and under her large pink veil with ease and grace. You might wonder how she manages to grasp the floating veil while moving under it, but she never misses, and the effect is fine. She does, in addition to the veiling, another dance. Might be thought Harlemish by some, but you'll like it.

Musn't miss the tap-tango team. The feminine performer wears a nifty pair of black velvet pajamas with big white fur epaulets. The blues singer does more than moan, obviously because she has a good voice and knows how to use it.

Try the Lotus for dinner dancing. Conveniently located and attractively set up.

One thing Washington is lavishly blessed with is a supply of ancient houses with historical flavors. If you don't live in one, at least you may eat in several.

The Admiral, on Rhode Island avenue, is across from the house that was presented to Admiral Decatur, and has a long and honorable past in its own right. It specializes in rooms for bridge-luncheons.

If you're drifting around Dupont Circle trying to find a place for a quiet supper or chat, stop in Ramon's garden. Blue and white checked table cloths are lying around; waiters are soft-footed and attentive; food is good and prices reasonable. It is tucked away from the street where noises of street cars can not penetrate. Make the acquaintance of Frank. He's the man with the smile.

Two small and convenient places where thirst can be quenched and hunger appeased are the Gingham Club and the Rendezvous. The latter is in the Northeast section and will save you a trip downtown. The former is on the Avenue near Fifteenth street and will save you a trip uptown.

Music can be had.

POTOMAC PARK

By CAROLYN COX

These are the highlights of Wanda Mallory's story in the chapters already published: She arrives in Washington penniless; finds a job in the Government; receives word her mother is dead and turns for consolation to David Randall, another Government employe, who is nice, but with an air of mystery about him. She makes friends with the girls in her office, too. Among them are Kentucky Queen, who invites her to her apartment to dinner; and Jennie Stoke, about to be retired on a pension.

"WHAT did you expect?" Kentucky asked when Wanda voiced her surprise at the charm of her apartment.

Wanda clutched the emergency brakes, and watched the road. "Why, I don't know. Something very—quiet and—and sensible."

"Don't you like it?"

"Oh, I do, indeed. It makes me feel gay and comfortable at the same time. Did you decorate it yourself?"

For it was purely and simply a matter of decoration. The furniture was graceful but inexpensive, and had been collected, as she afterward learned, from a second-hand store. Kentucky had lacquered the bookshelves, Chinese red inside and jade green on the outside, and at the same time had kept them from looking like a Christmas tree.

"We'll let the dinner cook now—I had everything ready, you see—and sit in the livingroom while we get acquainted, as it were." She led the way. "I don't believe you wasted a glance upon my view. Really, it's my most prize possession."

A Gorgeous View.

She drew the curtains aside and gave her guest a sweeping panorama of Potomac Park, unblocked by buildings, the Lincoln Shrine in the middle distance, the white bridge behind it, spanning the silver river, and encircling the park were the Virginia hills, with the white gates, the great oaks, and the colossal pillars of Arlington. Emotions held Wanda spellbound.

Sorry for Jennie.

Wanda nodded, unable to speak. She glanced apologetically at her hostess, and Kentucky saw that her eyes were wet. Wanda dabbed them with her handkerchief viciously. Silly! Would she never get over her childish reactions to beauty?

Kentucky chatted casually for a few moments, expecting no answer, trying to find a clue to Wanda's mood. She talked of the weather and of the office.

"I noticed twin beds in there," Wanda observed irrelevantly. "I thought—I wondered if you had a roommate."

"My niece lived with me last year. She went to George Washington University."

"Did she? I graduated from there."

"So did I. Took courses after office hours."

Wanda smiled. "Didn't we all? Your niece finished school?"

"She finished what she set out to do. Majored in romance languages. She could say "yes" in forty different tongues. Married last summer—thank heaven."

"Why the gratitude—when you hate to be alone?"

"I was crazy about her, precious. but she was a fearful responsibility for a spinster who—oh, well, I don't need to go into heart spillings. You can tell by looking at me that sex appeal isn't my long suit."

Intimate Confession.

"I wouldn't say that, Kentucky," she said gently, not noticing that she had used the first name of her hostess. Wanda was feeling maternally wise today. "Your complexion is lovely, and your hair is beautiful, and——"

Kentucky sighed. "She was Kentucky slapped her hands over her ears, embarrassed but pleased.

"Thanks a lot. I'll admit I was fishing, but I don't deserve more than one trout at a time—I get along all right. I don't suppose you can understand——"

"Why can't I?" Wanda interrupted. "Do you think it has been any easier for me?"

"Oh, my dear, at least you're petite and feminine."

"And you're straight and strong! I'd trade with you if I could."

"Well, don't think I was getting ready to pour a sob story in your ears. I'm happy enough."

Wanda's eyes began a deep glowing. "It doesn't matter, Kentucky. I've found out just recently that it makes no difference——"

She broke off in an agony of confusion.

Kentucky made a shrewd appraisal of her embarrassment and tactfully excused herself a moment to inspect the cooking.

Dinner in Alcove.

Wanda felt that her nose was shiny, and went into the bedroom to get her compact from her purse. The windows in that room had the same marvelous view. Even the little window in the bathroom had it.

And when dinner was ready, and they sat by the windows in the snug alcove of the dinette, there was the imperishable beauty of old Greece gleaming through the opalescent October dusk, and the white portico of Arlington Mansion, dimly seen, and the winding river, spanned by the graceful bridge.

Wanda wanted David Randall to look down upon that scene with her. She was tempted to ask Kentucky if she might bring him up sometime. Better wait awhile.

"How did you find this place, Kentucky?"

"Stumbled upon it. Wanted a place near the office for my convenience, and near the university for Kit's, and looked at these houses around here. The rent was more than I had planned for in my budget, but I looked out of the window and was lost."

"It's worth almost any price." Wanda siged. "If you can save on something else and manage at all. I'm afraid I couldn't."

Only CAF-2.

Why disguise the fact when Kentucky doubtless had known from the first day that Wanda was only a CAF-2?

"It's lovely, inside and out. Do you have lots of company?"

"Just intimate friends now and then. Why?"

"Oh, I was just wondering. It's so pretty, I'd think you'd want to."

"Would you, if you lived here "

"I'd have some," Wanda replied guardedly. "I have a friend who—whom I think you'd like."

She told Kentucky enough about David Randall to pave the way for a meeting, and then changed the subject abruptly.

"Homes are awfully—well, significant things, aren't they Don't you think people are influenced greatly by their surroundings?"

"Absolutely. The housing problem is one of the most important in the Government."

And they talked of the hovels in different sections of America, and of the palaces that cost as much as a village; of the miners' shacks in the coal fields and the Negro huts in the South; of the alley shanties in the shadow of the Capitol dome and of the tenements of New York.

"What chance has a boy coming from such squalor and poverty?" Kentucky wanted to know. "Just no chance at all."

"Well, he did." Wanda pointed below. "Log cabin in Kentucky, but the boy made good."

"There ought to be a law against these astounding exceptions," Kentucky drawled. "A moralist finds them so disconcerting. However, even Lincoln can't make me change my opinion that something ought to be done for bigger and better homes."

Seemed Like Heaven.

They talked of the modern schemes of cunicipal and Federal housing, of subsistence homesteads, and of the plans of the Tennessee Valley Authority for houses that are sanitary, comfortable and roomy enough.

Wanda sighed. "If I had a home like this, I'd call it heaven."

"Good!" Kentucky exclaimed. "Come live with me. We can get along. I'm sure of it. I don't know what you are paying now for room and board, but whatever it is, if you're willing to put that amount into the domestic treasury, it will be satisfactory to me."

Wanda rose abruptly and walked to the window and looked down upon Potomac Park. Her heart was full. I'm going to have a home, she was thinking. A pretty home with a gay living room where I can sit and talk with David. And a kitchen with a stove in it and a dining alcove with a wonderful view, where David can break bread with friends for the first time in seven years.

Moved to Tears.

When she turned, two big tears were slowly trickling down her cheeks.

"Kentucky," you have no idea what this means to me. You have no idea!"

"Is that all?" Kentucky drew a comical sigh of relief. "It means a lot to me, too, Wanda. I thought I was going to lose the apartment—have to take a cheaper one somewhere. And I didn't want to do it because I love this one, and because—because I have a friend—who loves it, too."

Color swept under the milk-whiteness of her skin, making her look surprisingly pretty and young. Wanda bounded across the room, caught her hand and squeezed it.

"Kentucky! You, too? Isn't that won-derful? Who is he?"

"Don't be silly!" she chided, pulling her hand away. "You mustn't think——"

Wanda laughed happily. "Oh, I never think about such things. Never! If you stop to think, you're out of luck. Brains for business and hearts for love."

HONEST MEASURE
FULL-QUART BOTTLE FOR ONLY 20c

A FULL QUART IS 32 OUNCES
CLICQUOT CLUB comes in full-quart and full-pint bottles. A full quart is 32 ounces, a full pint 16 ounces. All ginger-ale makers must print net bottle-contents on the label. So look at the label before you buy . . . and be sure you get your money's worth!
FULL QUARTS • FULL PINTS

THE name "CLICQUOT CLUB," since 1881, has been the buy-word to a ginger ale of unsurpassable flavor and quality. Now it is also the "open sesame" to a new and unequaled standard of value.
For it stands for honest-measure full-quart bottles . . . from which you can pour, with justifiable pride, 6 to 9 long, iced drinks. In it you get the pick of Jamaica's ginger . . . aged with other selected ingredients . . . then blended with pure water from deep rock sources. A sip of CLICQUOT CLUB Pale Dry will convince you that here is a really dry ginger ale . . . a keen, appetizing drink.
If you have a nose for bargains (and a taste for quality) stop in at your dealer's today . . . and treat yourself to a ginger ale whose flavor and value can be copied, but never successfully. . . . Clicquot Club Company, Millis, Massachusetts.

D. C. Society At Home in Mountains

Newbolds Are Enjoying Summer Spent in Adirondacks.

Through all ages, mountains have held a strong fascination for man. Many go in for daring climbs, tempting the elements and fate. Others, who have seen lofty, awe-inspiring peaks bathed in sunset glow, choose to preserve the beauty with oil and canvas so that their less-traveled brothers may also enjoy them.

A summer spent in the cool, crisp air and higher altitude is just what so many Washingtonians have found to be the remedy for socially tired nerves. Then too, it prepares them for another season of social activity.

Newbolds in Adirondacks.

Mr. and Mrs. Fleming Newbold, who were among the very first to leave the Capital for their favorite haunt, are enjoying their home in the Adirondack Mountains. Their daughter, Miss Nancy Newbold, who is associated with the NRA, has remained in town for the warmer months.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Wholean, the latter will be remembered in Washington as Miss Beatrice Henderson, who made her home with her grandmother, the late Mrs. John B. Henderson, in the famous brown stone castle on Sixteenth street, have a delightful mountain home, Sunny Knoll, in Maine.

Another family that summers in the mountains of Maine is that of Mr. Henry Rousseau, who with his two sons, Mr. William Parker Rousseau and Mr. John Rousseau, has a lovely home at Blue Hill.

Spaldings at Aston Magna.

Mr. Albert Spalding, the famous violinist, and Mrs. Spalding, who recently returned from a sojourn abroad, have gone to their home, Aston Magna at Great Barrington, Mass. Mr. and Mrs. William Chapin Huntington frequently entertain at Journey's End, their home at Bluemont, Va.

At Blue Ridge Summit, Pa., there is a settlement which might easily and quite appropriately be called Little Washington, because of the great number of Capital socialites who are there.

Among those who have left Washington and are mountaining in Pennsylvania are Mr. and Mrs. Paul Johnson and their daughter, Miss Mary Johnson; Dr. and Mrs. Sothoron Key, Mr. and Mrs. Lammot Belin, the Rev. and Mrs. F. Ward Denys and Rear Admiral and Mrs. Horatio Gilmor.

Visitor From South

Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel P. Hill, of New York, have selected Saturday, Stptember 1, as the date upon which they will entertain at a black-and-white ball at their villa, Champ Soliel, Newport, R. I., which they leased from Mrs. Drexel Dahlgren for the season.

Mrs. Hill was formerly Miss Elinor Dorrance, of Philadelphia, and was a frequent visitor in Washington before her marriage several years ago as the guest of the former Minister to Switzerland and Mrs. Hampson Gary and their daughter, Mrs. Moran, of New York, who was formerly Miss Helen Gary.

Miss Kurdle Now a Bride

Baltimore Girl Marries Dr. F. A. Martinez, of Washington.

A wedding of interest to Washington was that of Miss Marguerite Gertrude Kurdle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Kurdle, of Baltimore, when she became the bride of Dr. Felipe Andres Martinez, son of the late Dr. Candido Martinez de Armendia and Senora Angelina Ferrer de Martinez, of Havana, Cuba, which took place Wednesday evening at the Shrine of the Sacred Heart, at Mount Washington, in Baltimore, with Mgr. R. Stickney, pastor of the Shrine, officiating at the ceremony.

The maid of honor was Miss Pearl Kurdle, sister of the bride, and the bridesmaids were Miss Catherine Kurdle, another sister; Miss Elizabeth Kurdle and Mrs. Olwin Kurdle, cousins of the bride, and Miss Marguerite Bradford. The best man was Mr. Marion de Kalb Clark.

Dr. Martinez and his bride sailed for Europe for a wedding trip on the continent, and upon their return in September they will come to Washington, where they will make their home. Dr. Martinez is professor of anatomy at Georgetown University.

Culbertson on Bridge

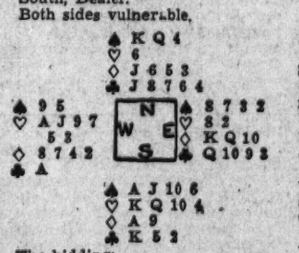
Card Reading.

Mrs. Sydney W. Band, playing with Mr. John W. Jacobson, of Toronto, won the Mixed Pair Championship at the recent Canadian-American Contract Bridge Tournament at Niagara Falls, N. Y. This was the first time this contest was held, the trophy having been presented by that dean of Bridge players and writers, the late Mr. Milton C. Work. As evidence that the winning of this event was not a fluke, but was based on sound playing, we give the hand below, in which Mrs. Band, by sound card reading, fulfilled a difficult contract.

South, Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.



The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1♠	2♡	2♠	Pass
2NT	Pass	3♠	Pass
3NT	Pass	Pass	Pass

The hand is a difficult one to bid, and the final contract of three no-trump, although slightly optimistic, can not be severely criticized.

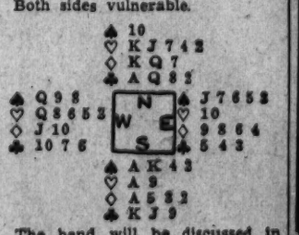
West, with a sure entry in the club Ace, decided to open his fourth-best heart. Mrs. Band won this lead with the Ten in her own hand and entered the Dummy by leading a spade to the Queen. The club 4 was now led, and Mrs. Band made the excellent play of a low card instead of the King from her own hand, West's Ace winning the trick. West now returned a spade, and the King in Dummy won the trick. A low diamond was led and East's Ten forced South's Ace.

At this point Mrs. Band cashed her two good spade tricks, and by now had a reasonably accurate count on the East and West hands. The lead of the heart King removed East's last heart, and after West won the trick with the Ace, he returned the Jack of the same suit. South won the trick with the Queen and then threw in the East hand with the lead of a diamond.

East, of course, cashed another diamond trick, but was now forced to lead away from the club Queen. Mrs. Band, of course, let the club lead ride around to Dummy's Jack, and the club King in her own hand provided the ninth trick. Although a certain amount of luck in the way the cards were distributed was necessary for the fulfillment of the contract, the hand still could not have been made had the Declarer's play not been so precise.

Tomorrow's Hand.

South, Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.



The hand will be discussed in tomorrow's article.

Pacific Coast Girl Is Married To Army Man

Word has reached Washington of the wedding of Miss Marjorie Bacon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Bacon, of Los Angeles, Calif., to Lieut. Brookner West Brady, son of James Francis Brady, U. S. A., retired, and Mrs. Brady, of Washington.

The wedding took place July 22 at 4 o'clock in the garden of the home of the bride's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Rodney Eldon Bacon in Santa Ana, Calif.

Mrs. Richard R. Dalton, sister of the bride, was the matron of honor, Miss Carrita Dauderbaugh was the maid of honor and the bridesmaids were Miss Carroll Welling, Miss Virginia Mae Smith, and the junior maids were Miss Alice Bacon and Miss Louise Bacon, niece and cousin of the bride.

Mr. Charles Betram Smith attended Lieut. Brady as best man, and the ushers were Mr. Prentice Foster Bacon and Mr. Kyle Eldon Bacon, cousins of the bride, and Mr. Horace Ferris and Mr. Foster Fleming.

Immediately following the ceremony there was a reception, after which Lieut. Brady and his bride left by motor for a trip through Yosemite. They sailed from San Francisco on Tuesday for the Hawaiian Islands and will make their home at Schofield Barracks, Oahu, where Lieut. Brady is on duty with the Twenty-first Infantry.

Young Mrs. Brady attended the University of California at Berkeley. Lieut. Brady was graduated from West Point with the Class of 1926 and was a member of the Olympic pentathlon team in 1932.

Fergusons Attend Fetracom Dinner

Securities Commission Heads Also at Fete.

Mr. Garland S. Ferguson, the chairman of the Federal Trade Commission, and Mrs. Ferguson and Judge Ewin L. Davis, a member of the commission, and Mrs. Davis were among the 150 guests who last evening attended the dinner party of Fetracom, social organization of the Federal Trade Commission, which includes also members of the new Securities and Exchange Commission. The function was held on the terrace at the Shoreham Hotel.

Members of the Securities and Exchange Commission present included Mr. Joseph P. Kennedy, chairman; Mr. Ferdinand Pecora and Mr. James M. Landis; also Judge John J. Burns, new chief counsel of the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Mr. Francisco A. Lopez Visiting in Washington

Mr. Francisco A. Lopez, editor and publisher of the Associated Filipino Press, who has been touring the eastern part of the United States, acquainting himself with the conditions in which his countrymen live, is now stopping in Washington on a brief visit with the Filipino Resident Commissioner and Mrs. Camilo Osias.

Mr. Lopez will leave shortly for the West Coast. En route he will stop in Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas City and Denver.

Mr. and Mrs. Grimes Here After Trip to Europe

Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Grimes and their daughter, Miss Gloria Grimes, who last winter attended Holton Arms, are back at the Shoreham, where they spent most of last season, after a three months' trip through Italy, Switzerland, Germany, France and England.

They will remain in Washington over the week-end, and then will go to their home in Minneapolis.

Maj. and Mrs. Tribby Return to Capital

Maj. and Mrs. Joseph Clinton Tribby have returned to Washington after spending a month with their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. John Halliday, in Santa Monica, Calif.

Next week the Tribbys will leave by motor for Newport, Ark., where they will be the guests of Mrs. Tribby's mother, Mrs. William Cox.

J. F. T. O'Connor Back From Europe

Spent 3 Weeks' Vacation in London and Paris.

The Comptroller of the Currency Mr. J. F. T. O'Connor, has returned to his apartment at the Shoreham after a three weeks' vacation, during which he visited London and Paris, having sailed on the Aquitania from New York.

He returned to New York on the steamer Paris and was accompanied on the trip by Mr. Frank A. Vanderlip, jr., of New York, son of the former president of the National City Bank of New York. They visited the leading branches of the American banks while in Paris.

Mr. O'Connor's trip was strictly unofficial and was his first vacation in four years.

Capital Dog Population Has Several Breeds Represented by Only One or Two Members

True Mark of Distinction To Own One of These Animals

Dr. William P. Collins, Veterinarian, Owns the Sole Kerry Blue Terrier in Washington; Expects Schnauzers to Become Popular.

The only one of its kind. There's a lure about anything described by those words, whether it is done in the bellowing voice of a side-show barker or in the reverent whisper of a curator of priceless treasures. In Washington there is a small, select group of one-of-a-kind dogs.

This is the concluding article in a series of three about dogs.

By Virginia Lee Warren.

SOME PERSONS follow styles as fervently as small boys trail an ice-wagon on sweltering afternoons. Others have a fine disregard for what may or may not be the fashion. They know what they want and insist upon having it whether anybody else wants it or not.

Then there are a few original souls who may claim they are indifferent to style. They are, in their own way. They seek out things that are rare and distinctive. Far from following fashions, they set them.

Things that are rare and distinctive may mean anything from cocktail recipes to dogs. A dog census in Washington would record several rare kinds of dogs, represented by only one or two members of each particular breed. It's a true mark of distinction to own one of these uncommon animals.

May Become Very Common.

"But some day these one-of-a-kind dogs may be as common as sparrows," said Dr. William P. Collins, veterinarian, yesterday. "You never can tell when everybody is suddenly going to decide to have the same kind of dog as everybody else."

He counted off on his fingers the dog families represented by only one or two members in the Capital.

"There's the Saluki owned by B. Frank Wright, the only one in the city as far as I know. There's a Bedlington terrier. Mrs. R. A. Hansen over in Aurora Hills, Va., has him. Then there's a Norwegian Elkhound—he's a beauty—owned by a Mr. Strong or Storm or something like that. I never can remember people's names. But I never forget dogs."

Dr. Collins hesitated only long enough to take a deep breath before he continued his listing of unusual ones.

Other Rare Breeds Here.

"Mrs. William D. Thomas, of Greystone has a couple of rough-coated dachshunds. They don't look much like the ordinary, short-haired ones. Mrs. C. C. Rumsey and Mrs. Lawrence Baker have Welsh terriers. I expect that breed to be popular some day. A Welsh terrier looks like an airedale, but it's smaller and easier to handle. Then there are a few Dandie Dinmonts and a few Belgium griffons."

The veterinarian leaned far back in his chair. He looked as if he had come to the end of his list. But he was only preparing himself and his listner for the climax.

"There's only on Kerry Blue terrier in Washington." He paused a minute before he added, "and he's mine."

The Kerry, named for his native county in Ireland, proved to be a large and lively bundle of silky blue-gray hair curled in loose ringlets. Dark eyes shone from a squarish face covered with blue curls. A short tail, also covered with curls, wagged merrily.

Schnauzer Becoming Popular.

Kerry Blue terriers may become popular some day. But if Dr. Collins is anything of a prophet the Schnauzer will be the next dog to have a widespread vogue.

Rectangular in shape, with lots of whiskers on his face, the Schnauzer looked like a glorified combination of the Scottie, the German police dog and the Airedale. His legs, covered with long pepper-and-salt hair, were round as the legs of a chair. Long hair hung down his chest, but the rest of his body had been clipped—which gave it a wire-haired appearance.

"This is Arno V. Paderquell," said Dr. Collins, "one of the finest Schnauzers in the country. He'll go on the bench this fall," which is another way of saying Arno will be entered in the dog show.

"And here's a Belgium griffon," continued the veterinarian. He led the way to a roomy cage, one in a row of many cages. Inside was a small, yellowish-red dog with a strangely human expression on its little round face. Wiry hair formed a fringe around the eyes and on the chin. The griffon's entire body, about the size of a Pekingese, was covered with stiff, yellowish-red hair.

Salukis Have Long History.

The Saluki owned by Mr. Wright belongs to a breed of dogs that has been used for hunting in Arabia for 5,000 years. The Bedouins use Salukis to hunt gazelles. But in spite of their speed and strength they are gentle companions and behave like little gentlemen when they are taken walking on the end of a leash.

While the Saluki is lean and long-legged, the Norwegian elkhound is stocky and has a bear-like countenance. His tail is a thick plume that curls above his body. His face is strong but friendly. He is a grand playfellow for children. As his name implies, the Norwegian elkhound is used for hunting elk in Norway.

The Bedlington terrier is a good swimmer. He likes the water. His ears are longish and end in points. His tail forms a scimitar. He is covered with a thick coat of short hair that isn't wiry, isn't curly, isn't flat. It's just hair.

In addition to her stream-lined, rough-coated dachshunds, Mrs. William D. Thomas has a bloodhound. Contrary to the belief of all who have watched Eliza leaping from chunk of ice to chunk of ice with a couple of bloodhounds bringing up the rear, these dogs did not receive their name because they yearn for human blood.

Have Pure and Noble Blood.

But even Dr. Collins sees no possibility of a bloodhound in every backyard. He thinks there may be a few Skye terriers in the Capital some day. At the present time Washington is completely devoid of these shaggy dogs with cascading bangs over their eyes.

And the Basset hound is extremely rare. This seems a pity, since one authority on dogs has written that Bassets have "the most musical of voices, their notes being clear, full, and bell-like and once heard are never forgotten."

After reading this description and after remembering the nights when sleep has been made impossible by the yowling of ordinary dogs, it is easy to see that what Washington needs is more Basset hounds.

Old-Time Waltz Returns to Favor

Young People No Longer Dance Lazy Man's Way.

THE old-fashioned waltz is returning to favor, according to Frederick W. Kehl, of New York, dean of dancers.

"Never in my 55 years as dancing instructor have I seen such a Nation-wide interest in all forms of dancing," Mr. Kehl says. "Dancing in this country is definitely on the upgrade. The old-fashioned waltz is coming back very strongly and there is more interest in ballet work and tap dancing than I have ever seen before.

"Up to two years ago, young people danced in what I call a lazy man's way, and not paying the slightest attention to form. This is not the case at present, and the boys and girls are taking a real live, intelligent interest in all forms of dancing."

Old Stream Vent Stirs Yellowstone

Bursts Into Eruption Without Warning.

The drought has been raisely blamed for the inactivity of the spouts in the geyser area of Yellowstone Park, according to a recent bulletin from the National Park Service, which says an old stream vent, dead for many years, provided a spectacular show around Old Faithful recently, when, without preliminary activity, it burst into eruption.

Located between Splendid Geyser and Brilliant Pool, the vent was discovered by Ranger-Naturalist Frank Oberhansley. Rocks were thrown out of the chasm by the severity of the discharge. A close check since the outburst has failed to reveal continued action.

Meal for Six Persons Planned to Cost $1.25

Mrs. Frances Foley Gannon has planned a meal for six persons, which costs only $1.25.

The meal, prepared under the auspices of the Consumers' Service Division of the Department of Public Works, New York City, consists of cream of corn soup, baked weakfish, baked potatoes, okra en casserole, mixed green salad of lettuce, tomatoes and cucumbers and fresh peach cobbler.

Philippine Women Ready for Suffrage

Miss M. R. Wolfson, Leader in Island's Activities, Expects Them to Be Stabilizing Influence in Government.

THE convent-bred woman of the Philippines, who changed her psychological outlook and developed initiative during the last 30 years of American occupation, is now to make her debut into a brand-new world—politics. Granted suffrage by the last session of the Philippine Legislature, she now, with her brother, will shoulder the responsibility of molding from present chaos a new order of political and economic life.

How does the Filipina approach her new independent state? It is with a mingling of interest, eager determination and characteristic restraint. An inherent and accomplished home-maker, she will exert a stabilizing influence in government.

This prediction was made by Miss Marguerite Rosina Wolfson, Republican National committeewoman of the Philippines, who was caught on the wing during a brief business trip here.

"The average Philippine woman," said Miss Wolfson, "will look upon government as national housekeeping. She will organize her duties systematically and execute details with precision.

Rules the Household.

"The Philippine household has always been a matriarch. The woman is the administrator and executive. She holds the purse strings and organizes routine for the rest of the family to carry out. She usually has a large family, so her influence is far-reaching.

"With American ideals and standards before her the Filipino's first efforts under suffrage will be expended upon education and community health. She is already diet and sanitation conscious."

To appreciate the Philippine woman, points out Miss Wolfson, one must understand the gay as well as the serious side of her nature. One must meet her at festivals and celebrations, where she is lighthearted, carefree and utterly engaging—a delightful entertainer, a gifted musician and a beautiful dancer.

Young Women Are Beautiful.

"The typical young woman of the Philippines is beautiful," said Miss Wolfson. "She is slender, with a graceful carriage. Her voice is soft and musical. Her eyes are large and expressive, her feet and hands small and exquisite. As a hostess she can not be surpassed.

"Kinship in the Philippines is carried to the extreme. And there are certain acknowledged family obligations which no loyal native would ignore. Charity there begins at home, and home often includes the entire community. It is a rare thing to see a beggar in the islands go hungry."

While American cooking has exerted an influence, there are certain native dishes given preference on the Filipino's table, according to Miss Wolfson. Shellfish and rice are most popular. Cocoanut oil, cocoanut milk and spices are used freely in their cooking.

Natives' Favorite Dish.

A favorite dish with the natives is a stew, consisting of garlic and onions fried in cocoanut oil. To this is added flakes of several kinds of shellfish and vegetables. These are allowed to simmer together for hours and are then served with rice.

Miss Wolfson has been a resident of the islands for the last 32 years, having gone there as a child with her Army-officer father. Taking a keen interest in the welfare of the Philippine women, she has helped found numerous charitable, civic and philanthropic organizations. During the war she helped organize the Philippine chapter of the American Red Cross, after which she served overseas in canteen and refugee hospitals.

Engaging in welfare work upon her return to the islands, Miss Wolfson's interest reached into the political field. She was the first local Republican central committeewoman for the Philippines, the first woman member of the Republican insular committee, and she was elected Republican National committeewoman at the 1932 convention. She has written numerous magazine articles on life on the islands.

Post Staff Photos.

ACCUSTOMED TO MATRIARCHY in the home, women of the Philippine Islands are well prepared to handle their new suffrage duties, says Miss Marguerite Rosina Wolfson, Republican National committeewoman from the islands, who is visiting in Washington.

This BUSINESS of LIVING

Marriage With Man Older Than Girl, Need Not Mean Boredom.

THE OTHER person's point of view is always interesting, often illuminating, occasionally inspiring. But seldom does one have a mental contact affording this three-fold value all in one.

* * * *

It does happen, however, as in the case of a letter addressed to this column by a woman who prefers to remain anonymous. Sensitivity, understanding and intelligence underlie her opinions of the requirements of a happy marriage; and her reflections on the chances of happiness for a girl who marries a man much older will have particular interest for A. B. C., whose letter was printed July 23.

* * * *

For her benefit, and for the benefit of countless others whose perplexities her letter may serve in some measure to resolve, I pass it along.

Personal Revelation.

MY DEAR MISS HAWORTH:

I am moved to add a few lines, from personal experience, to your wise and comprehensive reply to a girl who wrote you concerning her contemplated marriage with a much older man.

* * * *

My husband is 15 years older than I. We have been married over 12 years and we have a child 11. He has been a most considerate, companionable and devoted partner through these years, and a marvelous father. Not once have I been bored, which is the most remarkable thing of all, to my mind.

Boredom is what starts most of the trouble with marriage, I firmly believe. I was 24 when I married, so I was quite old enough to know my own mind. I had plenty of attention and good times before marriage, so that I have had no reason to yearn for the superficial gayety of night clubs and a constant round of excitement.

* * * *

It is too bad, I think, for a girl to marry without having had her share of these things, for she is sure to feel she has missed something—and she had. We have friends, a reasonable amount of recreation and social life, and we like to go places together. Right now, I can enjoy dining tete-a-tete with my husband as much as I ever enjoyed an evening of that kind with an ardent swain of my girlhood days. We always have plenty to talk about.

Your correspondent said that she thought an older man would be more considerate and courteous—something of that kind. You replied that that was not a matter of age but of inherent qualities and training. That is true, but I believe age has something to do with it.

* * * *

A callow youth of 25, say, can not pssibly have the poise and suavity of a man of 40 who has made his position in the business world. Neither, of course, would he have natural ease and charm of manner if he had not been trained in such things from chilhdood.

It is a joy to go to dinner, the theater, anywhere, with a man who knows just what to do, and it is much more of a joy to live with a man who never fails in all the little courtesies which do so much to make the daily routine of living a fine art.

* * * *

During a number of the years we have been married I have been seriously ill, and in a mental state which required delicate handling and understanding. No young men could have stood by with the infinite patience and tender consideration which my husband gave me during those periods.

So, anything I may have been missing in the way of curly hair (my husband is bald) and dancing feet (he does not like to dance) has been much more than made up for by all the other things which my 51-year-old husband has brought into my life since I married him, when he was 39. I am all for marrying older men! ANONYMOUS.

Lesson After Lesson Fills Life of Dancer

Future Plans Include Direction of Her Own Ballet.

LIFE IS JUST one lesson after another for Patricia Bowman, Washington girl who made good as a prima ballerina and who recently came home for a personal appearance at a local theater.

Dancing lessons in the morning, French lessons in the afternoon, and perhaps a singing lesson thrown in—all these make up this dancer's average daily schedule.

"But I enjoy every one of them," she said, tossing back her short Titian curls and pulling her ashes-of-roses dressing gown closer around her svelte figure as she slipped into a chair in her dressing room. "For, while the lessons aren't easy, they're all a part of my work. So I don't find them either boring or too difficult. And I don't mind if they don't leave me little time for anything else."

Did this mean she never found leisure for anything besides lessons and dancing?

Yes, she did. She had to. Three or four hours each week had to be set aside for trips to the doctor for special manipulative treatments.

Muscles Need Massage.

"To keep my feet in condition," she explained. "And besides those treatments I have to get massages, regularly, so my muscles won't become stiff and unweildly.

But where—with all the lessons, and treatments, and appearances at the theater—did the proverbial gay life of a lovely and successful ballerina come into her schedule?

It didn't, she said. All her work was centered around dancing and almost all her play.

"When I go for a holiday, for instance, my dancing slippers go with me. Oh, I find a few spare moments to drive my car and read, but I get more real relaxation in dancing than in anything else."

She frankly admitted this is probably responsible for her total lack of domestic traits. Perhaps it also explains why she has no desire, as do most artists, for a "cozy little cottage in the country," where she could spend her declining years after she has danced herself out.

"I like action. Plenty of it," she said. "I can't conceive of a life without dancing. When I'm too old to dance myself, I want to direct others in big productions. In fact, I get a thrill out of directing, in a small way, even now."

As great a thrill, perhaps, as appearing on the opening program of the Radio City Music Hall?

"I can't answer that," she said, "for while that appearance was the most pleasurable one of my life, so far, who knows but it might be secondary to directing a great ballet?"

She expects to have a ballet of her own some day, she confided. One she can take all around the world, as Pavlowa did.

Pavlowa, incidentally, is her ideal. For although she admitted the greatness of Isadora Duncan and Mary Wigman, she said the career of neither inspired her like that of the great premier danseuse.

"Because my preferences are almost completely limited to things pertaining to the ballet, it is no wonder I haven't any domestic leanings," she went on. "I don't like to cook, sew, or sweep. My whole existence is attuned to the ballet.

1. In what book are the characters Athos, Porthos, and Aramis? How is the name of each pronounced?

2. Who wrote "The Essays of Elia"? What should the last word in this title be called?

3. Who were the Brobdingnagians and the Lilliputians?

4. Who was Sancho Panza?

5. In what book is there a character named Fantine?

Answers Here.

1. "The Three Musketeers." Ah-TOS, Por-TOS, and Ah-ra-MEES.

2. Charles Lamb wrote "The Essays of Elia" (EE-li-a). He intended the name, which was that of an Italian acquaintance, to be called EL-lia, but this pronunciation is rarely used.

3. The Brobdingnagians (brob-ding-NAG-i-ans) were the giants and the Lilliputians (lil-i-PEW-shans) were the dwarfs in Swift's "Gulliver's Travels."

4. Sancho Panza (SAN-ko PAN-za) was the squire in "Don Quixote" (Don KWIK-sote) by Cervantes (ther-VAHN-tays). The Spanish pronunciation for the squire's name is SAHN-cho PAHN-tha, and for the title of the book is Don Ke-HO-tay.

5. Fantine (Fahn-TEEN) was a character in "Les Miserables" (lay mee-zay-RAH-bl).

Then a member got to his feet and read a resolution naming the baby Mary Senate, which in effect made the body the collective godfather of the infant. The resolution was passed unanimously, making the name legal and binding.

THEY put Robert S. Allen on his own merry-go-round the other day when he tried to dig up the low-down on the new Federal Housing Administration. He roamed from office to office, weaving in and out of long lines of people looking for jobs, and found nothing worth writing about. A girl in the personnel office observing his harried look, stepped up to him and said, sweetly sympathetic: "Do you want a job? Here is an application blank."

"I've got a blank," he snapped.

Bearding personnel officers in their dens has been her self-imposed duty for some time past, and frequently she finds it is as difficult to get to them as for any unemployed person. Her father's name does not always work the magic that it should, and she is acquainted with all the evasive tricks of bureaucrats. The long, bitter, anxious hours of waiting in anterooms so well known to the unemployed, she has experienced, not once but many times.

Splash Proof Hose Defy All Water Marks

By Ruth Anne Davis.

HERE is a buy! Even in the midst of summer sales and mid-season specialties this offer brings forth three cheers and a clapping of hands!

Shoppers may have wandered many miles up and down the aisles, past counters loaded with tempting merchandise, but they never did pass any counters with any more tempting merchandise than this!

They may have gone home and called up neighbors and recited an epic of bargain hunting, but here's something they can really brag about!

Every shopper who barges around bargaining in a downtown store will find some splash proof hose, every sheer chiffon, in dozens of new fall shades, selling for 79 cents! Up until now these hose have never sold for less than $1.15, and frequently for more than that.

The fall shades are beautiful, particularly the off-shades of black, the smoke tones, grays, and gun metals. When they're worn out in the rain, or a speeding motorist inadvertently drives too close to a puddle, they remain the stanchest hose you ever saw. They positively won't develop water spots and splash rings! And will they wear? Ask anybody who has ever worn them.

The sale is for today only, so better order now! One pair 79 cents. Three pair for $2.25.

* * * *

Cocktail Recipes.

One little disk is the key to about 20 cocktails. Hold it in your hand—it's only about an inch and a half of two inches around, with the thickness of a pin head and the weight of a fly. Now turn the outer edge. One by one in clocklike precision recipes for cocktails and highballs come to light in a little triangle left open for that purpose. Sound complicated? Perhaps. But it's one of the simplest and most convenient little gadgets in town!

* * * *

Save on Laundry Bill.

Here's a way to take a decimal point off the lanndry bill. Here's a case where spending 39 cents will enable you to save $3.90 in no time. Stop by a downtown store where there are some cleansing tissue rolls and some racks to fit. The rolls will be 25 cents and there will be 75 tissues. The rack will be 14 cents. The total is 39 cents.

Tack this up by your dressing table or in the bathroom by the medicine chest. You'll soon see how many towels you'll save by being able to peel off the tissues for lipsticks and cream so conveniently.

* * * *

Summer Evening Jewelry.

Summer evening jewelry is drawing customers to the jewelry department of a local store. In the first place, summer jewelry is interesting. It is only for June, July and August, and has to be unusually pretty to make up for such a short season.

The pieces which have just come in at this store are clips and bracelets in blue and crystal. There are some few rhinestone combinations, too.

* * * *

New Nail Polish.

A new nail polish is being introduced in a series of new shades. It is put out by a beauty expert who has her salons in France, Holland, Argentina, Toronto and the United States. Her old polish was good, but she was not content. After continued experiments she found this new polish — which she says is much better.

It has an entirely new basic lacquer, heavier, smoother, and more lasting. It comes in eight delightful shades — colorless, natural, coral, medium, rose, poppy, red pepper and blood red. The coral is probably the most popular. It gives just the faintest touch of a soft, glowing pink to the nails—a suggestion of color. Red pepper is a brilliant red with an orange luster to it! It is striking and smart for evening.

The medium and blood-red shades are polishes of the cream type women like so well because even an amateur can apply them without streaking. They are opaque and hide white spots.

Introduced along with the polish is a remover made on an oil base. This softens the cuticle, prevents dryness and breaking of the nails.

Double Compacts.

The compact counter at a downtown store is an interesting place to visit. Here are some double compacts which have, beside a compartment for loose powder, and a little rouge inclosure, a section built for the front-door key. Other compacts in prints, stripes, plaids and checks have little combs to match. Some of them even boast lipsticks, too. They come in a variety of colors.

* * * *

Crystal Salt Dips.

Some crystal salt dips are only 25 cents apiece. They are complete with little glass salt spoons with vari-colored handles.

Those who grow provoked with salt cellars prone to stubborness in damp weather may cast their weather eye on these dips and find them attractive looking and practical.

Five Pounds Taken From Men's Attire

Lighter Weight Clothes Lessen Discomfort When Mercury Soars; Suits, Shirts and Even Socks Can Help Keep One Cool.

By Amos Parrish.

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—Five pounds less of clothes is a lot of pounds when it's 90 in the shade. And it's just about five pounds men have found they can eliminate when they meet up with the champions of the summer lightweight division.

In other words, men who want to can get by without being arrested on a little over three pounds of summer clothes, by wearing these things:

Baku hats. A few men * * * not many as yet * * * have discovered them. The baku hat looks like a Panama in shape but is a deeper tan color

Ventilated Weave.

It weighs so much less that you can tell you have something different the moment you put it on. The weave is ventilated.

All in all it's like going bareheaded except that you have the comfort of shade.

Many of these baku straws have puggaree bands * * * the pleated cotton sash effect which gives them a colonial air.

Buttonless shirts. This is the newest shirt innovation which hasn't a single button. It slips over the head with just enough of an opening to make that easy.

All that is needed to hold the collar together and give the everyday look is a tie. When the collar is left open, it's a sports shirt.

It has short sleeves and is light weight. A lot of men wear it in oxford, appreciating the absorptive and porous qualities of this material.

Bow ties. If you think one tie is no cooler than another, try one of these. It uses much less material and covers much less of the body. Men have definitely gone back to bow ties this summer, preferring particularly the foulards.

Seersucker Suits.

Seersucker suits. Men are passing the word around that seersucker makes the lightest and coolest suit there is * * * a fact discovered by the Southerner many years ago.

Silk and lisle anklets. Better than no socks at all because they keep peace between the inner soles of the shoes and the soles of the feet.

They cover the ankle properly but they're not high enough to climb up the leg or feel warm.

Air Cooled Shoes.

Ventilated shoes. Many of these shoes have more holes than leather. Air circulates through the holes, drying up moisture and cooling the feet.

Narrow garters. A small item but every little bit helps. Summer garters run about a half-inch wide. And if you wear anklets, of course you don't need any.

Men's furnishings of the types described are available in Washington in all the better men's shops and department stores.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. Irving S. Cutter.

Varicose Veins.

Varicose veins of the lower extremities are not alone unsightly; they frequently cause discomfort, and are often associated with the so-called varicose ulcers. The word varicose is used to describe a vein that has become dilated, lengthened, and tortuous. Veins through which blood does not flow at the normal rate of speed may dilate because of the increase in pressure due to stagnation. With increased pressure the walls of the vein attempt to thicken, the valves are destroyed, and sooner or later the flow of blood back toward the heart is seriously interfered with.

The older treatment of ligating superficial varicose veins is still used, and may be the treatment of choice in certain cases. Within recent years, however, a new plan of obliterating useless veins has come into vogue. It consists of injecting some irritating substance that will cause the blood in the vein to form a firm, tough, fibrin clot. When this is accomplished blood from the extremities will be forced to return to the heart via the deep veins.

There are certain conditions in which the injection treatment should not be used, such as pregnancy, advanced heart, lung or kidney disease, diabetes, cirrhosis of the liver, or active vein inflammation.

CAPITAL KITCHEN

Canning Now Will Insure Tasty Dainties for Next Winter.

By Susan Mills.

CANNING is never a bore if interesting recipes are used. Better still, canning now will insure delectable dainties next winter.

Here are some recipes you may have overlooked.

Ginger Pear Jam.

(Using crystallized ginger)
4 cups (2 lbs.) prepared fruit
⅓ to 1 cup diced crystallized ginger
7½ cups (3¼ lbs.) sugar
1 bottle fruit pectin

To prepare fruit, peel, core, and crush completely or grind about 3 pounds fully ripe pears. Dice about ½ pound crystallized ginger.

Measure sugar and prepared fruit, tightly packed, into large kettle. Add ginger, mix well, and bring to a full, rolling boil over hottest fire. Stir constantly before and while boiling. Boil hard 1 minute. Remove from fire and stir in bottled fruit pectin. Then stir and skim by turns for just 5 minutes to cool slightly, to prevent floating fruit. Pour quickly. Paraffin hot jam at once. Makes about 11 glasses (six may take a week to reach a usable fluid ounces each). This product set.

Ripe Grape Conserve.

3 cups (1½) lbs.) prepared fruit
5 cups (2¼ lbs.) sugar
1 cup nut meats, finely chopped
½ pound seeded raisins
½ bottle fruit pectin

To prepare fruit, stem and crush thoroughly about 2 pounds fully ripe grapes. Add ¼ cup water and simmer, covered, 30 minutes. With tight-skinned grapes, add juice of 1 lemon to water. Sieve hot mixture.

Measure sugar into large bottle. Add nuts, raisins and prepared fruit, filling up last cup with water if necessary. Mix well and bring to a full rolling boil over hottest fire. Stir constantly before and while boiling. Boil hard 1 minute. Remove from fire and stir in bottled fruit pectin. Then stir and skim by turns for just 5 minutes to cool slightly, to prevent floating fruit. Pour quickly. Paraffin hot conserve at once. Makes about 9 glasses (6 fluid ounces each).

Ripe Plum and Prune Jelly. Prune Jelly.

4 cups (2 lbs.) juice
7½ cups (3¼ lbs.) sugar
½ bottle fruit pectin

To prepare juice, crush thoroughly 4 founds fully ripe fruit. Do not peel or pit. Add 1 cup water (and juice of 1 lemon with prunes). Bring to a boil, cover and simmer 10 minutes. Place in jelly cloth or bag; squeeze out juice.

Measure sugar and juice into large saucepan and mix. Bring to a boil over hottest fire and at once add bottled fruit pectin, stirring constantly. Then bring to a full rolling boil and boil hard ½ minute. Remove from fire, skim, pour quickly. Paraffin hot jelly. Makes about 11 glasses (6 fluid ounces each).

What Today Means

"Leo."

If August 10 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 11:15 a. m. to 1:15 p. m., from 3:15 to 5:15 p. m. and from 8:15 to 10:15 p. m. The danger periods are from 9:15 to 11:15 a. m., from 5:15 to 7:15 p. m. and from 10:15 p. m. until midnight.

Today's disappointments may prove tomorrow's unexpected realization of hopes deferred. Adroitness may be required in handling business affairs, and conservative methods might be advisable. You may possibly meet a person who prides himself on bluntness of speech, so it will be tactful to avoid any bombastic phraseology in your conversation. A deceitful individual may attempt to curry favor by flattery, so do not take honeyed phrases too literally, or believe too readily in promises made on the spur of the moment for the purpose of getting you to agree to something. You may be tempted to pretend you do not see some one whom you wish to avoid talking to, but if you are wise you will avoid doing this for the party will not be fooled, and may ascribe your action to snobbery. Snobbery is never justifiable and is always associated with a lack of breeding, so those desiring to be regarded as cultured men and women will display good judgment by never resorting to it. Socially it does not take long for the snob to sooner or later get a dose of his own medicine.

Galsworthy's "One More River," Starring Diana Wynyard, Opens at RKO-Keith's

Triangle Play Is Acted by a Brilliant Cast

An All-English Production; Another Regatta Benefit; Amusement Notes.

By Nelson B. Bell.

"ONE MORE RIVER." Universal picturization of the novel by the late John Galsworthy, adapted to the screen by R. C. Sherriff, author of "Journey's End," starring Diana Wynyard, with Colin Clive, Frank Lawton, C. Aubrey Smith, Henry Stephenson, Mrs. Patrick Campbell, Jane Wyatt, Reginald Denny, Lionel Atwill, Alan Mowbray, Kathleen Howard, Gilbert Emery and E. E. Clive. Directed by James Whale. Reviewed Wednesday afternoon.

Happening casually upon this conspicuously British subject, one could be pardoned for jumping to the conclusion that it was an Elstree production, perhaps one of Gaumont-British's latter-day threats to the supremacy of Hollywood in the manufacture of modern drama in celluloid, so tenaciously does it adhere to every custom and tradition of English life.

"One More River," as a matter of fact, is a British production in every sense of the word, except that it happens to have been filmed in this country by Universal. The mere circumstance of the shooting's having been done at Universal City in no way serves to "Americanize" this particular picture.

The original story, a rather bitter and rather daring utilization of the triangle form of domestic embroglio, was taken from the last novel by the late John Galsworthy, distinguished English novelist. It was adapted to the screen by R. C. Sherriff, author of "Journey's End," and directed by James Whale, both Englishmen of achievement in the theater. It is played by a cast that is all-English, with the single exception of Jane Wyatt, a young American actress who contrives to seem as English as the rest.

Superlative Film.

Had "One More River" been made at the Elstree Studios in London, it would, indeed, have been a threat to the supremacy of Hollywood, for it is a superlatively well-written, well-acted and well-made picture. I do not recall any falling in its classification that has been better.

The story opens with the return to London of a young woman of aristocratic birth who has fled from her husband in Ceylon following a burst of temper on his part during which he has lashed her across the face with his riding crop. On the boat she has met a youth who has fallen desperately in love with her, but not she with him. In London their friendship continues. Following his wife to the home of her parents, the husband seeks a reconciliation, without success. Setting his private sleuths to work, he secures enough circumstantial evidence to win a divorce decree, naming the youth seen so much with his wife as correspondent.

That is the simple skeleton of the story. The simple skeleton of the story, however, conveys nothing of the minutely realistic manner in which the episodes of the drama are set forth, the extraordinary facility of every member of the cast in lending interest, excitement and charm to scenes that are not marked by violent physical action, or the utterly natural, and, therefore utterly convincing, reflection of British manor life as it is lived by those of high station.

Realism in Court.

The courtroom scene—anathema a few years ago by reason of an avalanche of cinema trials—is a profoundly impressive demonstration of the degree to which justice may be blind. It is also a profoundly impressive demonstration that, painstakingly staged and properly cast, a courtrom scene may yet be the high point of a drama keyed to reality instead of melodramatic pyrotechnics.

Diana Wynyard, doing the best work she has done since "Cavalcade;" Colin Clive, matching the excellent account he gave of himself in "The Key," and Frank Lawton, a newcomer to the screen, who plays with fine and sensitive feeling, are the pivotal members of the cast. They are surrounded by as brilliant a coterie of players as one is apt to encounter in a month of blue moons.

C. Aubrey Smith, Henry Stephenson, Reginald Denny, Jane Wyatt, all who are named in the small-type paragraph preceding these remarks, indeed, acquit themselves magnificently.

Mrs. Pat Campbell, wanders through the action as Miss Wynyard's aunt exploding mots and making pungent observations concerning all and sundry in a manner that affords a fair measure of the picture's humor.

As the courtroom scene, Lionel Atwill and Alan Mowbray, as opposing counsel, and Gilbert Emery as the judge, not only lend the climax dramatic substance, but contrive to make it amusing from time to time as well.

Music an Aid.

Deft use is made of music to point the mood and tempo to the climactic scenes, and photographic effects have been similarly employed to heighten the drama.

A Meyer Davis musical short-reel subject, "Sea Shore," enlists the services of many well-known entertainers—Arthur Tracy, the Sisters of the Skillet, Baby Rose Marie, Freddie Martin's Mariners—in addition to the cast. There is still much left to be desired. A novelty, "Grandfather's Clock," more for children than adults, and the Pathe News complete a bill that is notable for a genuinely distinguished feature.

The President's Cup Regatta Association will sponsor the first night's presentation of "The Drunkard," to be presented by the Roof Players, atop the Hotel Willard, next Tuesday night, August 14, at 8:45 o'clock. The regatta association recently sponsored with success a local revival of "The Queen's Gambit." Funds from these presentations are used to help finance the regatta, to be held here September 20 to 23, inclusive.

A Virtuoso Pays Visit.

For 14 years audiences at the Capitol Theater in New York thrilled to the beauty of the music brought to them by Yascha Bunchuk, one of the most gifted solo cellists America has ever heard. Beginning today, Yascha Bunchuk will be one of the featured artists appearing on the stage bill at Loew's Fox Theater. He brings with him a company of musical artists.

His 14-year engagement at the Capitol is a Broadway record. During that period radio developed into a major factor in the conduct of the Capitol and under the guidance first of Sam Rothafel, "Roxy," and later Maj. Bowes, Bunchuk assisted in the preparation of the Capitol's broadcasts and himself was heard by a vastly larger audience than he ever could have reached from a stage.

In Yascha Bunchuk, Washington will meet an artist in the truest sense of the word. It is to be hoped that the Capital's response to his presence will be commensurate with his standing as a virtuoso.

Arrangements have been completed by Nathan Steifel and "Shep" Allen of the Howard Theater for the midnight performance to be given the night of Wednesday, August 15, to help finance the convention of International Chiefs of Police to be held in the Hotel Mayflower, September 24 to 27, inclusive. The show will be known as "Harlem Mania" and will enlist the services of a cast of 65 of the foremost colored artists in America. The complete roster of names of those participating will be made public in due course. In the meantime, seats are on sale at the box office.

Unemployment Note.

Many of the former stage stars who flocked to Hollywood when times got hard on Broadway and then flocked back again when the theater showed indications of returning life, are finding it difficult to secure engagements for the new season, it is reported.

Sign us trouble, as you might say.

Crash Judgment Collections Slow

Virginians Complain Suit Losers Won't Pay.

Richmond, Aug. 9 (Spl.).—Getting a judgment in damage suits growing out of automobile accidents is easy enough when the blame is clearly fixed, but collecting the money awarded for damages is another story, many Virginians have discovered.

Court officials report that numerous persons who have won judgments recently in suits for damages resulting from automobile accidents have been unable to collect.

Under the State motor vehicle laws enacted in 1932, the motor vehicles division may revoke the operator's license if the judgment is not satisfied. Since January 1, the licenses of 56 have been revoked because of failure to settle, John Q. Rhodes, director of the motor vehicle division, reported. The amount of damages involved aggregated $31,057.53.

Oratory Expected At Party Meeting

Arendtsville, Pa., Aug. 9 (Spl.).—Campaign orators are expected to save some of their best ammunition for the gathering here tomorrow of the Young Republican organization of Adams County, which will have members from adjoining counties as guests.

Attorney General William A. Schnader, Republican candidate for Governor, will head the list of speakers. Assemblyman A. J. White Hutton, of Chambersburg, is arranging bus transportation from Franklin County.

Others planning to attend the gathering are Mrs. S. M. R. O'Hara State vice chairman; M. Harvey Taylor, State G. O. P. chairman; Harry B. Scott, Center County, candidate for Lieutenant Governor; C. Emanuel Beck, York, Republican nominee for Congress from the Twenty-second District, and Robert E. Tipton, Gettysburg, assembly candidate.

Theater Fare For Next Week Is Made Known

(Reprinted from Yesterday's Last Edition.)

The week beginning Friday in the motion picture threaters will bring to Warner Brothers' Earle Theater for its first Washington screenings, a domestic drama by the title of "Housewife," with George Brent, Bette Davis and Ann Dvorak in the principal roles. The supporting ensemble is hardly less distinguished than the trio of leads, including, as it does, such players as John Halliday, Ruth Donnelly, Hobart Cavanaugh, Robert Barrat, Joe Cawthorn and Willard Robertson. The stage portion of the bill will be headlined by the Pickens Sisters, stage and radio favorites, who rank among the foremost of contemporary vocalists. An added attraction will be supplied by Billy Costello, the voice of Popeye, the sailor. Other acts will be offered by Enrica and Novello, dance favorites; Al Norman, in "A Straphanger," and Park and Clifford, presenting "Old Roman Pastimes in a Modern Manner."

• • • •

Next week might well be denominated laugh week at Loew's Fox Theater, what with W. C. Fields and Al Trahan both included in the goings-on, beginning tomorrow. Fields will be seen as star of the screen feature, "The Old Fashioned Way," in which he appears as the Great McGonigle, a backwoods Barrymore, who tours his company through all of the little op'ry houses. Baby LeRoy is featured with the bulbous-nosed comic. Jack Mulhall, Judith Allen and Joe Morrison lead the support. On the stage, in addition to that piano-playing madman, Trahan, will be seen Ina Ray Hutton and her Melodeers, with Joan Abbott as an added attraction; the Six Yellow Jackets, dancers, and Yascha Bunchuk, cello virtuoso, who long led one of Roxy's brilliant orchestras.

• • • •

Pat O'Brien and Glenda Farrell are the cofeatured players in "The Personality Kid," screen feature of the bill announced for the week beginning Friday at the Warners' Metropolitan Theater. O'Brien is cast as a flashy fellow of considerable intrinsic worth who permits his vanity to lead him into delusions of grandeur until Miss Farrell extricates him from the dangers that impend. One of these dangers is Claire Dodd. The supplementary attractions include 15 minutes of news events, a travelreel, "East Indies;" Sigmund Spaeth, "the tune detective," in "Stolen Melody" and other short-reel subjects.

• • • •

So diverted are Washington theatergoers by the hilarious manner in which Will Rogers cuts loose in "Handy Andy," that that screen rendition of Lewis Beach's stage play of "Merry Andrew" will continue for a second week at Loew's Palace Theater, beginning tomorrow. Mary Carlisle, Peggy Wood, Roger Imhof and numerous others support the star in this story of a small-town druggist whose wife persuaded him to "retire" and have some fun. Thelma Todd and Patsy Kelly in "Three Chumps Ahead," added short subjects and the Metrotone News complete the bill.

• • • •

"Baby Take a Bow," costarring Shirley Temple and James Dunn, with the accent on Shirley Temple, will resume its F street run tomorrow at Loew's Columbia Theater, where it will be the chief feature of the bill for the impending week. The story is one of former jailbirds and the law, with a baby tipping the scales on the side of justice. Excellent support is contributed by Alan Dinehart, Claire Trevor, Ralf Harolde and many more. Comedy, added short-reels and the Paramount Sound News will round out the program.

• • • •

A novelty will be offered the Capital's amusement seekers on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday nights of next week, when the famous old P. T. Barnum melodrama of "The Drunkard" will be presented by the Roof Players atop the Hotel Willard. "The Drunkard" will be presented exactly as Barnum did it, with the famous "olio" restored and community singing following the fall of the final curtain. Beer and pretzels will be served during the action of the drama and between acts dancing and singing will be participated in by the audience. Tickets are already on sale at the Willard at $1.65, including tax, beer, pretzels, dancing, singing and the show!

With the "dog days" upon us, the Crystal Pool, the air-cooled Spanish Garden Ballroom, the roller coaster, the dodgem ride and the 50-odd other amusement devices on tap at Glen Echo Park are at the height of their summertime glory. Glen Echo Park, scrupulously conducted and catering to the best elements through the appeal of sagacious and trustworthy management, is having one of the best seasons in its history. Every facility is afforded family parties for enjoying anywhere from an hour to an entire day and evening of picnicking. Park admission is free and the attractions operated at modest tariffs.

• • • •

Visitors to Seaside Park, down at Chesapeake Beach, Md., this Saturday will have an opportunity to hear the combined boys' bands of the Loew Theaters in Washington and Baltimore. The youngsters will be spending the day at the resort, picnicking, swimming, riding the coaster and enjoying the other park attractions. In the afternoon they will give a concert in the bayside ballroom. Other Saturday excursions include the Fraternal Society for the Deaf. On Monday, Joe Brown's radio kiddies will hold an excursion and entertain in the ballroom in the afternoon. Free dancing continues on Monday, Wednesday and Friday evenings.

Peery Accepts Bid To Roanoke Island

Landing of Raleigh Will Be Commemorated.

Richmond, Aug. 9 (AP).—Gov. Peery today announced he had accepted an invitation to attend celebrations at Roanoke Island, N. C., commemorating the landing of Sir Walter Raleigh and the birth of Virginia Dare.

The celebration is to be held August 17 and 18, and the Virginia Governor will attend on the eighteenth.

He will go to Virginia Beach next Friday to an inspection of the National Guard Camp and a review of the troops, and leave the camp for the trip down to the coast for Nags Head, Manteo and Roanoke Island.

J. G. Rodgers, Lifelong Stafford Resident, Dies

Fredericksburg, Va., Aug. 9 (Spl.).—John G. Rodgers, 82, lifelong Stafford County resident, died today at the home of his son, Albert Rodgers.

Mr. Rodgers is survived by his son and one daughter, Mrs. Sarah Sullivan, of Spotsylvania County.

Facsimile of First M. E. Church Planned

Baltimore, Md., Aug. 9 (Spl.).—As one of the principal features of the celebration of Methodism's sesquicentennial in the United States, to be held in Baltimore in October, it has been proposed that a facsimile of the first Methodist meeting house in America be erected on the original site in Carroll County.

A special committee has been named to solicit funds for the building, which will be constructed of white oak logs. It will stand on what has been determined as the exact location of the original building, about 2 miles from New Windsor.

Rites Held for Frank Hardy.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Aug. 9 (Spl.).—W. Frank Hardy, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Hardy, of near Bunker Hill, was buried here this morning.

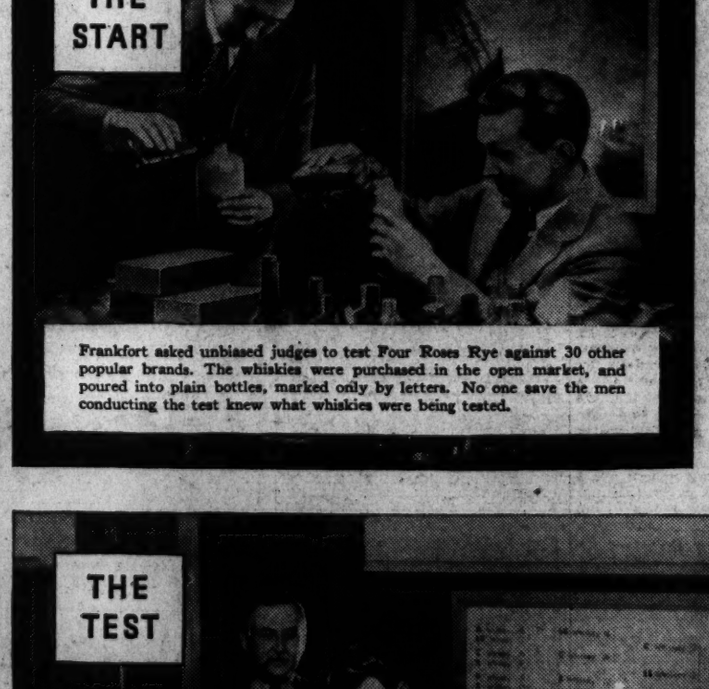
FOUR ROSES WHISKEY
DEFEATS 30 FAMOUS BRANDS IN TASTE-TOURNAMENT!



Frankfort asked unbiased judges to test Four Roses Rye against 30 other popular brands. The whiskies were purchased in the open market, and poured into plain bottles, marked only by letters. No one save the men conducting the test knew what whiskies were being tested.

HERE'S NO MERE CLAIM of superiority. Here's proof!

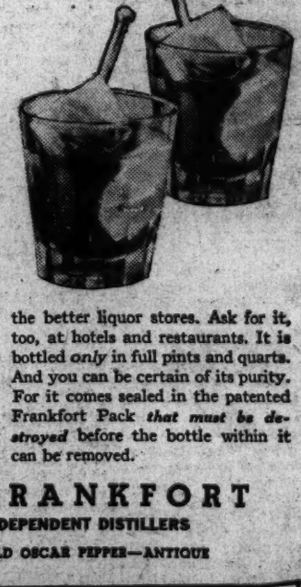
In a "blind" taste-tournament, with scores of people testing, Four Roses Rye triumphed over 30 other famous brands!

The reason is in the finer flavor of Four Roses—its genial smoothness, its rich, old-whiskey flavor. Because Four Roses is made from naturally aged hand-made Maryland Rye whiskies. No tricks! That means there's no harsh "bite" to Four Roses.

Naturally, it takes skill to make a whiskey like Four Roses. But Frankfort isn't one of those companies that rushed in with Repeal. Frankfort has been making fine whiskey for four generations. Its yeast culture—key-ingredient in making great whiskey—has been guarded for 50 years. Frankfort knows how!

Try a bottle of Four Roses Rye—compare it. You'll find it at any of the the better liquor stores. Ask for it, too, at hotels and restaurants. It is bottled only in full pints and quarts. And you can be certain of its purity. For it comes sealed in the patented Frankfort Pack that must be destroyed before the bottle within it can be removed.



MADE BY FRANKFORT
AMERICA'S LARGEST INDEPENDENT DISTILLERS
MAKERS OF PAUL JONES—OLD OSCAR PEPPER—ANTIQUE

Cochrane Stars as Tigers Win Ninth in Row, Swamping Browns, 13-2

Diegel Wins Hagen Open With 276

Cards Record Tying 66 on Final Round for 2-Shot Margin.

Ky Laffoon Is Second; Houghton Totals 292, Far Down List.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Aug. 9 (AP).—A course record-tying 66 on the second round today won first money in the Rochester Centennial-Walter Hagen Testimonial Golf Tourney for Leo Diegel, of Philadelphia.

Laffoon, who also kept his score at par or below for the match, ended with 278. Needing a 67 to tie Diegel, the Denver pro made a valiant try, carding a par 35 on the way out and coming in 1 under par for a 69.

Tied Three Times.

The competition was the stiffest ever seen here, par yielding 19 times in the final round to the stroking of the large field of nationally known amateurs and professionals gathered to pay tribute to Hagen, local boy who made good.

The course record of 66 was tied three times in the final round.

Too late to do more than tie for third and fourth money with Willie MacFarlane, of Tuckahoe, N. Y., Lighthorse Harry Cooper, of Chicago, also clipped off a 66, giving him 282.

With his right eye almost completely closed by a bee sting suffered during yesterday's round, Laffoon surprised the crowd by his accuracy on the greens.

George Von Elm, Detroit, could not keep the pace set by Diegel and Laffoon and turned in a 72 for 283 and a tie for fifth and sixth money with Jimmy Hines, pro from Green River, N. Y.

Barron, Hulbert Tie.

Tied at 285 for seventh and eighth money were Barron and Art Hulbert, of Toronto. Andy Kay, another Canadian pro from Toronto, took ninth money with 286.

Gordon Taylor, jr., ranking Canadian amateur of Toronto, led the amateurs, scoring a 292 that was good for a three-way tie with Al Houghton, of Washington, D. C., and Olin Dutra, of California. Dutra remedied a bad start by getting a 63 in the last round.

Frederick Scores Over Woodsboro

Frederick, Md., Aug. 9 (Spl.).—Frederick tightened its grip on first place in the pennant race in the County League by defeating Woodsboro in a postponed game at McCurdy Field, 8 to 6. The tilt was even until the last half of the fifth inning when Frederick took the lead and was not headed the remainder of the game.

Frederick scored in the first frame on a walk, passed ball and double by Price. Woodsboro went to the fore in the next session on an error, hit batsman and singles by LeGore, Eaves and Crum. Frederick again forged ahead in the fourth inning and increased the lead in the eighth frame on singles by Twenty and James. Woodsboro threatened in the ninth when Houck tripled and scored on an infield out. Stout then walked, but Twenty pulled down LeGore's long fly to center field to end the game.

Giants Victors; Schumacher Wins 18th

Hurler Gives Dodgers Only Six Hits to Score, 16-5; Robinson Honored.

NEW YORK, Aug. 9 (AP).—The Giants, who appear to reserve their best hitting for Hal Schumacher's mound appearances, served up the young right-handers' eighteenth victory today, garnished with 15 timely base hits. This swatting and Hal's 6-hit burling gave the league leaders a 16-to-5 triumph over the Brooklyn Dodgers and increaseed their margin over the Cubs to three games.

In the first two innings the Giants batted around twice against Ray Benge and Owen Carroll, to score seven runs. After that there was nothing much to do but finish the game. Schumacher took care of that in good style, mixing in seven strike-outs with the six blows. Len Koenecke was the only Dodger who could do much with Hal's delivery, but he did plenty, clouting two home runs and a single.

Score Six in Eighth.

Ownie Carroll subdued the Giants after a fashion for a few innings, but they broke loose again for three counters in the sixth, and topped off the game with six tallies in the eighth, when Travis Jackson tripled and George Watkins hit for the circuit, each blow coming with two on base.

The flags on the grand stand roof were lowered to half-staff as the Dodgers came to bat in the first inning, in honor of the late Wilbert Robinson, former Brooklyn manager.

Robbie Waits Baltimore Burial

Funeral Cortege Leaves Atlanta Today for Rite Tomorrow.

Landis Plans to Attend; Many Pay Tribute in Messages.

ATLANTA, Aug. 9 (AP).—After requiem high mass here tomorrow, the body of Wilbert Robinson, whom the baseball world knew as "Uncle Robbie," will be borne back to Baltimore, scene of his early triumphs, for burial.

The mass will be said at 9:30 a. m. at Sacred Heart Cathedral. At noon the funeral cortege will entrain for Baltimore, where the Nationally known baseball character is to be buried in the Bonnie Brae Cemetery Saturday.

Beginning with last night, when "Uncloe Robbie" died of a cerebral hemorrhage, messages of sympathy and condolence have poured into the hotel where the Robinsons made their home.

Landis to Attend.

Kenesaw Mountain Landis, commissioner of Baseball, telepraghed his sympathy to Mrs. Robinson and planned to attend the funeral along with other baseball notables.

Many of the Southern Association club leaders planned to attend the services for the man who, after a career in the big leagues, came out of retirement to help build up the Atlanta Baseball Club as its president.

"Uncle Wilbert," universally liked for wit and geniality, joked until the last. He fell in his hotel room and a broken arm was first thought to be his only trouble. Even after physicians convinced him his condition was serious, he laughed.

"Imagine me getting a broken arm," he said. "Imagine that."

"Make a funny story about it," he said to a newspaperman. "Say your Uncle Wilbert slipped on a banana peel."

He died a little later last night.

He is survived by his widow, a son, Harry L. Robinson, of Baltimore, and a daughter, Mrs. Frank H. Gunther, of Spring Lake, N. J.

Born at Hudson, Mass.

He was born June 2, 1864, at Hudson, Mass., and began his baseball career in 1885 with Haverhill. He served with Philadelphia and in 1890 joined the famous Baltimore Orioles. By many he was considered the greatest catcher of all time and in 1892 set a record of seven hits for a single game which still stands.

He served with the Baltimore Americans and later managed Baltimore in the Eastern League. In 1904 he retired and was called back to coach the New York Giants in 1911 by John McGraw. Later he headed the Brooklyn Dodgers, dropping out of baseball for a time then until the Atlanta Crackers called upon him. He had served as president of the Atlanta club two seasons.

Fields, Shikat Added To Thursday Mat Card

Washington rassle fans want what they want when they want it and in large numbers they yesterday let Promoter Joe Turner know that they want to hear the grunts of the pachyderms and to enjoy their face-making on Thursday nights. As a result of these protests, the rassling impresario, who had planned next week's card at Griffith Stadium for Wednesday night, has shifted to Thursday and intimates that he will stick to this night in the future.

Sando Szabo and Gino Garibaldi, booked to tussle in the feature, found that they were not dated up for Thursday and so will do their stuff as scheduled. Up and coming Harry Fields takes on Dick Shikat in the semifinal and, if the former world champ takes the match seriously, Fields will start "going down" again.

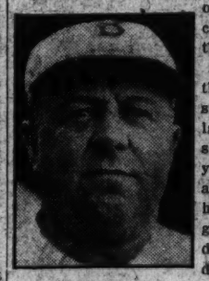
Uncle Robbie, 1864-1934

By Paul Gallico.

NEW YORK, Aug. 9 (Spl.).—One by one, the sere leaves flutter to earth from the drying vine. Yesterday, it was Wilbert Robinson, former manager and president of the Brooklyn Baseball Club. His monuments on earth are two nicknames, and a reputation for efficiency and honesty in baseball that permitted him no rest when he would have and did retire a few years ago, to spend the rest of his life hunting and fishing at Dover Hall, Brunswick, Ga., not many miles away from the enchanted and Golden Isle of Guale, where the tall pines are shrouded in tatters of Spanish moss and the boss turkeys roost high in the treetops. Robinson was a member of the famous old Orioles with John McGraw, Hughie Jennings, Willie Keeler and Joe Kelley, all departed. More than likely the boys were reorganizing the old ball club in the Beyond and needed their old catcher. Robbie has gone to join them.

That will be about the end of the great fall hunt meetings at Dover Hall. Old Cap Huston and Damon Runyon are about the only ones of the old group left who used to congregate there at the first sign of snap in the air.



Bozeman Bulger is gone. Bill McGeehan, the "old sheriff" and the greatest newspaper sports columnist living or dead, passed away last winter in that very Brunswick he loved so well and lies now in the little churchyard on St. Simeon under the mourning trees, and now Uncle Robbie, too, is gone, and with him the life and the joy out of that little group of cronies who loved to hunt, eat, drink, tell lies and talk baseball, the new days and the old. Robinson died in Atlanta, Ga., where he was president of the Atlanta Crackers. I hope they bring him back to Brunswick and let him rest next to McGeehan in that quiet, sombre, beautiful ground.

Gay, Incredulous Things.

There, perhaps, when the golden harvest moon shines through the hanging moss, the barriers will break away and the two cronies can crack a ghostly pint and talk once more of the old world they once inhabited and the gay, gallant, incredulous things that happened there. But I don't suppose they will. They probably will ferry what is left of a genial, gregarious, happy man and tuck him away in a stuffy plot in Baltimore, where he will be lonely and unhappy.

Of the living Robinson, the two nicknames tell the story. His baseball club was known for 18 years as the Robins, and he himself was never called anything but Uncle Robbie. Now Brooklyn is a large city and the Brooklyn Baseball Club, a heterogeneous collection (it has been called practically everything else) of athletes from the four corners of the country. But the thing that impressed itself on the spectators, the writers and the players themselves was the name and personality of their manager. They played out of and in Brooklyn in the National League, but Robins they were called. And nobody ever though of the bird in connection with the name. It always brought to mind the large man with the body shaped exactly like an egg on end, and the face and jowls of Santa Claus minus his whiskers.

Was Uncle to All.

Some men fall naturally into the nickname of "Colonel" or "Captain," or Spike or Butch, some men always remain Mister and have no nicknames at all, and a few are blessed to be called Uncle, by one and all, young and old. One always thinks of Uncle as the kindly elder to whom one goes for aid and advice, who is always human and always a friend. Robbie was uncle to his players, to his superiors—when he had some—to the sports writers, to the groundkeeper and the bat boy, to his fellow managers, and the baseball magnates, and to the urchins in the stree toutside Ebbetts Field. He was as plain, homely and comfortable as an old bathrobe, and as warm. Only such a man, and one with many other unusual characteristics, along with which went the patience of a first degree saint, could have lasted so long and been so popular and successful in such a red hot fan's town as Brooklyn.

Robbie won only two pennants in his long years with Brooklyn, but he won more popularity and love than any other baseball manager, I am sure. Connie Mack long has been a saintly and venerated figure in Philadelphia, but there is a little chill around Cornelius, and austerity that does not permit hte homely friendships and pleasures that Robbie enjoyed. McGraw was fiery and hard-boiled and made as many enemies as friends. Robbie liked to live in a happy, placid world, bounded on the north by Ebbetts Field, on the south by Dover Hall, and on the east and west by friends. The daily contests with the other clubs were meat and drink to him and he enjoyed every minute of them.

Linke on Slab Against A's Today

Nats Resume Fight for First Division Berth Before Ladies.

By Lewis F. Atchison.

MR. CONNIE MACK, who has broken up more good ball clubs than any other manager in captivity, brings his troupe of performing White Elephants to the Griffith picnic grounds this afternoon for a four-game series with the Nats that has no bearing on the pennant race but is important to Washington's hopes for a first division rating. The clubs have a double-header tomorrow and a singleton Sunday.

While the Yanks and Nats loafed yesterday because of the rain, Detroit picked up another half game on Joe McCarthy's outfit, increasing its lead to three full games by virtue of a one-sided triumph over St. Louis. McCarthy, I suspect, breathed a sigh of relief when the weatherman stepped between his faltering Yankees and the rejuvenated Nats. It's bad enough to lose a half game but not as bad as losing a whole one.

To Be Played September 29.

The postponed game will be played as part of a double-header in Washington on September 29.

The prize package of Mr. Mack's menagerie happens to be Jimmy Foxx, who spends his time breaking down various and sundry fences inclosing American League parks. At the moment the Eastern Sho' boy is running a nose-to-nose race with Baggy Pants Gehrig for the home-run championship of the circuit, and both have hopes of exceeding the record of 60 hung up some years ago by G. Herman Ruth.

Average Suffered Here.

Gehrig, sporting a one-run lead on Foxx, who has 35, lost considerably batting prestige and innumerable percentage points on the poor fare served him by Washington's pitchers. Larruping Lou batted exactly .071 during the three games—or in hits and times at bat—one in 13.

Foxx officially was at bat only seven times in the two games played against Washington in Philadelphia last week and he, too, was held to one bit. This is not meant to imply the boys are slipping, but that the Washington pitching corpse has evidenced signs of renewed life and vigor.

Linke to Seek Third.

The most active young sprite in the pitching department is blubbery Ed Linke, who has won two games and lost one since rejoining the club and who is going after a third victory this afternoon in a ladies' day encounter. The fat kid is a vastly imporved mound artist and believes he has the stuff to whip the A's. He was denied the privilege of facing the Mackmen last week when Philadelphia officials called off a game because of an imaginary rainstorm.

When Ed is right his fast ball flashes down the alley with the speed of a cannon shot and his curves resemble pretzel models. When he's wrong, well, it's just too bad.

Salisbury Netwomen Open Tourney Monday

Salisbury, Md., Aug. 9 (Spl.).—The Salisbury Tennis Association announced today the women's open tournament would start here Monday. This is for the Lee Allen Cup, which is awarded annually in women's singles.

Tomorrow, the Nassawadox, Va., team of the Eastern Shore Tennis Association, will play singles and doubles with Salisbury as their opponents. These two teams rank first and second, respectively, in the association and the result of this match will probably decide the championship of the association for the season, as the last match play takes place August 18.

Dates for the men's open tournament have not been definitely set, but it is planned for the last week in August. This tournament in past years has attracted players from all sections of the Del-Mar-Va Peninsula and has produced a high brand of tennis.

Brennan, Ex-Hoya Star, Released to Toronto

Cincinnati, Ohio, Aug. 9 (AP).—Don Brennan, former New York Yankee pitcher, was released on option to Toronto, of the International League, today by the Cincinnati Reds. Brennan was the losing pitcher here yesterday when St. Louis scored six runs off the Reds in the twelfth inning.

Brennan, varsity pitcher at Georgetown University during the seasons of 1923-24, went to the big leagues from the Newark club, joining the Yankees in 1931. He was released last season after two trials with New York.

Assault Cain and Benton for 9 Runs in Third; Rain Halts Game.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 9 (AP).—The Boston Red Sox today defeated the Philadelphia Athletics, 15 to 2, in a game cut to five innings by rain.

Boston clinched the victory in the third inning by walloping Sugar Cain and Al Benton for nine runs. They added five more in the fifth.

Coming From Behind, Pancoast, $4.72, Wins

Chicago, Aug. 9 (AP).—Coming from behind, A. B. Gallaher's Pancoast made a brilliant stretch run today to win the 6-furlong feature at Hawthorne from Stuyvesant Peabody's Miss Melody.

Miss Melody jumped into the lead early, while Pancoast was off to a slow start. Under Charley Corbett's urging, Pancoast pulled up into a contending position and challenged Miss Melody at the head of the stretch. They battled it out to the wire, with Pancoast getting the decision by a nose. R. T. Watts' Siskin was third. Pancoast paid $4.72.

Gaels, Santa Clara Heal Football Rift

San Francisco, Aug. 9 (AP).—Two of the keenest athletic rivals on the West Coast—St. Mary's College and the University of Santa Clara—agreed today to patch up their differences, thereby assuring continuance of an annual football game in San Francisco that has drawn 50,000 or more fans for many years.

They severed all athletic relations last November after a 6-to-6 tie football game resulted in a small free for all between partisan spectators.

Pilot Bats In Five Tallies In Rout

Hurler Registers 15th; Lead Over Yankees Now 3 Games.

DETROIT, Aug. 9 (AP).—Manager Mickey Cochrane personally conducted the Tigers to their ninth consecutive victory and their third over the St. Louis Browns today as the Detroit Club banged out a 13-to-2 victory with one of its characteristic late-inning rallies.

It was the second time in two days that Cochanre's bat figured importantly in a Tiger triumph and it put his club three full games ahead of the secnod-place Yankees as rain prevented the New York-Washington game.

Bats in 5 Runs.

Yesterday Cochrane drove in the winning run in the tenth. Today he batted home five tallies with four singles. The game also brought Tommy Bridges his fifteenth victory against six defeats, putting him on even terms with "School Boy" Rowe in the number of games won for the Tigers. He was touched for nine hits, three of them by Ray Pepper, but was in danger only once.

For five innings it was a pitchers' battle between Bridges and Buck Newsom, with the Tigers holding a 3-0 lead as the result of a double steal by Joyner White and Cochrane and Frank Grube's error in the first and the manager's single with Pete Fox and White on base in the second.

Cleves, 2-1 Favorite, Off Slowly But Spurts to Win Feature at Narragansett

W. Saunders Rides Colt Cleverly

Redress, Outsider, Runs Second and Zorana Finishes Third.

PAWTUCKET, R. I., Aug. 9 (AP).—H. C. Phipps' Cleves journeyed over from Saratoga, where he ran third in two races, to take the mile feature for 3-year-olds at Narragansett Park today.

The bay colt was made the 2-to-1 favorite, but it took a good ride on the part of W. Saunders to justify the confidence placed in the offspring of the little known stallion, Sardanapale. Cleves was slow away from the barrier and trailed for the first 3 furlongs.

Approaching the half-mile post he began to move up, however, and at the head of the stretch was running fourth, only two lengths back of the pace-making Zorana from Mrs. T. Hunt's stable. Saunders went to work on his mount and Cleves flashed to the front in the stretch, crossing the finish line with a length to spare over C. V. Whitney's Redress, an outsider. Zorana was third.

The time for the 8 furlongs was 1:39 flat.

Uppermost Winner.

Saratoga Race Track, Aug. 9 (AP).—Morton L. Schwartz's Uppermost, which won her only two starts at Empire City in a jog, stepped up into higher class company here today and lasted to win the seventeenth running of the Schuylersville, 5½-furlong fixture for 2-year-old fillies. The chestnut daughter of Cohort—Summit made the fastest time of the meeting for the distance, completing her speedy journey in 1:05 3-5 to score by a neck. William Woodward's Vicaress was a fast going second, a length and a half before E. R. Bradley's Bird Flower.

Uppermost earned $2,550 for her efforts and was a 13-to-5 favorite, with the sandy-haired Lee Humphries doing the kicking. Owner Schwartz completed a double with this triumph, Hindu Queen having accounted for the opening purse in a gallop.

At the Post . . .

Dear Al: Narragansett Park, Aug. 9.

I called the second race, one, two, three, and several of my choices finished second, but the fact remains that I only gave you two winners and tomorrow is Friday, so don't get "hung." It is a bum card.

Bill postcards that he will return Sunday, which is just as well, for Mike got in the pesthouse today—not as a nuisance, but quarantined.

It all happened after the fourth race. He was rooting so hard for Liqueur, which ran third, that the crowd was sure he was full. When a track copper tapped him on the shoulder, Mike turned from the rail in front of the judges' stand and gave all a shock.

His face looked like it had been peppered with shot. Mike said it was due to excitement, but the track physician said it was measles, so away he went, lamenting that a hoss doctor did not know the difference between hives and the measles. Mike has certainly had his share of trouble since Bill started on his fishing expedition. Yours, JOE.

First race—Yap, Peper Profit and Reigh Rose look as good as any.

Second race—Just a cheap bunch of maiden fillies. Borrow a hat pin and go to it. Candy Maid, War Profits and Mollie may finish in the money.

Third race—More maidens trying to graduate. Tell Why, Immune and Heedless Gal may stagger home.

Fourth race—Home Loan finally got out of the maiden class Tuesday and may win this heat. Westy's Duke and Gay Blade for place and show.

Hardin Shatters Hurdles Record

Torrence, Bonthron Also Win Events in Sweden.

Malmo, Sweden, Aug. 9 (U.P.).—Glen Hardin, Louisiana middle-distance ace, again cracked the world record for the 400-meter hurdles, racing the distance in 51.4 seconds. He ran four-tenths faster at Stockholm, and will apply for today's records only if the other is not approved.

Jack Torrance, another Louisianan, won the shot-put from a fellow American, John Lyman, of Stanford, throwing the ball 16.45 meters. Lyman threw 15.63 and Siewert, of Germany, tossed it 14.39 meters.

Bill Bonthron, Princeton miler, won the 3,000-meter run in 8 minutes 40.8 seconds; Ben Eastman, former Stanford star, captured the 800 meters in 1 minute 52.1 seconds, and Bob Kane, of Cornell, won the 400 meters in 49 seconds. Percy Beard, former Alabama Poly athlete, won the 110-meter high hurdles in 14.7 seconds.

Decker-Hickey Playground Finalists

Beat Hart-Riggin Team in Girls' Tennis Play by 6—4, 6—1 Score.

AFTER many weeks of play based on the survival of the fittest of several hundred girls, 15-year-old Charlotte Decker and her teammate of the same age, Adah Hickey, of Janney Playground, saw their long efforts rewarded yesterday by gaining the final round of the annual city playground girls' doubles tennis championships. The Janney misses defeated Elaine Hart and Wilsie Riggin, of Happy Hollow, 6—4, 6—1, at Chevy Chase.

Only two other teams remain in the tournament, which started back in June, and one of these will be eliminated today. Helen Orme and Lucille McDowell, of Burroughs, earned the right to battle Margaret Alley and Virginia Pritchard, of Garfield, this morning at Rosedale Playground through the elimination of Alice Sartori and Esther Stein, of Twin Oaks, 3—6, 6—1, 6—4. Today's semifinal will start at 11 o'clock.

Miss Allen and Miss Pritchard ousted Catherine Adams and Lucille Towers, of Sherwood, in the quarter-finals at Garfield yesterday, 6—3, 6—1. The winner of today's match will face the Janney team in the finals Saturday morning at 11 o'clock.

Rain prevented the semifinal matches in the boys' senior and junior championships yesterday at Chevy Chase and they will be played off today at 2 o'clock. In the junior class, Allie Ritzenberg, of Central High and Cooke Playground, will face Dickie Lynham, of Western High and Eaton Playground, in the feature match of the day, and Hop Lomax, of Georgetown, will face Maurice Robbins, of Burroughs.

Handing Over the Match in Playground Tourney

Injury to Keep Hitchcock Out Two Weeks

Doctor Opines Polo Star Was Lucky to Escape Worse Hurts.

NEW YORK, Aug. 9 (AP).—An injury diagnosed today as a "slight concussion," the result of a heavy fall from his pony in yesterday's Eastern polo match, will keep Tommy Hitchcock out of action for at least two weeks. His doctor predicted a full recovery, however, for the famous 10-goal internationalist in time to permit his participation in the East-West series starting on September 15 at Meadow Brook.

Although Hitchcock was fortunate, in his doctor's opinion, to escape more serious injury and a possible fracture of the skull, it was decided to take every precaution in his present treatment, inasmuch as this is the second concussion he has suffered from a fall within a year.

Felled in Series.

He was knocked out during the last East-West series at Chicago, as a result of which he played no further polo during the 1933 season. He was saved from more serious consequences yesterday because the special helmet he now wears absorbed most of the shock when his head bumped the ground.

Hitchcock is unlikely to play in any of the remaining test matches to decide the East's line-up. About five more are scheduled, including the fourth contest Sunday at Sands Point, but the selection committee, headed by Devereux Milburn, probably will consider Hitchcock a fixture at No. 3, his regular position, pending further developments.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—HARDWARE, $72.60, $42.00, $14.80; RADIATOR, $15.50, $6.30; COLORIST, $3.00.

HARDWARE moved up steadily leaving the back stretch, closed stoutly in the stretch and drew out steadily in the last 70 yards. RADIATOR, in close pursuit of the early pace, went to the front in the stretch, but was no match for the winner in the closing test. COLORIST, kept under pressure in showing the way, weakened in the last furlong. BLIGHTED HOPES, a factor at all the way, was unable to improve her position when placed under punishment. VALISE, outrun early, closed some ground, though never able to enter in contention. TARBUCKET came with a belated rush at the end. DIXIE PRINCESS, well placed early, weakened when real racing began. DOUBLETON had early speed, but stopped.

SECOND RACE—Five and one-half furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For 2-year-olds. Start good. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 3:03½. Off at 3:12½. Winner, C. V. Whitney's lt. b. g. †C. V. Whitney entry.

WILD PIGEON, unruly at the post, worked his way up gradually on the outside, closed fast through the closing quarter mile and won as if much the best. WAX, prominently placed from the start, continued gamely to the end, but was no match for the winner in the closing test. TUTTICURIO, who raced in close quarters, faltered in the last three-sixteenths. MISS BOSS made up some ground. MIGRATE was unable to gain a prominent position. ROPING was outrun. COLOR BEARER was never a factor. JAY D. had good speed, but stopped badly in the closing quarter mile.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:41. Off at 3:42½. Winner, W. G. Marion's ch. h. Two-dollar mutuels paid—DORNOCH, $9.00, $4.10, $2.80; JAZ AGE, $4.30, $2.90; PORTCODINE, $4.10.

DORNOCH, never far from the pace, moved around on the outside of the leaders and, hard ridden through the stretch, was along inside the last 70 yards. JAZ AGE, steadied along for the opening quarter mile, drew into a good lead leaving the back stretch, but was unable to withstand the closing bid of the winner. PORTCODINE closed with a belated rush through the stretch and was travelling the fastest at the end. RHODIUS was never prominent, though last into the ground in the last furlong. MERRY CHATTER had good early speed, but weakened in the last five-sixteenths. FLAGHORN, slow to begin, stumbled rounding the far turn and was a trailer throughout.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won handily; place driving. Went to post at 4:12. Off at 4:13. Winner, T. F. Rattle's b. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—LEAFLET, $13.80, $8.30, $4.20; MONKS STAR, $9.90, $4.80; LIQUER, $3.50.

LEAFLET, restrained early, while within striking distance of the pace, moved up on the inside leaving the back stretch, came to the outside for the closing test and, wearing down MONKS STAR, was going away at the finish. MONKS STAR had good speed, shook off STRENUOUS, drew clear at the furlong pole, but was unable to keep pace with the winner when challenged. LIQUEUR, well placed, was forced to ease back slightly when in close quarters between the leaders approaching the half-mile ground, closed gamely, but unable to reach the first two. STRENUOUS had good speed, but weakened from her efforts of trying to get to the front. ERECH was unable to improve his position under hard urging. BABY STARE was outrun. FOLLOW ON trailed throughout.

FIFTH RACE—One mile. Purse, $1,200; allowances. The Old Slater Mill. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won ridden out; place, driving. Went to post at 4:41½. Off at once. Winner, H. C. Phipps' b. c. (3), by Sardanapale—Marguerite De Valois. Trained by G. Tappen. Value to winner, $850; second $200; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 0:24, 0:47 2-5, 1:13, 1:39.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CLEVES, $5.80, $4.60, $3.20; REDRESS, $7.90, $4.90; ZORANA, $4.10.

CLEVES, slow to begin and a trailer for the first three furlongs, began to give improved speed approaching the half-mile ground, moved up steadily, came to the outside in the stretch, closed with good energy and was drawing away at the end. REDRESS, steadied back of the pace, moved up stoutly in the last quarter mile and held on gamely in the drive. ZORANA, steadied along in close attendance of the pace, took the lead in the stretch, but weakened in the closing furlong. RITTER had good speed, but weakened in the final test. KOTERITO weakened after going half mile. PLAYING ON went well for the first six furlongs. FLAMING MAMIE was never prominent.

SIXTH RACE—One mile. Purse, $800; claiming. For maiden 3-year-olds and upward. Went to post at 5:16. Off at 5:11. Winner, G. P. Sherman's ch. f. (4), by John P. Grier—Lady Wood. Trained by I. Fletcher. Value to winner, $600; second, $115; third, $60; fourth, $25. Time, 0:24, 0:48 3-5, 1:14, 1:41 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—TEENIE R., $17.70, $5.30, $2.90; BRIGHT CHANCE, $2.80, $2.30; DARK TYRANT, $2.40.

TEENIE R. steadied along in close pursuit of the pace, wore down DARK TYRANT in the stretch and held BRIGHT CHANCE safe at the end. The latter went wide around the first turn, continued to race on the outside while moving up on the backstretch, closed gamely in the last three-sixteenths, but was unable to reach the winner. TYRANT, disposed of SILVER WRACK, drew away approaching the stretch, but weakened through the stretch run. SILVER WRACK had good early speed, but faltered after going six furlongs. EMPLOYMENT never could reach a prominent position after being restrained early. The others were outrun. Lynch claimed a foul against the winner, but it was not allowed.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 5:40½. Off at 5:41½. Winner, N. B. Steward's ch. c. (3), by Fair Gain—Forefoin. Trained by H. G. Bedwell. Value to winner, $600; second, $115; third, $60; fourth, $25. Time, 0:24, 0:48 1-5, 1:13, 1:41 2-5, 1:48.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MANAGER BILL, $7.00, $4.00, $2.90; ERVAST, $8.90, $6.50; LAST BID, $8.10.

MANAGER BILL followed the pace of ERVAST, wore down the latter nearing the stretch and drew out steadily in the last furlong. ERVAST went to the front in the run to the first turn, was rated along in advance of his field, but was unable to keep pace when challenged. LAST BID closed gamely in the last quarter mile. HIGH SOCKS moved up on the inside nearing the stretch, but was unable to reach the leaders in the closing strides. RETRIBUTION, shuffled back at the start, never entered into contention. QUICK STEP had good speed, but faltered in the last quarter mile. INFILEE was outrun all the way.

Maryland's Tercentenary Three-Day Regatta Will Open in Baltimore Today

Water Meet Lists 140 Events

El Logarto, Winner of Gold Cup in Feature Sweepstakes.

Motor, Sail and Rowing Events Make Varied Schedule.

BALTIMORE, Aug. 9 (AP).—Three Navy fighters of private craft today cruised up the Patapsco River for the Maryland Yacht Club's mammoth tercentenary regatta, which opens tomorrow.

While a hundred or more of the entries in regatta races—including speed and sailboats, outboards and man-driven shells—were practicing over the seven bouy-marked courses, 20 of the host club's finest craft escorted the Navy fighters in.

The small yachts, spic-and-span in new paint and with colors flying, presented a picturesque scene as they hovered around the huge battleship New York, the cruiser Marblehead and the destroyer Fox. Two other destroyers are scheduled to arrive tomorrow or Saturday.

140 Races Listed.

Approximately 140 races are on the three-day schedule. They will be featured by the annual race for the National sweepstakes trophy, to be defended by the gold cup champion, El Lagarto; The American Amateur Oarsmen Association's National championship, and innumerable sailing races.

The regatta, according to yacht club officials, is the largest open-water meet ever held in Eastern waters.

The boat races will include events for every conceivable type of craft, and some of the fastest boats in the Nation will compete. The committee in charge has received entries from every port along the Atlantic Coast, and in some of the races crews of Japanese and Chinese sailors will be entered. They are from steamers which will be in Baltimore harbor during the regatta.

Land Events, Too.

Elaborate plans have been made for events on land during the regatta period. An outdoor church service will be held at Fort McHenry Sunday, in which 12 denominations will take part. The parade on Saturday will be one of the most spectacular ever seen in Baltimore. A reproduction of the bombardment of Fort McHenry the next evening will be an impressive scene, it is expected.

Davis Team Back Hopeful for 1935

English Match Disappointing but Beneficial.

New York, Aug. 9 (AP).—Disappointed they didn't win, but satisfied that they gained a lot of experience for next year's campaign, America's Davis Cup tennis singles players, Sidney B. Wood, jr., and Frank X. Shields, and the team of Capt. R. Morris (Dick) Williams, returned from England today.

"England was the better team," said Williams discussing the 4—1 refeat, "but they're not so much better that we can't win three matches out of five from them probably next year.

"The chief contributing factor to ou rfailure was that Wood and Shields were not up to form on the first days of either the series with Australia or England. They didn't play well. It was just unfortunate because a turn in the fortunes on the first day in the challenge round against England might have made a great difference."

Haas, Jones Finalists In Western Junior Golf

Hinsdale, Ill., Aug. 9 (AP).—Fred Haas, New Orleans, and Bobby Jones, of Detroit, entered the finals of the Western junior golf championship today. They will meet in the 36-hole final tomorrow.

Haas survived by defeating Keith Johnson, Bloomington, Ill., 2 and 1. Jones won over Elton Hill, Urbana, Ill., 1 up when Hill missed a 2-foot putt for a half on the final green. Haas had the best medal card for the day, shooting out for a par 71.

Navy Gridmen Will Report On Sept. 5

61 Return From Cruise; Draw Vacations; Drilled on Ship With Miller.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Aug. 9 (Spl.).—The call of the gridiron resounded over the campus of the Naval Academy this afternoon as a contingent of more than 80 midshipmen gridders began a trek to their homes in various States of the Nation on their annual vacation, all hands being under orders to report their return to Annapolis September 5 for preliminaries incident to the 1934 campaign.

Sixty-one of the group, members of the first and third classes, had just returned from a junket on the briny deep, the battleships Wyoming and Arkansas having arrived in Hampton Roads yesterday from the annual summer practice cruise to European waters.

Second Classmen on Hand.

The gridders were transferred to the Tug Owl for the trip to Annapolis. Here the party was augmented by over a score of second classmen, who since early in June had been undergoing special instruction in seamanship, engineering, navigation and aviation tactics.

Heading the bevy of leave-taking gridders was Richard H. (Dick) Burns, Willmar, Minn., 165-pound guard, lightest man ever to hold that post on a Navy eleven. An aggressive player, Burns is expected to be a capable leader, and with much veteran talent available, coupled with the numerous recruits from last year's strong plebe team, followers of the Blue are counting upon big things during the coming season.

Of more than passing interest is the fact that the campaign will mark a return to the graduate system of coaching. Lieut. "Tom" Hamilton, quarter back, of the National championship eleven of 1926, will be at the helm of affairs, and eight of his assistants will be former Navy stars, some of whom already are on the scene.

Miller Held Drills on Trip.

The lone civilian mentor will be Edgar E. (Rip) Miller, formerly of Notre Dame, head coach for the last three years, who will fill the role of chief line mentor. Miller made the cruise with the Middie veterans and much grid work was carried on aboard ship, and in addition more extensive practice sessions were held at ports touched by the cruising squadron.

Simmons to Wed Chicago Girl, 19

Gets License for Marriage to Doris Lynn Reader.

Chicago, Aug. 9 (AP).—A marriage license was issued to Miss Doris Lynn Reader, of Chicago, and Al Simmons, Chicago White Sox outfielder, on August 6, it was learned today.

Simmons gave his name as Aloysius Harry Szymanski, and his age as 32. Out of action with a hand injury, Simmons is at his home in Milwaukee. No one could be reached at the Reader residence for comment. She is 19.

Harry Grabiner, vice president of the White Sox, said he understood the wedding would occur after the close of the American League season.

Macks Sign Moses.

Philadelphia, Aug. 9 (AP).—The Athelties today announced the purchase of Outfielder Moses, of the Galveston Club, of the Texas League. He hits left-handed. He is to join the Mackmen next spring.

The Post Sandlotter

VIC GAUZZA, who has dictated the policies and settled the squabbles of the National City League after the fashion of a Mussolini, was rattling off the schedule of Sunday's games in an impatient monotone.

"Pig 'n' Whistle versus St. Joes, Warwicks versus Dor-A, Congress Heights—now, there's the most improved team in the second-half play," Vic's voice perked up considerably.

"You know, the Heights boys changed managers at the end of the first-half series, and they certainly got a good man in Fred Wahler. The Wahlers, you know, were among the first inhabitants of Congress Heights, and there has been numerous ramifications of the old family tree, since the first Wahler set foot there. So, Freddy, you see, would have a good following even if the Heights team never won a game."

Youngest of Clan.

Cic continued with zest. "But Freddy, one of the youngest of the Wahler clan, has made a record that has more than quadrupled his family following, and that's a pretty big crowd, when all the Wahlers are present. The young 19-year-old leader has injected a new spirit into the team, which has carried it to a 4-game winning streak. One of the first things he did was to strengthen some of the weak spots in the team. He got a pretty good pitcher by the name of Elmer Gaum, and a couple other young players with plenty of pep in Tommy Nolan and Francis Robinson.

"Sure, they've got a chance for Section A title and an opportunity to get in The Post Association play-off. The Heights have only lost one game, you know, and if they can beat Wash B. Williams Sunday, they're still big threats to overtake Pig 'n Whistle. Vic was talking slowly now, reminding one of a salesman, who has just put across a sale to a customer.

Anything Can Happen.

"What do I think about the Pig 'n Whistle-St. Joe game. Well, you know as well as I how lousy St. Joe has been during the present series, but against the Pigs it will play inspired ball. There's no love lost between these rivals. Sure, the pigs are the favorites, but in a ball game of this kind anything can happen. Anything else? Goodby."

"If you don't succeed at first, try again." This has been Tony Burruto's slogan for the last four years in his repeated attempts to schedule a game with the vaunted St. Mary's Celtics. Finally Tony has succeeded. His Blue Flame Valet team faces the Celtics Sunday at Baggett's Stadium. The Valet nine, one of the best-balanced teams in The Post Association competition, is the outstanding challenger for the second-half title in Section B of the National City League. All Blue Flame players are requested to report at Tony's barber shop, Tenth and E streets northwest, at 1:3. to get in The Post Association

A game with an unlimited team is desired for Sunday by the Rex A. C., which has a diamond. Manager Sullivan may be reached at Potomac 2334-J.

Mount Rainier Grays are anxious to arrange a double-header for Labor Day with an out-of-town team. Games also are wanted for Saturdays and Sundays. Call Greenwood 1485 after 6 p. m. The Grays face their big test of the season against Heurich Brewers on August 25.

Brinkley's team seeks a game for Sunday. Call Lincoln 9664. Manager Bellman, of the Mount Rainier A. C., is on the outlook for a Sunday game to be played on the Mount Rainier field. He can be phoned at Emerson 8108.

The manager of the Benning A. C. is requested to call the pilot of the Stadium A. C. at North 9199 between 10 a. m. and noon today.

Now that its fine diamond at Woodbridge, Va., is in perfect shape, the Occoquan Athletic Club is endeavoring to list games with local teams. Manager McCullom, at National 6000, Branch 658, is handling the schedule.

The Warick Dor-A tilt in the National City unlimited league has been switched to the East Ellipse, and the Blue Coals Griffith-Rinaldi fray has been moved to No. 4 diamond, according to President Vic Gauzza.

The Senators won their tenth straight game in the East Washington Midget League yesterday, when they routed the Goose Goslins, 17 to 8. The manaer of the Capital A. C. is asked to call Mrs. Lillie Nicholas, director of ast Washington athletics, at Atlantic 4393-J in regard to the play-off of its postponed games.

Five games are scheduled today in the Columbian League as follow: Clarendon vs. Columbian Insects on South Ellipse at 9 o'clock; Rock Creek Ramblers vs. Northeast Jays on South Ellipse at 11; Capital A. C. vs. Hyattsville sluggers on East Ellipse at 11; Takoma Playground vs. Plaza Tile on East Ellipse at 1, and Buddy Myers vs. Heinie Manushes on East Ellipse at 9 o'clock.

Va. Foxhound Club Lists Show

16 Classes in Event to Be Held on Somerville Estate Sept. 20.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Aug. 9 (Spl.).—The Virginia Foxhound Club, recently organized, will hold its first annual bench show on September 20 at Montpelier, the estate of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Somerville in Orange County.

The show, under the auspices of the American Foxhound Club, will be open to recognized hunts and to owners of American foxhounds who may be invited. A prize list mailed to them by the secretary of the show is to be regarded as an invitation.

Algernon S. Craven, of Greenwood, this county, former M. F. H. of the Albemarle County Hunt, is chairman of the club's committee in charge of bench show.

Seven on Committee.

Other members are William du Pont, jr., M. F. H., of Wilmington, Del.; Daniel C. Sands, M. F. H., of Middleburg; Mrs. Thomas H. Somerville, M. F. H., of Montpelier; Fletcher Harper, M. F. H., of The Plains; Manley W. Carter, M. F. H., of Orange; Richard O. Hall, of Keswick, president of the Virginia Fox Hunters Association, and John C. Stewart, former M. F. H., of the Keswick Hount Club.

The prize list, mailed today by Secretary John C. Stewart, of Harkaway, Keswick, provides for 16 classes, entries for which will close September 10. The following gentlemen have been invited to act as judges at the bench show: Fletcher Harper, of The Plains, and W. W. Justice, of Willow Grove, Pa.

There will be five classes for dog hounds, five for bitches and six special classes;

Dog Hounds.

Class 1—Unentered dog hound (whelped since January 1, 1933). First prize, cup; second, third and fourth, ribbons.

Class 2—Couple of unentered dog hounds (whelped since January 1, 1933). First prize, cup; second, third and fourth, ribbons.

Class 3—Dog hound (whelped prior to January 1, 1933). First prize, cup; second, third and fourth, ribbons.

Class 4—Couple of dog hounds (whelped prior to January 1, 1933). First prize, cup; second, third and fourth, ribbons.

Class 5—Stallion hound, certified to be the sire of living puppies. First prize, cup; second, third and fourth, ribbons.

Bitches.

Class 6—Unentered bitch hound (whelped since January 1, 1933). First prize, cup; second, third and fourth, ribbons.

Class 7—Couple of unentered bitch hounds (whelped since January 1, 1933). First prize, cup; second, third and fourth, ribbons.

Class 8—Bitch hound (whelped prior to January 1, 1933). First prize, cup; second, third and fourth, ribbons.

Class 9—Couple of bitch hounds (whelped prior to January 1, 1933). First prize, cup; second, third and fourth, ribbons.

Class 10—Brood bitch, certified to be the dam of living puppies. First prize, cup; second, third and fourth, ribbons.

Specials.

Class 11—Dog hounds (any age), which have been placed in any recognized field trial. First prize, cup; ribbons.

Class 12—Bitch hounds (any age) which have been placed in any recognized field trial. First prize, cup; ribbons.

Class 16—Horn blowing contest; entry free.

Lott-Stoefen Save Day at Brookline

Win 2-Set Doubles Match After Hard First-Set; Others Advance.

BROOKLINE, Mass., Aug. 9 (AP).—Only the appearances of the world's greatest double team, George Lott and Lester Stoefen, the combination that gave the United States its only point in the final Davis Cup play against the British, saved today's Longwood Bowl tennis play from being a hum-drum affair.

The doubles quarter-finals was the only fare served up to the small gallery.

Lott and Stoefen drew a pair of hard battling veterans, Henry Guild, president of the Longwood Club, and Dr. G. C. Caner, and so well did these Bostonians play that the Davis Cup stars were given an opportunity to sharpen up their games.

Trumph, 6—4, 6—2.

Guild and Caner manager to hold the internationalists even during the first eight games. Guild was broken in the ninth, which enabled the Davis Cappers to take the first set, 6—4, and they romped away with the second, 6—2, Guild being the only member of the defeated forces to wear well during the final play.

The victory placed Lott and Stoefen into the semifinals against Jack Tidball, Hollywood, Calif., and Eddie Jacobs, Baltimore, who qualified by defeating Robert Bryan, Chattanooga, Tenn., and John McDiarmid, Fort Worth, Tex., 7—9, 6—3, 6—0.

Allison, Van Ryn Win.

Wilmer Allison, Austin, Tex., and Johnny Van Ryn, Philadelphia, bested the Princeton team of Lindley Tiers and Amos Enos, 6—1, 6—3. Berkeley Bell, New York, and Eugene McCauliff, Yonkers, N. Y., had a difficult struggle eliminating the persistent Rhode Islanders, William Van Elen, of Newport, and Arnold Jones, of Providence, 6—3, 4—6, 6—4.

Because the women engaged in the invitation tourney, run in conjunction with this bowl classic, were eager to get to get to Forest Hills, site of next week's National championships, play in both the singles and doubles were reduced to the point where the finals can be played tomorrow.

Sarah Palfrey Scores.

The top-seeded Sarah Palfrey, of Brookline, gained the last round by defeating Mrs. Majorie Morrill Painter, of Dedham, 6—1, 6—4. Jane Sharp, Los Angeles, kept pace by topping left-handed Marjorie Sachs, of Cambridge, 6—2, 6—1.

The women's doubles semifinals witnessed the surprising downfall of the second seeded team, Miss Sharp and Norma Tauble, New York, under the busy racquets of Helen Fulton, Chicago, and Catherine Wolf, Cincinnati, in straight sets, 6—3, 7—5. The Midwestern youngsters tried for everything and sent back most of their opponents' returns, a trick that appeared impossible in many instances. In the other match, the top-seeded Mrs. John Van Ryn, Philadelphia, and Josephine Cruickshank, of Santa Ana, another Wightman Cup veteran, gained an orthodox 6—2, 6—2 victory over Mrs. Mary Greef Harris, of Kansas City, and Dr. Esther Bartosh, Los Angeles.

Hook, Line and Sinker

By Jean Monk.

THE pan-size rockfish are whooping it up at Tall Timbers. Frank Del Vecchio, bait and tackle merchant, 1212 Eleventh street southeast, and Sergt. Jim Lowrey, Police Department, called on Capt. Goldsborough, Piney Point, yesterday, and he took them across to Raggedy Point.

They used 36-inch piand-wire leaders, one swivel at the top, none at the bottom; 2-ounce sinkers, No. 2 drones and let out just enough line (75 to 90 feet) to set the drones a-working. They hauled in 42 rockfish, one, two, three and an occasional four-pounder. They were trolling.

The water was rough; their seahorse bucked like a Chincoteague mustang, but Capt. Goldsborough held 'im steady while the boys socked in their spurs and pulled in the fish. One good feature about these smaller rockfish is that you don't have to wait until you see them breaking. They strike quicker than a group of union carpenters—any old time.

Croakers, Trout Plentiful

A report just received from H. Junemann, Tall Timbers, says fishing at that point the past week has been pastime rather than sport. "Croakers, trout and Norfolk spot," however, he goes on to say, "have been plentiful and more fishermen have worked off Tall Timbers the past week than ever before.

"Larger catches have been made by Maj. Wallace W. Kirby, F. Gwyn Gardiner, Joe Giebel, John E. Upp, Robt. B. O'Hara as well as by myself. Everyone is throwing them back under 2 pounds (croakers and trout) and the countryside is being supplied with fish gratis by those who catch more than they can use themselves.

"Saturday just before dusk I counted 23 boats fishing off Tall Timbers. It is impossible to learn just how many of the large rock are being caught, but up to a 22-pounder has been rumored."

Charles Bailey, who has the general merchandise store where the fish caught off Tall Timbers are iced down, writes, August 7:

Simpsons Report Good Catch.

"Dr. and Mrs. J. French Simpson and friend landed lots of 2 to 3½ pound trout off Tall Timbers Saturday, August 4. G. L. Ballman and friend caught a lot of blues, trout, spots and hardhead. Mrs. E. Haesman, wife of the superintendent of grounds of the Washington Ball Club, fishing with Capt. Goldsborough, landed 10 rock, 4 to 17 pounds, 75 large hardhead and some trout.

"Frank Lewis and friend, Billy Heckinger, of Washington and St. Georges Island, landed a lot of blues, spots and hardhead off St. Georges. The spots are running larger than I have ever seen before down this way."

A letter from Capt. A. E. Greenwell, dated August 8, Scotland, Md., in the Point Lookout group, reads as follows:

"On Tuesday afternoon, August 7, Capt. Clarence Greenwell, Point Lookout, Md., with Jack Cane and a party of four from Washington, caught 20 large trout, 10 blues, 60 spots and an enormous catch of perch and hardhead while still-fishing at the mouth of the Potomac River on Joes Rock.

Caught 'Em Two at Time.

"They caught the perch and hardhead two at a time until they got tired pulling them in. This was the biggest catch here for the past ten days."

Capt. Greenwell's place is at the monument, just before you reach Point Lookout. He has meals, lodging, boats and accommodations for about 20 fishermen.

A lot of fishermen (including a few fishing columnists) have been whispering for some time that the big croakers are gone or getting ready to leave. And all the while hundreds of the largest croakers that ever swallowed whole soft crabs and spat out the hooks in disdain have been pulled in daily; out from Galesville, Shady Side, Herring Bay, at The Gooses, near Hooper Island, off Point No Point, at Piney Point and Tall Timbers, Rock Point and elsewhere.

All of this is just talk. From July 4 until the present time the wind has been raising one bumper crop of whitecaps. Wherever the fisherman has gone — whitecaps. Many boatmen have refused to take their parties out on the bay or into the rivers. Fish don't bite very well when there are whitecaps. That's all there is to it.

D. C. Printers In Finals of Tourney

Defeat St. Paul, 7-3, and Need Victory Today to Clinch Title.

NEW YORK, Aug. 9 (AP).—Washington and Cincinnati gained the final round of the Union Printers International Baseball Championship Tournament today and will meet at the Yankee Stadium tomorrow for the title.

Washington hung up its fifth successive victory without defeat, setting back St. Paul, 7 to 3, behind tight pitching by Mosedale. Cincinnati carried its record to three triumphs in four starts by defeating Pittsburgh, 11 to 9. Should Cincinnati win from Washington tomorrow, another game between these clubs will be necessary to determine the title. If Washington wins the tournament will be closed.

First St. Paul defeated Chicago, 12 to 9, in an 11-inning game today.

Roosevelt to Hold Early Grid Drills

Prospects at School Best in Several Years.

The football renaissance at Roosevelt High School receives an encouraging boost this season with announcement that the institution, for the first time in ten years, will have early fall grid practice. The sessions will begin the first two weeks in September in the new Roosevelt Stadium.

Prospects for the best team to represent the school in many years were indicated as far back as last spring when 65 boys held spring practice. Coach Lynn Woodworth has a number of experienced veterans available.

Charles Town Horse Show Listed Aug. 16-18

Charles Town, W. Va., Aug. 9 (Spl.).—Jefferson County's big event, the twenty-second annual Charles Town horse show and races, will be held on the Shenandoah Jockey Club grounds, here, August 16, 17 and 18.

The committee in charge includes Dr H. B. Langdon, president; C. M. B. Brown, secretary treasurer, and Frank J. Brooke, manager.

The B. & O. Railroad will run excursions from Baltimore and Washington leaving those places at 11:25 and 11:35 respectively, August 18, and arriving here 2:15.

Lipscomb Yearlings Shipped to Spa Auction

Leesburg, Va., Aug. 9 (Spl.).—A consignment of thoroughbred yearlings from the stables of W. H. Lipscomb at Raspberry Plain, near Leesburg, were shipped yesterday to the sales ring at Saratoga, N. Y.

These include a bay filly by Teddy out of Ready; bay colt by Scotchbroom out of Sagacity, and bay colt by Scotchbroom out of Cinema.

LeDroit Tigers Face Georgetown Sunday

LeDroit Tigers and Georgetown A. C., two of the leading colored aggregations in the District, will clash Sunday in a double-header at the former's field at Twenty-sixth and Benning road northeast.

Play will be called at 1:30. Jack Cutout will be on the mound for the Tigers.

Hagerstown Women Bow in Golf Match

Hagerstown, Md., Aug. 9 (Spl.).—The women's golf team of the Fountain Head Club here was defeated by the Monterey Country Club women's team yesterday on the latter's course by the score of 9½ to 5½.

Fountain Head will play the Opequon Country Club women of Martinsburg here next Wednesday and a return match with Monterey on August 28.

Win Golf Tourney.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Aug. 9 (Spl.).—P. A. Bennett and Mrs. P. P. Steptoe, with a score of 41, handicap of 9 and net of 32, were the winners in the mixed handicap tournament yesterday for ladies day at Opequon Golf Club here.

Events of the day were for members only with the men as guests. Runners-up were P. P. Steptoe and Mrs. S. R. Snodgrass and consolation prizes went to Dewey Rice and Mrs. E. E. Collins.

Emily Stokes Wins.

Salem, N. H., Aug. 9 (AP).—Emily Stokes, the bay daughter of Spencer—Minnetonka, with Light Horse Harry Stokes in the sulky, won the National stake for 3-year-old trotters at Rockingham today, and became the favorite for next Wednesday's $40,000 Hambletonian at Goshen.

Hunt Wins to Reach 4th Round at Culver

Culver, Ind., Aug. 9 (Spl.).—Gilbert Hunt, the hard-hitting Washington (D. C.) youth, who is making a strong bid for the National Junior Tennis Championship, entered the fourth round today by bowling over Lawrence Nelson, of Los Angeles, in two sets. The scores were 6—4, 6—3.

Hunt, seeded fourth, did not appear to be greatly extended by the California youth, but merely applied pressure to his strokes at critical stages of the match.

Sir Cona Loses At Spa Horse Show

HOT SPRINGS, Va., Aug. 9 (AP).—The annual Bath County Horse Show was held here today with entries from some of Virginia's best-known owners competing. Sir Cona, Manley Carter's sensational mount, whose impressive string of wins is the wonder of the State show circuit, was beaten in one class by his stablemate, Crotan.

Four hundred and fifty entries were listed in today's events.

Roanoke Amateur Club Gets Ring-Mat License

Richmond, Va., Aug. 9 (AP).—The Virginia State Boxing and Wrestling Commission today issued a license to the Roanoke Amateur Athletic Club to stage amateur boxing and wrestling matches.

It is the second "simon pure" permit to be issued since the Commission took over control of the two sports, Joseph Bauers, Commission secretary, said. Dr. Harry Gildstein, matchmaker for the Roanoke A. C., applied for the license. The club's first show is set for August 31.

Raspi, Brocaddi Fight In Hagerstown Monday

Hagerstown, Md., Aug. 9 (Spl.).—Joe Raspi and Angelo Brocaddi, both of Baltimore, will feature the boxing show to be staged Monday night at the Elks convention hall in the fair grounds, in connection with the fourteenth annual tri-State Elks convention.

Both have fought many times before, but most of their bouts have finished in a draw.

Smuggled In Captures Detroit Feature Race

Smuggled In, which won in its last appearance here, repeated today by jumping out in front at the start and staying there right to the finish. No Doubt got into second position at the quarter-mile mark with Martin Barton close behind. The three horses fought out in that order right to the finish, with Hunt's sprinter a length and a quarter in front. The winner covered the mile in 1:40 1-5. The

Misunas Taken To Richmond For Pals' Trial

Gunman Will Turn State's Evidence in Holdup Slaying Case.

Guarded by machine guns and automatics, Arthur D. Misunas, confessed gunman who has admitted a part in the murder of a Federal Reserve truck driver in the Richmond Broad Street Station holdup last spring, arrived in the Virginia Capital from Washington yesterday.

Apparently undisturbed at the course the law may take, Misunas will testify against his former "pals" of the tri-State gang, Robert Mais and Arthur Legenza, alias William Davis, who go on trial for the murder of the driver, E. M. Huband, killed defending his truck.

With Misunas went Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Fontaine, alleged sweetheart of the slain gangster, William B. Phillips, who has been kept in hiding at the Women's Bureau here since her return from Upper Darby, Pa., more than a month ago.

Pals to Be Tried Monday.

The trial of Mais and Legenza will begin in hustings court, Richmond, Monday at 10 a. m.

Misunas has admitted he was present when the shots that felled Huband were fired, but has denied doing the actual shooting. He was quoted yesterday as saying Legenza actually fired the shot. Misunas will not be tried until the cases against Legenza and Mais are completed.

Hears Confession Read.

After hearing his confession read to a State's attorney, Misunas was led to a cell in Richmond City jail.

Mrs. Fontaine, who was shot and wounded seriously in Upper Darby, Pa., last April because, police say, "she knew too much" was closely guarded by police.

The Associated Press reported yesterday that Barbara Kendrick, said to be connected with the gang, visited jail yesterday and talked to Mais and Legenza.

Prisoner Found Hanging From Belt

Was Arrested Last Week on Woman's Charges.

Quartered in a large room where prisoners are allowed freedom, he went behind a block of cells and, after tying the end of his belt to the bars, dropped to his knees which were just clear of the ground. R. G. Robertson, another prisoner, discovered his body.

Shackleford was arrested last week on charges made by a Pittsylvania County woman.

Driver Is Fined $100 After Wrecking Porch

Charles Town, W. Va., Aug. 9 (Spl.).—John Brown, 32, of Summit Point, W. Va., has been fined $100 and costs and had his license revoked for six months on charges of driving while drunk.

Brown was arrested on charges of driving his automobile through the front porch of a home here. The small porch was demolished and officers found it still on the hood of the car.

Bids Called on 12 Jobs.

Charleston, W. Va., Aug. 9 (Spl.). Announcement is made by the State Road Commission that it will open bids August 21 for 12 additional highway and bridge projects in 11 counties of the State.

Wicomico Divided In Recovery Poll

Salisbury, Md., Aug. 9 (Spl.).—A poll to determine the effect of the recovery program on Wicomico County residents indicates a fairly evenly balanced ballot.

Of the 131 ballots tabulated, 81 say their debts are more burdensome than a year ago and 61 think they are easier to carry; 86 say they are no better off than a year ago and 67 assert they are; 52 thought their bank accounts were more secure and 40 thought otherwise; 68 said working conditions were no better and 67 thought they were.

As to faith in the future, the voters were evenly divided. On the question of loss of Constitutional freedom of action or choice, 65 voted no and only 5 voted yes.

Contract Let For Sewer Job

Cumberland Awards Work to Harrisburg, Pa., Engineers.

Cumberland, Md., Aug. 9 (Spl.).—The mayor and city council yesterday voted unanimously to employ Gannett, Eastman & Fleming, Inc., of Harrisburg, Pa., consulting engineers, to plan and supervise the construction of an interceptor sewer system here.

State Engineer Abel Wolman advised the council that the Public Works Administration had approved a $78,000 grant to apply on the project.

The PWA will send an engineer here soon to check the payment of the loan to the contractor. Labor will be furnished by the Federal Employment Department.

Highway First Aid Station Dedicated

Middletown, Va., Aug. 9 (Spl.).—Frederick County's second highway first-aid station was dedicated here today when Sherman Farmer, exalted ruler of the Winchester Lodge of Elks, presented equipment for installation. The station is sponsored by the Elks.

The Rev. W. L. Dudley, Walker McC. Bond, chairman of the Winchester-Frederick County Chapter of the Red Cross; Frank R. Horton, chairman of the first-aid and life-saving committee; Miss Jane Rhodes, of the Volunteer Motor Corps, and B. F. Kline, representing the Winchester police, participated.

The first station of the kind established in Virginia was at Stephens City and was sponsored by the Winchester Rotarians.

Work on Skyline Drive Starts Near Front Royal

Front Royal, Va., Aug. 9 (Spl.).—Construction of the third 10-mile section of the Skyline Drive south of here in the Shenandoah National Park, has begun, with Albert Bros., of Salem, operating two shovels and supplementary equipment. Work on the other two sections immediately south of Front Royal has been in progress almost two months.

The three 10-mile sections will extend the drive to Panorama, in Page County, from where the drive is built to Spotswood Trail, more than 30 miles.

School Board Posts To Be Filled Aug. 22

Fredericksburg, Va., Aug. 9 (Spl.). Two vacancies in the Spotsylvania County School Board will be filled August 22, when the school trustee electoral board meets at Spotsylvania Courthouse, the electoral board announced yesterday.

Resignation last month of Dr. J. W. Massey and L. B. Dickinson, representatives of the Livingston and Chancellorsville District, caused the vacancies. L. P. Chewning and T. B. Sale are the remaining school board members.

Woman Bares Details of Love Tragedy

Powhatan Courthouse, Va., Aug. 9 (AP).—Pauline Allen took the stand in circuit court here today to lay bare details of a secret love affair with James Ryland Wilkinson, Richmond youth, who later died before a blazing gun in the hand of the woman's husband.

Fourteen times, she told the jury and packed crowd in Judge Edwin Cox's courtroom, she held trysts with the man she met at a country dance.

Neighbors of the Allen and Wilkinson families jammed the room as, sobbing and with her face shielded from curious eyes, Mrs. Allen sought in her testimony to save the life of her husband. Bernard Allen, whose five shots brought death to the man he accused of wrecking his home, sat seemingly unmoved as she narrated the story.

Her testimony was the high light of the third day of Allen's trial. Allen is charged with shooting the younger man July 5 on the lawn of the latter's grandfather's home near here. He was arrested a few hours later.

Indicted for murder in the first degree, he faces death in the electric chair if the jury finds him guilty. But Gordon Ambler, former Richmond civil justice and defense attorney, is confident a plea of temporary insanity will clear him. Last night he took Allen to Richmond, where specialists took X-rays of his skull.

A dent was revealed, it was said, the result of a blow from a pistol butt ten years ago. Ambler has indicated he will attempt to establish that Allen, suffering from the old head injury, became temporarily insane when he obtained proof of his wife's infidelity.

Greencastle Stores Will Take Holiday

Greencastle, Pa., Aug. 9 (Spl.).—Greencastle merchants are planning to observe the third Thursday of August as "Greencastle Day."

The chamber of commerce is sponsoring the event, which falls on August 16. Stores will be closed throughout the day. No special program has been arranged, many of the merchants planning to attend the firemen's convention in Waynesboro.

Pay Increase Asked For County Attorney

Marion, Va., Aug. 9 (Spl.).—Smyth County board of supervisors have passed a resolution asking that the salary of the county Commonwealth attorney, R. Crockett Gwyn, be fixed at $2,500 annually instead of $1,800, as tentatively fixed by the Virginia State board of compensation.

Adoption of the resolution followed a formal protest from Mr. Gwyn.

Festival Princess Named.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Aug. 9 (Spl.).—Representative Jennings Randolph today named Miss Margaret Louise Eckerd, daughter of Mrs. Cora Eckerd, as one of the princesses for the fifth annual forest festival to be held at Elkins October 4, 5 and 6.

Chilton Carries Jefferson County

M. O. Rouss, Kabletown, unopposed, received the Democratic nomination for State Senate. U. S. Martin, of Shepherdstown, defeated I. H. Russell, of Charles Town, in the House of Delegates race by 134 votes.

Summary—State Senate, Milton O. Rouss (Democrat), unopposed, 178 votes. House of Delegates, U. S. Martin (Democrat, 1,703; I. H. Russell (Democrat), 939. State Senate Mrs. William B. Snyder (Republican), 1,156; Charles S. Musser (Republican), 312. Member of Congressional committee, Thomas R. Moore, jr. (Democrat), unopposed, 1,451 votes. County commissioner, James E. Tabb (Democrat), Leetown, W. Va., unopposed, 1,737. Board of education (Jefferson County), Melvin T. Strider, Charles Town, 1,024 votes; M. L. Lyne, Shepherdstown, 1,250; Gilbert E. Perry, Harpers Ferry, 1,207; H. G. Moffatt, Rippon, 1,107, and Herbert C. Miller, Kearneysville, 826.

W.Va. Court Adopts New Petition Rule

Charleston, W. Va., Aug. 9 (Spl.). Procedure on argument days is to be a little more orderly in the West Virginia Supreme Court as the result of a new rule it has adopted. The rule provides that attorneys with motions and petitions to be presented in open court shall notify the clerk of their intentions.

Heretofore the attorneys have merely entered the court room and persented their requests orally.

Another major change prepared by John V. Brennan, deputy clerk, under supervision of the five judges, provides that a copy of each printed brief shall be delivered to opposing counsel as soon as filed.

Accepting Wrong Names On Liquor Slips Hit

Leesburg, Va., Aug. 9 (AP).—Delegate Wilbur G. Hall, in a letter to Chairman S. Heth Tyler of the Virginia Alcoholic Beverage Control Board, yesterday said the board's acceptance of fictitious names on liquor purchase slips constitutes "an empty subterfuge and an encouragement of hypocrisy."

Delegate Hall, a veteran member of the State Legislature, and a drafter of the A. B. C. act, recently protested against the board's regulation requiring purchasers in State liquor stores to sign a slip before the purchase.

Meeting to Hear John W. Flannagan

Virginia Nursery Men Will Convene in Luray.

Luray, Va., Aug. 9 (Spl.).—John W. Flannagan, Bristol, will speak at the annual convention of the Virginia Nurserymen's Association here Monday and Tuesday. E. M. Quillen, Waynesboro, president of the organization, announced today.

T. G. Neale, landscape engineer of Virginia State highway department, will conduct a round-table discussion on "State Parks." Dr. J. Horace McFarland, Harrisburg, Pa., and Fred Shoosmith, Richmond, are also listed as round-table leaders. Owen G. Wood, chairman of the executive committee and past chairman of the Southern Nurserymen's Association, will report on the American Association of Nurserymen's convention held recently in New York.

Bolt Razes Barn; Hits Church, Mill

The Woodstock and Edinburg Fire Departments were unable to check the flames. Eight tons of hay and machinery were lost and the damage was estimated at $2,500.

The Lutheran Church and the J. I. Triplett mill were also struck in Woodstock as the storm raged, but no serious damage resulted. The heavy rainfall today broke a month's drought in this area.

Haymarket Field Day Sponsored by Grange

Haymarket, Va., Aug. 9 (Spl.).—A field day, sponsored by the Bull Run Grange, will take place here tomorow at Peter's Field. It will include a post-entry horse show with prizes for first and second places.

After a baseball game between single and married men, the Haymarket nine will play the Bethel team. They will be followed by a fat ladies' race and other novelty events. Music will be provided by the Engineers Band from Fort Humphreys.

Chestertown Bans Building Site Gift

Chestertown, Md., Aug. 9 (Spl.).—By reversing itself by one vote the city council has refused officially to indorse the public square as a site for the proposed $70,000 Federal Building and postoffice.

Council voted 3 to 2 against offering the property to the Treasury Department, gratis, as a site. Meanwhile the town is torn into two or three factions on the location. Harrison W. Vickers, former State conservation commissioner and attorney to the council, stated he does not believe the body has the legal right to offer such town property, which belongs to the public, to the Government. His statement was made before the vote was taken.

Winchester Aid Rolls Cut 10 Pct.

Winchester, Va., Aug. 9 (Spl.). The number of families receiving direct relief in Winchester and Frederick County decreased approximately 10 per cent during July, according to Miss Margaret Hurst, superintendent of public welfare.

On August 1, 206 families in Winchester were receiving aid at the rate of $9.86 per family a month and in Frederick County, 77 families were being aided at the rate of $6.47 each a month.

The number of families on relief in the city represented 1.9 per cent of the population and in the county, 1.2 per cent; $2,031.06 was expended in the city and $498.19 in the county.

Aid for 19 Blind Persons Approved

Chambersburg, Pa., Aug. 9 (Spl.) Grants for 19 blind persons have been approved by the mothers' assistance fund board of Franklin County. Six are women. The grants range from $12 to $30.

Franklin County has been allotted $7,931.05 for support of the blind under terms of a State law enacted at the last session of the General Assembly. Thus far, 90 applicants have filed for pensions under the law.

Four county physicians have been designated as examiners of applicants for pensions: Dr. F. N. Emmert, Chambersburg; Dr. Howard L. Dovey, Mercersburg; Dr. B. F. Myers, Chambersburg, and Dr. Fossett Edwards, Waynesboro.

Strike Situation Discussed.

Hopewell, Va., Aug. 9 (AP).—Members of the local union, United Textile Workers of America, were meeting tonight for a general discussion of the strike situation at the Tubize Chatillon plant, which has been closed more than a month by a union strike.

Radio Waves

"Midsummer Night's Dream," according to Radcliffe the "greatest musical comedy of Shakespeare's time, gains "in poetry and romance with radio delivery because its lines awaken visual images through the ear . . . the poet is a natural for radio."

Radcliffe is preparing "Midsummer Night's Dream" for N. B. C. Radio Guild production Monday afternoon.

"Ben Bernie and all the lads arriving in Galveston, Tex., a few weeks ago to play a night club engagement, were greeted by one of the worst storms in years, with a portion of the Gulf Coast swept away. Hailing a taxi, the Old Maestro asked to be driven to his hotel the fastest way. The driver drove along the sea wall."

Orders is orders.

"Ed Wynn, the Radio Fire Chief, is leaving his horse behind when he goes to Milwaukee on August 22 to be made an honorary member of the International Association of Fire Chiefs at their annual convention."

And Yesterday WJSV announced a new production manager, mild-mannered Lee Everet, for five years director of Charlotte's WBT . . .

President Roosevelt's welcome home—official and unofficial— will be put on the air today by both N. B. C. and C. B. S. at 11:30 a. m.

Official welcomers State Secretary Cordell Hull and Commerce Secretary Daniel Roper may be heard with the President.

Certain to be heard will be unofficial welcomers in great numbers.

Apology:

"The American debut of Danny Malone, young Irish singer who leaped to fame overnight in British radio and music halls, will take place over an N. B. C. network on Sunday evening, August 12, instead of the previous Thursday, as announced."—N. B. C. press release.

Ripples . . .

George Burns and Gracie Allen, vacationing in Europe, were called in by the British Broadcasting Corporation and asked how would they like to be guest stars on the Variety Hour, one of the progroms its subscribers liked best . . . the answer was yes . . . their part of the program will be short-waved to the United States from London and rebroadcast by C. B. S., 4:30 p. m. tomorrow . . . a young fan in Elkart, Ind., has written C. B. S. to say that a calf on his brother's farm has been named "Jerry Cooper Bossy" . . . Vincent Lopez, in response to a great demand, has written a book on "pianoddities" to be called "Lopeziana" . . . the book will deal with "Nola," "Bambalina," "Dizzy Fingers" . . . about time . . . for the best idea of the week a silver star, with palms, to Lennie Hayton, whose plan it is to produce a distinctive daytime program for policemen, newspaper men and night watchmen.

BLACKIE BEAR

By D. SAM COX

Blackie's Motto; "Never Put Off Till Tomorrow"

When Uncle Joe and Aunt Judy got back to the house they were almost as wet as Blackie and the boys were when they got to Blackie's house with the honey. But they were as good natured about it as were the Woodsfolk, for they were happy over the fact that they were going to have such a lot of honey "tomorrow."

"Sift up a lot of meal, Judy," said Uncle Joe, when they were through with their supper, "for I want all the corn cakes and honey I can eat, once more in my life. There isn's anything in the world that's any better than corn cakes and bacon and honey and coffee for breakfast, and if anybody ever did live that could make better coffee or cakes than you can, they are dead. You just beat the world. And while you are cooking breakfast, I will go down and get the honey. Where is that big lard can that you used to get the figs in?"

Aunt Judy found the can and she got the big kitchen spoon for him to dip the honey up with. And she sifted her meal and sliced her bacon and ground her coffee, and had everything right ready for starting her breakfast. While Aunt Judy would quarrel a lot with Uncle Joe sometimes, it was always in a friendly sort of way, and she really was glad to fix the things that he liked to eat. And then, too, she was just about as fond of honey and all other good things to eat as he was; and so she had a real good time "puttering" around in the kitchen while Uncle Joe sat on the wood box and smoked his pipe. After awhile everything seemed to be ready for cooking breakfast, and so they went into the bedroom and sat by the fire for awhile, and finished drying their clothes. And after talking some more about the bee tree, they went to bed.

It cleared off during the night, and both of them were up early the next morning. Uncle Joe could hardly wait to feed his cow and donkey and things before going over for the honey. But the donkey was yelling so awfully for his breakfast that he just had to stop long enough to feed him and the chickens, and then he took the can and the big spoon and went off for the honey.

He got his feet mighty wet in the weeds and bushes, but that didn't matter. He was going to have honey and corn cakes for breakfast! He walked along much faster than he usually did, and beat on the can with the spoon just as a boy does on his drum.

Sometimes it does seem that Blackie was right when he said that if he didn't have any more sense than Mr. Man or Uncle Joe had, his skin would be nailed on their door. Blackie never let anything wait until tomorrow, rain or no rain. When he found out where there was something that he wanted, he went after it right then. Uncle Joe was great on doing things "tomorrow."

Last night, because it was raining, he let his honey stay in the tree till "tomorrow," and "tomorrow" Blackie Bear, because he refused to be rained out, had the honey, while Uncle Joe had the hole where the honey used to be.

Well, any way, when Uncle Joe got up to the bee house and found that somebody had gotten his honey he was as badly puzzled as he was when he found the coon skin in the tree. He scraped around and got a quart or so of honey, for Blackie purposely left him a little, and took it home. There was plenty of honey for their breakfast, so they both had a good time, anyway, but when he started out to the lot, he stopped and looked at that pitiful lot of honey in the big can and said, "Well, if that don't beat all!"

Manhattan Island, with all its skyscrapers of steel and stone, has a smaller burden on it than it would have if the skyscrapers were not there.

Strange as it seems, more rock and dirt is removed from the island during construction of a tall building than is added to it by the building.

An example is Rockefeller Center, the largest building development New York has ever seen. Although it consists of an imposing array of buildings, engineers' figures show that all the materials used in the construction do not equal in weight the amount of material taken away during excavation. Over an area of 12 acres on which the Center is built, about 1,000,000 tons of excavated material was trucked away before the buildings were started. The buildings themselves weigh about 660,000 tons—leaving 340,000 tons difference.

In addition to this the old buildings that were torn down and hauled away weighed 90,000 tons, making the completed Center 430,000 tons lighter after it was built than before.

This general rule applies to all skyscrapers where deep excavations are made. Likewise the rock taken from the subway excavations weighs far more than the trains and equipment that replaced it.

Strange as it seems, construction of more and more big buildings in New York makes the city weigh less and less.

Tomorrow: Hell on Earth.

"Gin makes ALL the difference in a Tom Collins"

CONTROLLED FROM GRAIN TO BOTTLE

America's Favorite Gin—Established 1870

says Maynard of New York's famous Plaza (Persian Room Bar)

How Maynard mixes his popular Tom Collins

"First I squeeze the juice of one lemon in a tall glass. Next a scoop of ice. Then a heaping teaspoon of powdered sugar. Then I pour in a jigger of a good American gin. Next I fill up the glass with club soda. I don't stir the drink myself, but let the guest do it with a spoon. The sugar is what makes the Tom Collins effervesce. It should be stirred each time before a swallow is taken. This keeps the drink live and bubbling for a longer time. The most important ingredient is the gin. I have found from experience that a typically American drink, such as a Tom Collins, to be made successfully, requires an American Gin, like Fleischmann's—a mild, smooth-tasting gin especially distilled to blend with the other ingredients."

Only an American Gin—distilled to the American taste—can bring out the smooth, charming flavor of a Tom Collins—or a cocktail

THE TOM COLLINS—and also the cocktail—are as distinctly "American" as the 4th of July. Invented by Americans. Popularized in America.

To make a Tom Collins or a cocktail successfully requires a smooth American gin—distilled especially to blend with other liquors or fruit juices.

The American taste in gin is quite different from the European. Most Americans prefer to mix their drinks with a mild, smooth-tasting gin—instead of the more pungent London or Holland gins, which were not originally intended for mixing.

That is why Fleischmann's Dry Gin has become so tremendously popular in this country. It is distilled from a distinctly American formula—from American grains—to the American taste and drinking customs.

The Fleischmann Distilling Corporation makes gin and nothing else. Fleischmann controls every process from the fermentation of the grain to the delivery of the finished bottle.

Fleischmann's Gin is free from all the impurities that cause a "raw" taste in cocktails. It blends perfectly in mixed drinks—brings out their delicate hidden flavors.

Nationalizing Of Silver Spurs Stock Market

Prices Jump 2.4 Points; Trading Advances to 1,416,220 Shares.

New York, Aug. 9 (AP).—Speculative markets placed an inflationary interpretation upon the move by the Federal authorities to nationalize silver, and stocks turned up with commodities in a vigorous advance.

All markets seemed to be animated by the belief that the silver program, while probably not of great immediate significance in raising price levels, was of ultimate inflationary import.

A fresh wave of selling hit the dollar, driving it below gold parity to the lowest levels since last April or May in terms of sterling and the franc. United States Government and high-grade bonds were heavy, although support appeared before the finish, in extremely active trading. High-grade rail bonds particularly were depressed.

Leading Commodities Up.

Leading active commodities on the average swept ahead to top price levels of the year. The Moody index of spot commodity prices jumped nearly 2 points to 151.3, the highest since compilation started in October, 1931.

In the stock market, bulls were stirred out of their midsummer inactivity and prices were bid up briskly in the afternoon on expanding volume. Transfers increased to 1,416,220 shares, the largest since July 27, compared with 692,020 yesterday.

The Standard Statistics Co. average for 90 stocks jumped 2.4 points to 72.5.

Metal shares led the upturn, gains ranging as high as about 5 points. American Smelting, U. S. Smelting, Cerro de Pasco and other silver shares were in active demand.

The silver news apparently caught a short interest off its guard. Hasty covering from that source furnished much of the buying power for the rise, according to brokers.

Whole List Rises.

Virtually the whole list participated in the advance, a rally in rail shares contrasting with liquidation in that section of the bond market. Gains of 1 to 3 points were scored by such shares as Santa Fe, American Can, American Sugar, Atlantic Coast Line, J. I. Case, Continental Can, Chrysler, General Motors, Bethlehem Steel, International Harvester and Standard Oil of New Jersey.

Sugar, rubber and other "inflation" groups were in the van of the move. U. S. Rubber and Goodrich preferreds spurted 4 points.

Trade news played a minor role, but it was thought in some quarters that sharp appreciation in commodity values might start another wave of forward buying of goods and raw materials and thus accentuate the seasonal business stimulus which usually becomes effective in the fall. Favorable dividend actions included an increase in the quarterly payment by Underwood Elliott Fisher to 50 cents a share compared with 37½ cents previously.

3 National Tube Plants To Close for 2 Weeks

Lorain, Ohio, Aug. 9 (AP).—The National Tube Co. announced that three of its plants employing normally between 15,000 and 20,000 men will be shut down Saturday for at least 2 weeks.

The plants affected are Lorain, McKeesport, Pa., and Ellwood City, Pa. The Lorain plant alone normally employs between 8,000 and 10,000 steel workers.

The small volume of current production was given as a reason for the shutdown in a company statement, which also said it was hoped an accumulation of orders would permit resumption within the two weeks' period.

Robey's Review

Finance Economics Business

Comptroller of the Currency's Appraisal of the Current Banking Situation Overlooks the Causes of the Collapse in 1933.

By Ralph West Robey.

J. F. T. O'Connor, Comptroller of the Currency, on getting back from a European trip, expresses the view that never in any period in our history has American banking been on a firmer foundation than at present. Such a statement should not be permitted to go unchallenged. It is based upon a thesis as to what constitutes a "firm foundation" that, if carried to its extreme, would necessitate our commercial banks becoming nothing more than bond buying agencies.

For if one talks of the "foundation" of the banking system being "firmer" now than ever before in our history, he must have primary reference to the increased proportion of assets that is invested in Government bonds. This has been the great change that has been made in banking in this country in the last year as contrasted with earlier periods. The only other great change has been the addition of deposit insurance. It is important in enabling banks further to leave the field of short-term self-liquidating paper and invest their funds in long-term obligations.

Long-Term Obligations Not Suitable for Deposit Banks.

Now, the fact is that such long-term obligations, regardless of whether they are Government bonds or private paper, do not provide a sound basis for commercial banking. In the latter institutions, deposits are long-term deposits. They will remain with the bank more or less indefinitely. It is safe for the bank to tie them up in long-term bonds.

In the case of commercial banking an entirely different condition is found. The deposits of commercial banks are short-term funds. They are composed of the working capital of business organizations, of the balances that individuals carry, out of which to meet their current expenses, and of funds temporarily awaiting investment. Such funds constantly are being drawn out, turned over in the buying of raw materials, in the payment of wages and in the meeting of bills.

Practice Lays Basis For Later Difficulties.

If commercial banks invest such short-term funds in long-term obligations they lay the foundation for later trouble. The trouble will come when the withdrawal of deposits exceeds the inflow of deposits. This disequilibrium will make it necessary for the banks to throw their long-term obligations on the market. When all banks start to do this, prices break. It may become—as it did in 1932—virtually impossible to sell the bonds or mortgages at all. The result is—bank failures.

This chain of events, in a complicated way, is what led our banking system to a collapse in 1933. During the twenties the banks invested heavily in long-term obligations. During the depression the outflow of funds became greater than the inflow. Selling the long-term obligations became imperative. Prices dropped and the banks became insolvent.

Mr. O'Connor, it would appear from his statement, is unfamiliar with this recent banking record. Otherwise he scarcely could consider the present situation as constituting the firmest foundation in our history. In 1929 the investments of all reporting banks amounted to 30 per cent of their total loans discounts and investments. At present investments of the weekly reporting member banks compose 56 per cent of their total loans, discounts and investments.

Steel Prices Unchanged.

Foreign Markets.

London, Aug. 9 (AP).—Despite the imminence of settlement negotiations, a fair amount of business was transacted on the stock exchange today with a cheerful tone prevailing. Investors and speculators supported specialties, while the general improvement that was recorded included Argentine rails and transatlantic issues. Home rails were an easy exception. The market closed firm.

Paris—In a strong session on the bourse today gold mining shares led the advance in international issues. Canadian Pacific gained ten points on news of the dividend rise in Chicago. The closing was firm.

Chicago Egg Futures.

Bond Market Drops Slightly; Trading Rises

Activity Is Greatest Since Last February; Sales, $30,092,000.

New York, Aug. 9 (AP).—The bond market had its most active session since last February today. After selling substantially lower in early dealings, prices rallied moderately in the final hour.

Issues with a speculative tinge benefited most by the upturn and the Government list steadied, although prime investment loans were generally lower.

Transfers approximated $30,092,000, compared with $14,113,000 on Wednesday, and the Standard Statistics Co. average for 60 domestic corporate loans declined two-tenths of a point to 83.5

Federal Turnover Up.

The large turnover in Governments accounted for two-thirds of the total, amounting to $21,760,000, compared with $6,400,000 the day before.

Announcement from Washington that the Treasury had rejected as unsatisfactory bids for around $25,000,000 of the $150,000,000 tenders for Home Owners Loan bonds offered, found the Government list unsettled with losses ranging from 5-32ds to ⅛ of a point, and the balance of the market in a drooping condition.

When the subsequent announcement was made, however, of the nationalization of silver, the entire list strengthened with lower-priced bonds turning losses into modest gains, and Governments steadying sufficiently to close 5-32ds lower to 18-32ds higher.

In the group closing minor fractions to around a point higher were obligations of Chicago & Northwestern, Rock Island, Erie, Colorado Industrial, Denver & Rio Grande Western, Illinois Central, Kansas City Southern, McKesson & Robbins, Missouri Pacific, New Orleans Public Service, Postal Telegraph and Frisco.

List of Losers.

Santa Fe adjustment 4s yielded 2½ points to 95½, Bell Telephone of Pennsylvania 5s of '48 were 2⅛ lower at 110⅜, and some obligations of American Telephone, Baltimore & Ohio, C. & O., Consolidated Gas, Detroit Edison, Norfolk & Western, Pennsylvania, Reading, and Union Pacific showed declines of around a point or more at the close.

Home Owners Loan 4s went below par for the first time since they were listed, but came back from 99.23 to close at 100, unchanged from the previous day, while the 3s yielded three thirty-seconds of a point to end at 99.28.

Both issues of Federal farm mortgage bonds were three thirty-seconds lower at 101.9 for the 3¼s and 99.28 for the 3s.

The foreign section was featured by a spirited rally in the various Argentine issues ranging from minor fractions to more than 3 points. German 7s were a point higher at 48¾.

Curb's Prices Rally Under Silver Plan

Market Advances After Early Fall; Trading, 202,000 Shares.

New York, Aug. 9 (AP).—The Curb Market rallied to a firm close today. An early reaction was checked by a brisk buying movement that followed the Silver Nationalization announcement.

Early unsettlement resulted in declines of fractions to around a point. Losses were largely regained by the noon period. Prices reached their best levels in the last hour, when volume broadened appreciably.

General Tire & Rubber rose 8 points. Consolidated Mining climbed 7 to finish at 150. A. O. Smith and Newmont gained 2 apiece, while shares up major fractions to a point included Aluminum Co. of America, Distiller Corporation-Seagrams, Electric Bond & Share, Pittsburgh Plate Glass, Waco Aircraft, Hiram Walker, Lake Shore, Gulf Oil, American Cyanamid B, Humble Oil and Greyhound Corporation. Swift International moved up 1 in an active turnover, establishing another new high for this year.

Transfers increased to 202,000 shares from 127,000 Wednesday.

Wool Market.

Boston, Aug. 9 (AP).—(U. S. Dept. Agr.). An occasional sale of very moderate volume was closed on Western grown wools. Good French combing 64s and finer territory wool in original bags was sold at around 70 cents scoured basis. Short French combing staples of similar quality brought around 67-68 cents, and graded strictly combing 56s, ¼ blood territory wool was moved at 66-68 cents scoured basis.

Metal Market.

New York, Aug. 9 (A.P.).—COPPER—Quiet; electrolytic, spot and future, Blue Eagle, 9.00.

Stocks—Nationalizing of silver by Roosevelt spurred the stock market and prices increased 2.4 points. Trading activity was advanced to 1,416,220 shares. Metals led the climb.

Bonds—The bond market had the most active session since last February, yet final prices were two-tenths of a point lower. Sales volume increased to $30,092,000.

Curb—Prices rallied after announcement of Roosevelt's new silver Nationalization plan. All early losses were regained. Transfers jumped to 202,000 shares.

Wheat—The silver action jumped prices of all grains to new highs again despite enormous profit-taking sales. September wheat sold at 1.10⅜, December at 1.13¼.

Cotton—Prices reached new levels in the cotton market. The silver action aided. The general market closed steady, 14 to 19 points higher. October closed at 13.82, December at 13.96.

Rubber—Crude rubber was barely steady, 40 to 60 points higher. September sold at 15.95, October at 16.10.

Daily Credit of Reserve Banks Averages One Million Lower

The daily average volume of Federal Reserve Bank credit outstanding during the week ended August 8, as reported by the Federal Reserve Banks, was $2,463,000,000, a decrease of $1,000,000 compared with the preceding week and an increase of $248,000,000 compared with the corresponding week in 1933.

On August 8, total Reserve Bank credit amounted to $2,438,000,000, a decrease of $5,000,000 for the week. This decrease corresponds with decreases of $133,000,000 in Treasury cash and deposits with Federal Reserve Banks and $13,000,000 in non-member deposits and other Federal Reserve accounts, and an increase of $25,000,000 in monetary gold stock, offset in part by increases of $144,000,000 in member bank reserve balances and $19,000,000 in money in circulation, and a decrease of $4,000,000 in Treasury and National bank currency.

There was practically no change in the system's holdings of bills discounted, bills bought in open market and United States bonds. An increase of $6,000,000 in holdings of United States Treasury notes was offset by a decrease of a like amount in holdings of Treasury certificates and bills.

Changes in the amount of Reserve Bank credit outstanding and in related items during the week and the year ended August 8, 1934, were as follows:

Union Pacific Votes Dividend On Common

Gold Dust Corp. Reports $1,039,103 Net Profit in 6 Months.

New York, Aug. 9 (AP).—Union Pacific Railroad Co. directors today declared a dividend of $1.50, on the common stock payable October 1 to stock of record September 1. Similar amounts were paid in previous quarters.

The Gold Dust Corporation reports for the six months ended June 30 net profit of $1,039,103, equivalent after dividends on the preferred stock to 48 cents a share on the common. No comparison with the 1933 period is available.

Total operating revenues of $12,-871,485 were reported in the annual report for 1933 of New York State Electric & Gas Corporation, comparing with $13,063,529 for 1932.

Operating expenses, maintenance, provision for retirements and taxes totaled $9,023,342, which was $217,-557 above a year ago due largely to higher operating costs under NRA.

U. S. Gypsum Co. reports net income of $1,141,668 for the six months ended June 30. After allowing for preferred dividends the balance was equal to 73 cents a common share, compared with $831,541 or 47 cents a common share in the 1933 period.

International Printing Ink Corporation had a net profit of $533,948 for the six months ended June 30, equivalent after preferred stock dividends to $1.46 a share on the common. There was a net loss of $127,581 in the first half of 1933.

A net loss of $201,112 was reported by the Porto Rican American Tobacco Co. for the six months ended June 30. For the first half last year there was a net loss of $248,520.

Congress Cigar Co. had a June quarter net profit of $12,175, against net loss of $6,927 in the second quarter last year.

Bigelow-Sanford Carpet Co. for the six months ended June 30 had a net profit of $214,891, equivalent after dividend requirements on the 6 per cent preferred stock to 39 cents a share on the common stock. In the like period last year the company had a net loss of $130,776.

Profits of six leading shoe companies in the period from 1927 to 1933, inclusive, never fell below 5.5 per cent on the total invested capital, according to a survey of the Standard Statistics Co. The average figure for the last four years ranged better than 8 per cent, the report states.

Directors of the Archer-Daniels-Midland Co. have declared a special dividend of 25 cents, together with the regular quarterly payment of 25 cents on the common stock, both payable September 1 to stock of record August 21.

Spokane, Wash., Aug. 9 (AP).—Directors of the Hecla Mining Co., meeting here, today announced declaration of a 10-cent quarterly dividend on the company's stock, payable September 15.

Silver Action Jumps Wheat To New Peaks

All Grains Climb Despite Enormous Profit-Taking Sales.

Chicago, Aug. 9 (AP). — Despite enormous profit-taking sales, all grain values made feverish advances today following announcement that President Roosevelt had ordered the nationalization of silver.

Every kind of grain soared above any previous top price record this season, although this was the fourth successive day that the season's peaks had been surpassed.

Reaches Limit.

Wheat scored an overnight maximum rise of 2 cents a bushel and corn nearly 4 cents, the extreme limit allowed for a single day. The greater relative strength displayed by corn was ascribed to general belief that the Government August crop report due tomorrow would show sensational new shrinkage in official estimates of 1935 corn yield.

Wheat closed flurried at almost the day's highest level, 1⅜ to 1⅝ above yesterday's finish, corn 3¼ to 3⅝ up, oats 1¾ to 2¾ advanced, and provisions showing 17 to 32 cents gain.

Immediate striking enlargement of speculative buying of wheat and other grains was noticeable as soon as word spread that the President had nationalized silver.

The news caught the wheat market at about the day's low point, and from that level there was an almost vertical rise of more than 3 cents a bushel.

Highest in 13 Months.

Before the day was ended, wheat was up to the highest point in 13 months and within 10 cents of the peak reached in last summer's bull market.

Leading trade authorities said the chief reason wheat did not advance further today was the huge volume of profit-taking sales which repeatedly swept into the market at about $1.12 for December contracts. On the other hand, the strenuous upswing of corn was an aid to wheat strength, and so too was belief that the Canadian government crop report due after the close tomorrow would show drastic reduction in Canadian wheat prospects.

A factor which attracted particular interest among corn traders was a statement from a leading unofficial crop expert that he estimated probable corn yields had deteriorated 88,000,000 bushels since August 1. He said the Iowa corn crop alone had shrunk 45,000,000 bushels in that period.

Oats took their cue from corn, and not only rose in value but developed much increased volume of dealings.

Hard Coal Shipments On Great Lakes Rise

Cleveland, Ohio Aug. 9 (AP).—The Ore & Coal Exchange reported anthracite coal shipments on the Great Lakes in July amounted to 86,936 gross tons compared with 73,632 for the same month last year and 23,302 in 1932.

The exchange reported that up to and including August 6, 5,016 carloads of ore were shipped from Lake Erie ports to interior furnaces, while a year ago the figures were 6,359. Lake shipments of wheat last week amounted to 4,313,580 bushels compared with 2,281,177 a year ago, the Lake Shippers Clearance Association reported.

Rails' Status Weakened by Drought Effect

(Poor's Review)

It is only necessary to consider the greatly reduced crop yields in terms of freight traffic for the crop-carrying railroads to reach definitely unfavorable conclusions as to their earnings and finances.

Second-grade rail bonds and common stocks are highly sensitive to these two key factors, as shown by the sharp declines that have occurred during the last two weeks or since the markets actually awakened to the seriousness of the situation.

Taking 1932, the latest year for which complete railroad traffic and operating statistics are available, it appears that agricultural freight, including animals and animal products, constituted approximately 16 per cent of the total tonnage and accounted for approximately 26 per cent of the gross revenues for all class I railroads. On the Northwestern roads, combined tonnage of agricultural and animal products accounted for 28 per cent of all tonnage and 39 per cent of gross revenue. On the Central Western roads, the figures were approximately 35 and 45 per cent, respectively, for tonnage and gross revenues, and on the Southern roads, 26 and 33 per cent.

Great Importance.

These figures emphasize the great importance of agricultural traffic to the prosperity of practically all roads west of the Mississippi.

In the table herewith we present the agricultural commodity statistics of the leading Western carriers in percentages arranged in the order of importance of their combined agricultural and animal products tonnage for 1933. For comparative purposes, this table also shows fixed charge coverage for 1933 and for the first five months of 1934 compared with the like 1933 period.

In studying these statistics, certain points deserve emphasis:

1. Earnings of most Western carriers have recovered less rapidly this year than those of roads in the East.

2. Earnings of most of them, as compared with 1933, turned down by May and the early reports for June indicate that the gap widened.

3. Since the heaviest traffic and normally the most profitable months of the year are the last six, it is evident that the subnormal traffic in the last half of this year will accentuate an already bad showing in a great many cases, not to mention the string of disastrous years prior to 1933.

4. Finances of many of these roads are far from satisfactory. The time has passed, apparently, when they can borrow freely from RFC, and their credit with the public can hardly be restored without a marked recovery in earning power.

5. Roads that are in receivership, if their earnings this fall are disappointing, may face protracted postponement of reorganizations or the unpleasant alternative (for security holders) of drastic reduction in debt and fixed charges.

HAY—General hay market is firm. Supply ample. On good timothy and clover mixed prices range from $11@$14 per ton. The poorer grades of hay are hard to sell at any price. Market irregular on everything below 3 timothy. STRAW—Market is quiet and steady. Wheat straw, No. 1 per ton, $8; oat straw, $8.

Loans to Brokers Decline $58,000,000

(Associated Press.)

Loans on securities to brokers and dealers held by reporting member banks in New York City amounted to $827,000,000 during the week ended August 8, representing a decrease of $58,000,000 for the week.

Loans for the week ended August 9, 1933, amounted to $880,000,000.

In making the announcement the Federal Reserve Board gave the following detailed description of the loans over the three weeks dealt with:

	Aug. 8	Aug. 1	Aug. 9, 1933

Girl Is Hostage for Debt

Baltimore, Aug. 9 (Spl.).—Just like "little Miss Marker" in the movie, a 2-year-old girl, daughter of a Baltimore woman, is held virtually in pawn for a debt the mother owes the custodians of the child.

But, unlike the movie, the mother has filed an action in court in an effort to regain the baby.

Thec hild is Norma Jean Taylor, and her mother is Mrs. Beatrice Taylor McNahey, a night club entertainer and actress. Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Gross, of North Bergen, N. J., have possession of the child, Mrs. McNahey alleges, and have become so attached to it that they are fighting the mother's action to gain possession of the baby.

Helped Jobless Mother.

Mrs. McNahey, jobless and desperate after the collapse in June, 1933, of a night club in New York, where she was working, appealed to the Grosses to keep the baby for her. She promised to pay them $10 a week for the child's board and keep, the Grosses said.

For many weeks Mrs. McNahey was unable to pay the money, but finally found work in Baltimore.

Recently she went to North Bergen to get her baby, but the Grosses objected. Not until the $250 back board for the child was paid, they said, could the mother have the child.

They explained that the baby had so endeared herself to them that they did not want to give her up, and they appealed to the mother to let Norma Jean stay in North Bergen. Mrs. McNahey refused, and threatened suit. The Grosses countered with a demand for the back board, which Mrs. McNahey did not have.

Hope for Settlement.

Returning to Baltimore, Mrs. McNahey engaged a lawyer and has filed suit in Chancellor's Court in New Jersey, asking that the Grosses show cause why they should not surrender the custody of the baby. Vice Chancellor John O. Bigelow has postponed action on the suit in the hope an amicable settlement can be reached.

Mrs. McNahey says there is no hope of a compromise.

"How can they keep my baby from me when I have done nothing wrong and have made every human sacrifice possible to pay for her board and keep?" Mrs. McNahey asked. "I am going to turn heaven and earth until I get her back."

School Officers Named.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Aug. 9 (Spl.).—At a meeting of the Berkeley County school board last night, L. W. Burns was reelected assistant superintendent of schools, and Mrs. Harry Kuhn and E. N. Wood, attendance officers.

House Nominees Are Picked By West Virginia Voters

Charleston, W. Va., Aug. 9 (Spl.).—Tabulation of the State-wide primary election returns for the State House of Delegates, delayed in a number of counties owing to length of the ballots, were determined today as fairly complete returns came in.

Among those definitely determined by counties were:

Relief Steers Prove Heifers

Shipment of Cattle From Midwest Drought Area Reaches Frederick.

Many are the stories about hatching chicks proving to be ducklings, but Maryland agricultural officials went one better yesterday when they announced a shipment of relief feeder steers had turned out to be heifers.

The discovery was made, according to officials at the University of Maryland, when the shipment of 150 cattle arrived at Frederick, Md., from the drought-stricken areas of the Midwest. Approximately one-third of these were heifers, which are more susceptible to disease, they said.

So far, 22 cars have been shipped to Maryland by Government agencies. Another shipment of six cars arrived in Carroll County Wednesday night. A total of 5,464 head of cattle have been ordered. Farmers originally estimated they could pasture only 4,300 head.

Joseph M. Vial, specialist of the Animal Husbandry Division at the University Extension Service, left yesterday to examine the Frederick shipment. They were reported to be in unusually good condition, apparently having thrived during their stop-over in the Chicago stock yards.

Two more carloads are expected shortly at Barnesville, Md., and two at Gaithersburg, Md.

W. J. Gibson to Practice Law at Fredericksburg

Fredericksburg, Va., Aug. 9 (Spl.).—William J. Gibson, son of Assistant Attorney General E. H. Gibson, will begin law practice here September 1 as the newest member of the Fredericksburg bar.

A native of Culpeper County, Mr. Gibson was educated at the University of Virginia, the University of Oklahoma and the University of Richmond. He is a brother of City Councilman-elect E. A. Gibson.

Milk Control Test Up Today

Attorney General Seeks to Enjoin Virginia Price Violator.

Richmond, Aug. 9 (AP).—Attorney General A. P. Staples will appear before Judge Sutton in law and equity court, part II, tomorrow to ask an injunction requiring R. J. Reynolds, milk producer-distributor of near Staunton to comply with the provisions of the law. It will be the first test of the 1934 milk-control act.

The attorney general will seek specifically to restrain Reynolds from operating without a license and selling milk below the price level set by the State milk commission, and to require him to pay an assessment fee and comply with other provisions of the act.

Sometime ago a Staunton law firm notified the commission it had been engaged by producer-distributors in that area to contest the law, particularly as it relates to the fixing of prices, and that they had reached the conclusion that the act was un-Constitutional in its price-fixing provisions.

Mr. Reynolds, the commission was informed, continues to sell milk at 10 cents a quart despite the commission's schedule of 11 and 12 cents a quart, based on butterfat content.

Idle Scorn Jobs Thrashing Grain In Page County

Luray, Va., Aug. 9 (Spl.).—With hundreds of idle men in Shenandoah, Luray and Stanley and other parts of Page County, it is almost impossible to get hands for thrashing, farmers say.

For the last three days, C. W. Lillard and Oscar Housden, farmers of Luray and Marksville districts, respectively, have been in Luray and Stanley begging idle men to help them thrash wheat.

Many of those who turned down work have been objects of charity for some time. They will not work unless they are paid the prevailing wage on public projects. Lillard and Housden say that the wage is prohibitive while farm products are at their present low ebb.

On the Housden farm a short time ago, when none of the idle men would accept work, two of Mr. Housden's daughters donned overalls, riding binders, stacking wheat and making hay.

Wave Drowns Swimmer As Relatives Look On

Norfolk, Va., Aug. 9 (Spl.).—While his father, stepmother, niece and a neighbor looked on powerless to help, George T. Wilson, jr., son of Lieut. George T. Wilson, of the Norfolk police force, was drowned last night at Ocean View.

The young man, a weak swimmer, apparently was unable to regain his feet after he was knocked down by a wave. He drowned in less than 5 feet of water. Dorothy Davis, 13, his niece, attempted to rescue him. She grabbed his arm, only to lose her grip a moment later.

Official Plans Appeal From Salary Decision

Danville, Va., Aug. 9 (Spl.).—George E. Bendall, Commonwealth's attorney of Danville, will appeal from the decision of the Virginia Compensation Board setting his salary at $3,600 a year gross.

Bendall claims that after paying office expenses he receives less than $200 a month.

Cotton Act Offices Opened.

Petersburg, Va., Aug. 9 (Spl.).—State offices for the Bankhead cotton act in Virginia have been established here and will be in charge of J. S. Shackelton, executive secretary of the State cotton allotment board.

Virginia Education Parley Invites Experts

Charlottesville, Va., Aug. 9 (AP).—Outstanding authorities on adult education from many sections of the country have accepted invitations to participate in a regional training institute for adult education supervisors from three States and the District of Columbia here August 13 to 21.

Supervisors from Virginia, West Virginia, Maryland and the District will attend. Dr. Sidney B. Hall, Virginia State superintendent of public instruction, is director of the institute, and J. A. Roper, of the University of Virginia extension division, will preside.

Truck Crash Kills Youth.

Petersburg, Va., Aug. 9 (AP).—Jesse C. Bradshaw, 19, of Mount Olive, N. C., was killed in a truck collision today on the Petersburg-Weldon highway, 12 miles from here.

Funerals Delayed For Unknown Dead

Bodies of Civil War Men Found on Battlefield.

Fredericksburg, Va., Aug. 9 (Spl.).—Postponement of funeral services for the three unknown Civil War soldiers, recently disinterred in the Fredericksburg and Spotsylvania County National Military Park, was announced yesterday by park officials.

Arrangements for burial will be made after word is received from G. A. R. headquarters in Los Angeles, officials said. Present plans call for attendnce by representatives of the G. A. R., the United Daughters of the Confederacy, the American Legion and other patriotic organizations.

The bodies were discovered in the Wilderness and Chancellorsville sectors of the park battlefield area. The soldiers are believed to have fallen in action. CCC laborers working in the areas made the discoveries.

Speakers for Farmers' Picnic Are Announced

Greencastle, Pa., Aug. 9 (Spl.).—The Rev. H. K. Ober, of Elizabethtown, Pa., and the Rev. Pressley Wilson, of Baltimore, Md., will speak at the picnic of the Farmers Protective Association August 16 at Rhodes Grove.

The Rev. Mr. Ober is a member of the board of education of the Church of the Brethren and the Rev. Mr. Wilson is a former resident of this county, where he engaged in newspaper work. Several thousand farmers from Franklin County, Pa., and Washington County, Md., are expected at the picnic.

4 Members of Family Stricken With Typhoid

Lynchburg, Va., Aug. 9 (Spl.).—Four members of the family of W. W. Moore, of Walkers Ford, suffering from typhoid fever, have been brought to Lynchburg Hospital for attention. The sick include the father, mother and two children, one 7 months old.

Walt Mason, Himself

The Onlooker.

If everything must go to wreck, and all our valued bulwarks crash, I'm hoping I may be on deck to see the fireworks as they flash. Some prophets say that things are doomed, palladiums must pass away, and institutions that once bloomed will lie in ruins and decay. Red anarchy will hold the fort, rebellion will be everywhere, and every timid, weak-kneed sport will hang himself in his despair. If all these things shall come to pass, and demolition holds its sway, I hope to sit upon the grass and watch the doings day by day. The show will be a wondrous sight, and well worth going miles to see, and I shall watch it with delight, while seated 'neath my banyan tree. The doleful prophecies of doom are read by many heartsick gents, who thus absorb so much of gloom they think life's not worth 20 cents. They do not wish to wait and see our ruin, utter and complete, and so they to the drugstore flee, and buy some poison for a treat. Or to the nearest pond they go, and drown themselves in futile haste; the waters murmur as they flow, "Another good life gone to waste." Each day we read of some poor wight who could not face the doom foretold, and in an ecstasy of fright he fits himself for graveyard mold. But I have little faith in seers, they can not scare me worth a dime; I look ahead to better years, and to a happy golden time.

$100,000 Fee For Shoreham Officials Urged

Noteholders Committee Attacks Receivers Pay Proposal.

Fees totaling $100,000 should be paid receivers of the Shoreham Hotel for their services in operating the hotel for three years and six weeks, A. Leftwich Sinclair, auditor of the District Supreme Court, recommended yesterday.

The receivers, John E. Laskey, Spencer Gordon and Francis H. Duehay, now dead, already have been paid $60,000. An additional $40,000 will be paid if the auditor's report is accepted.

In a 41-page report, Mr. Sinclair traced operations of the hotel from the date it was placed in receivership, January 30, 1931, until its return to a reorganized company, March 16, 1934. During that time, he said, there was a gross income of $3,656,733.33 and a net income of $1,093,405.72.

Padlocking Feared.

Sinclair's report showed that the Shoreham was in danger of being padlocked for liquor law violations shortly after the receivers took it over. He revealed that prohibition agents had turned in information upon which Capt. Harold W. Orcutt, then an assistant United States attorney in charge of prohibition here, was contemplating action.

The receivers, as officers of the District Supreme Court, promised to stamp out liquor law violations and succeeded in doing so.

Walter B. Guy, representing the Shoreham Hotel noteholders committee, attacked the receivers' report which showed a 30 per cent profit. He claimed there was no showing that the property had actually earned any profit during the receivership. On the contrary, he contended, the report was without deduction for real estate and personal property taxes, depreciation, interest or receivers' fees.

$60,000 Paid Three.

"The receivership," he said, "was discontinued March 16, 1934. The sum of $60,000 has been paid the receivers. They have petitioned for a considerable amount in addition. Pursuant to an order of the court, they have withheld $125,000 out of which such further amount as the court may allow them will be paid.

"The committee and many of the noteholders are of the opinion that regardless of the value of their services their demands are extravagant."

However, the receivers, combating the noteholders' report, showed scores of instances in which they had been called upon to exercise their legal and business training. They pointed out that when they took over the Shoreham, the hotel was on the verge of collapse and they demonstrated how they had straightened out scores of perplexing problems, such as mechanics' liens, disputes as to title to the real estate and damage suits.

Sinclair's report explained that "1934 is not 1929." He said that "wages and salaries of all kinds were much lower than in the '20s. The difference must be reflected in the compensation of receivers and their counsel as it is in other fields."

"There is no particular divinity," he said, "surrounding a receivership, and no magic in the appellation 'receiver' that changes the ordinary and usual services into something of exaggerated value."

The noteholders committee termed the requests for compensation "exaggerated."

MADE IN U. S. A.

We had to Build THE WORLD'S NEWEST, BIGGEST, MOST MODERN REFINING UNIT TO CREATE new-action AMERICAN ORANGE GAS

PROCESS PROTECTED BY U. S. PATENTS

TO create "New-Action" Orange American Gas with existing refinery facilities was impossible. We had to build a new refinery—to adapt an entirely different principle of refining to produce "New-Action" Orange American Gas.

MORE ENERGY FROM THE CRUDE OILS

Up to now a great deal of the energy and other valuable properties in basic crude oil have been going to waste. With existing equipment, it has been impossible to convert the full value of the raw crudes into finished gasoline.

The petroleum industry has spent millions trying to put more of the undeveloped properties in the raw crude to work. And that's just what's been accomplished in the mammoth new refining unit just completed by the American Oil Company at Texas City, Texas.

NEW SUSTAINING* POWER

By a new and different refining principle, "New-Action" Orange American Gas is scientifically balanced, has no idle components, no dead or waste ends, and what's more, has greater SUSTAINING* POWER. The superior properties built-in the gasoline at the refinery "stay put" under actual working conditions in your motor, with less loss of efficiency between refinery and road performance than has ever before been possible.

NEW PERFORMANCE ON THE ROAD

That ability of "New-Action" Orange American Gas to sustain its quality is distinctly new among gasolines. It is of the utmost value to you, as a motorist, concerned with the quality of the gasoline you put into your car, rather than with its quality at the refinery.

"New-Action" Orange American Gas brings you sustained new action—better anti-knock—surer power—easier riding—quicker starting—readier acceleration—more miles—better performance and lower costs!

Try "New-Action" Orange American! It's truly the last word in regular gasoline—years ahead of any regular gasoline you've ever used—tomorrow's gasoline today. Sold at regular gas price by thousands of American dealers and stations from Maine to Florida and inland.

SOME INTERESTING FACTS

The refinery covers 450 acres of land.

It required an average of 2,600 men per day—a period of nine months to actually construct the refinery (aside from time consumed in planning).

The refining unit is the most modern in the world—adopting the latest discoveries and innovations in the art of refining.

1. In a single operating day, this unit will produce enough gasoline to run an average automobile 9,000,000 miles, or about 360 times around the earth at the equator.
2. Six 8-room houses could be set inside a single one of its furnaces.
3. One of its fractionating towers—most massive ever built—is as high as a seven-story building.
4. 40¾ miles of piping were used just in two furnaces to provide the required heat exchange surface.
5. This unit will turn out enough heavy bunker oil in a single day to produce, if used in making electric power, current sufficient to provide the home lighting requirements of 2,000,000 people.
6. In addition, large quantities of kerosene, furnace oil for home heating, and gas are made.
